CAROL'S THRONE SHAKY; RESPECT OF PEOPLE LOST

Ruler Accused of Mismanagement.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
(Pictures on Back Page)

BUCHAREST, Feb. 7.—[By Mail.]—If the moving finger is pointing at King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia as a candidate to become Europe's next ex-monarch, it is also pointing at his brother-in-law, King Carol of Rumania. Around Bucharest the opinion is general that Carol's grip on the throne is the grip of a drowning man clinging stubbornly to life.

The new law permitting the declaration of a state of siege in time of disorder may help strengthen his position, but the ferment is there.

[Yesterday King Carol's troops fired with machine guns into a mob of 1,000 strikers barricaded in a railway shop. Six persons were killed instantly and scores were wounded. Nine of these latter died today.]

Carol's Popularity Wanes.

The ferment in Rumania does not imply that the people are discontented with the monarchy. It means, rather, according to the expounders of the Rumanian situation, that 39 year old King Carol, who was hailed with joy when he returned from exile in an airplane and deposed his young son from the throne, is fast losing his popularity. The army officers who brought him back now shake their heads in doubt.

There are many factors in this. Everybody in Rumania talks about the mismanagement and corruption that prevail in the business of governing. And Carol's informality of manner—some even call it by a more accurate term—has lost him prestige.

They say Carol began badly by making things like a comic opera. He put new uniforms on the soldiers, making them more gaudy and burlesque in the best of Austrian empire chocolate soldier tradition. And these new style uniforms cost a lot of money when the country was hard up.

Plays Too Much Politics.

Carol, it is also complained, changed the army's march music to a chocolate soldier tempo and caused annoyance by putting more pompousness and bombast in ceremonies of changing the guard before the royal palace and making the ceremonies more conspicuous.

The king, it is also deplored, plays politics too much, pitting one side, the liberals, against the peasant agrarians. Politicians treat him with less respect and less awe. This attitude has been induced, it is said, by Carol's lack of dignity and slackness. He insists on calling officers and ministers by their nicknames. One instance is cited of Carol dismaying army officers by appearing at an inspection with a growth of whiskers because he got up too late to have time to shave. And frequently in public he yawns and sleepily puts his cherubic lips. All this is retailed about the political gossip shops of his capital.

The people, who deplore Carol's manners and ways but do not altogether dislike him, object to an atmosphere of vulgarity which he has given the court. And in a country where anti-Semitism runs high the monarch's red-headed paramour, Magda Lupescu, daughter of a Jewish junk dealer, has steadily decreased his favor.

Criticize His Camarillas.

They also talk about what are called in Bucharest the king's camarillas. The king's secretary is Dumetrescu, a 32 year old dapper young man whom Carol knew in Paris before his spectacular flight back.

Another person of importance is Barbionescu, a Jewish intermediary who lived many years in London and who is reported to have financed Carol's first attempt to come back. After the second and successful attempt Barbionescu also returned to Rumania.

Still another person of importance is Aristide Blank.

All the gossips say that Carol sometimes does a lot of work, is shrewd, and knows pretty well what is going on; the trouble is that he is not steady. He prefers to get away from the yellow palace in Bucharest as much as possible, preferring his other palace at Sinaia, where he has been living in solitude with his Magda, who also has a villa nearby.

Lupescu's father, much interested in business, flourishes daily in the Corse café, just across the street from the

Bond House Fitted Into Picture.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The ghost of "The Old Counselor" hovered in the tobacco flavored ether of the senate banking and currency hearing room today.

But his form was just as invisible as the 36½ millions in paper profits that once stood to the credit of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Chicago bond brokers, as the result of their financial gyrations, hand in hand with Samuel Insull.

It was "The Old Counselor"—otherwise a Prof. Nelson of the University of Chicago English department—whose voice at $50 a broadcast used to float out on the radio waves to tell widows how to invest their late husbands' insurance money.

Created Out of the Past.

But "The Old Counselor" was but one of many figures re-created out of the past as the senate committee completed its inquiry into the Insull crash and prepared to enter next Tuesday upon an investigation of the National City bank of New York, with particular interest in the sale of securities by banking affiliates and of bank stock by bank officers.

With Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago; Abner J. Stilwell, vice president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company of Chicago, and John S. Brocksmit, vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank of Chicago, in the witness chair, the committee learned of the more than 80 millions loaned at one time by Chicago banks to corporations and individuals in the Insull group.

From Mr. Stuart and from Edward M. Tyler, committee accountant, the senators heard how marketing syndicates had been formed by Insull companies to support each other's stocks and how the Insull companies, with prices on the toboggan, had bought more and more frenziedly in an effort to check the market.

Stirs Up Norbeck.

These were the finishing touches to a picture of the Insull rise and fall which caused Chairman Peter Norbeck [Rep., S. D.], following the committee's adjournment, to declare:

"Our Insull investigation has shown up one of the biggest racketeering games in the United States. Big promotion games are never undertaken unless some large banking house is involved. That was true here. Our progress has been difficult. Criticism has been frequent, sometimes coming from those who wanted us to do the impossible, sometimes from those not in favor of our going forward with the inquiry. It is significant that nothing was actually thrown in our way until we began to go after the big bankers."

Mr. Stuart's Story.

In its briefest outlines the story drawn from Mr. Stuart by Ferdinand Pecora, committee attorney, was as follows:

Mr. Stuart, as well as being president of his bond house, was director of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., the investment trust created by the Insulls in December, 1928. Together with the Insulls and Walter S. Brewster he was a member of the corporation's finance committee. Later he became an officer of Corporation Securities company of Chicago, a second investment trust which, the Insulls and Halsey-Stuart set up Oct. 5, 1929. C. B. Stuart of Halsey, Stuart & Co., was vice president of Corporation Securities; Clarence T. MacNeille, vice president of Halsey-Stuart, was secretary and treasurer of the Investment Trust.

Halsey-Stuart put into Corporation Securities 152,270 shares of Insull Utility Investments common which they had acquired for $3,407,601. They received one million shares of Corporation Securities common, which opened on the market at $100 for a unit equivalent to 2½ shares of common, or at $40 a share.

On paper that day Halsey-Stuart stood a gainer by $36,592,398. On paper today, Mr. Stuart admitted with a wry smile, that gain is worth "practically nothing."

The Insulls—Samuel, Martin J., and Samuel, Jr.—did even better—on paper. The 152,270 shares of Insull Utility Investments common which they put

COWBOY LAMENT TOUCHES HEARTS OF KINDLY COPS

On a snowbank at Addison street and California avenue last night sat a cowboy with a two gallon hat, a pair of chaps, a flannel shirt, high heeled boots and spurs—but no horse.

"This is a terrible town," said the stranger between hiccoughs. "Yes, a terrible town. Here I come in with three carloads of steers and sell 'em. I get $4,000 for my cattle and I start out on my hoss from the stockyards and what happens?

"Somebody takes me for my money in a card game and somebody else steals the hoss while I'm a-gambling. If the man that done that was in Texas we'd shore string him up."

The policemen, their hearts touched by the sad tale, led the cowboy to 3922 North Mozart street, where he said he was staying. There a young woman appeared and led him firmly inside.

"This fellow is James Morgan of Amarillo, Tex.," she said. "He's my husband. But he didn't have a lot of money when he went out to play western in Chicago and he never had a horse. He's been drinking."

So saying, Mrs. Morgan pulled one of the high boots off her husband and struck him convincingly with it across the broad part of his back. The policemen left.

LAST SISTER OF THEO. ROOSEVELT DIES IN THE EAST

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Douglas Robinson, sister of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, died of double pneumonia at her home tonight. She was 71 years old, the last of the late President's sisters.

Mrs. Robinson had been ill since Sunday. All of the immediate members of her family were at her bedside.

She was the aunt of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and a fifth cousin of the President elect. Her maiden name was Corinne Roosevelt and she was the youngest member of the family.

Her parents were Theodore and Martha [Bulloch] Roosevelt, the mother being a member of a prominent southern family. Besides the late President, she had another brother, Elliott, father of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, and a sister, Mrs. William Shefield Cowles of Farmington, Conn., who died a little less than two years ago. Elliott Roosevelt died when his daughter, Eleanor, was a child.

Two Indicted in Milwaukee City Bond Deal

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 18 [Saturday].—[Special.]—The county grand jury last night returned indictments charging embezzlement against I. J. Rosenberg, former head of the closed Liberty State bank and the Bankers' Securities company, and John I. Drew, former city treasurer.

The indictments, contained in a 32 page document, center on the bond deals totaling $40,000,000 which the Bankers' Securities company had with the city while Drew was treasurer.

About $500,000 was embezzled, the grand jury indictments allege.

Both men were brought to the county jail about midnight by deputy sheriffs sent out with the indictments.

Drew was found at St. Joseph's hospital by Deputies Lee Miles and Herbert Gawin. He had been there since Feb. 15 and had been confined there at other times during the last two months. He was weak and had to depend on the arms of the deputy sheriffs in order to walk from the county automobile into the jail.

Rosenberg Protests.

Rosenberg was found at his home by Deputy Max Brunner and Detective Fred Stange, the latter a member of the city police force, assigned especially to the grand jury. He protested being taken from his home.

Frantic efforts were being made early this morning by attorneys to reach George Shaughnessy, Municipal Judge, so that a special session be held to fix bail.

Edward Yockey, one of the special prosecutors, said he will demand $100,000 bail for each.

What Indictments Charge.

The indictments in brief charge:

That they falsely, fraudulently, and feloniously padded the invoices when bonds were purchased so as to increase the apparent cost thereof to the city.

That they falsely, fraudulently, and feloniously under-recorded the proceeds of such securities when they were sold.

That they caused the removal of vouchers, checks, and records of said city from the offices and custody where they lawfully were with a design of hindering, delaying, and obstructing detection of said embezzlement.

That they intentionally failed to make proper reports to said office of treasurer in itemized understanding form of the facts concerning the transactions.

That they secretly collusively and corruptly divided said overcharges in money and property of said city between themselves.

Shortly before 1 a. m. Judge Shaughnessy was reached at his home. He refused to hold a special session to fix bail. Both men were taken to cells in the county jail.

Rosenberg as head of the securities company sold bonds to the city of Milwaukee while Drew was treasurer. Rosenberg purchased the bonds through the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company of Chicago, the state charged, while investigating the income of Rosenberg for several years back. The state income tax commission had assessed an extra income tax of $56,173 against Rosenberg. He fought this and lost the case. It was through these hearings that the bond transactions were brought to light.

Ald. Schreiber Is Under Fire as Receiver

The activities of Ald. Irving J. Schreiber of the 5th ward, as receiver for several south side hotels, were under fire yesterday as Attorney General Otto Kerner's inquiry into receivership practices was formally opened.

Ald. Schreiber was not present at the hearing. The quiz was conducted by Assistant Attorney Generals George S. Lavin, James Graden Skinner, and John W. Brabner-Smith, and the entire day was spent in examining secretaries of various bondholders' protective committees. Specifically, the quiz developed three phases—the activities of the 5th ward alderman, an unauthorized $40,000 loan to a bondholders' committee, and the alleged double fees paid to a committee secretary.

Receiver for 5 Hotels.

It was in the questioning of Harold C. Bull, secretary of the bondholders' committee of Wollenberg & Co., that the name of Ald. Schreiber cropped out. The alderman is receiver for five south side hotels, among them the Park Shore and the Flamingo. These properties are under the control of the Wollenberg committee.

Mr. Lavin told Secretary Bull that the attorney general's office had information that Ald. Schreiber had spent between $3,000 and $4,000 in transforming two six room apartments in the Park Shore hotel into a twelve room suite for J. Leonard East. He said that Mr. East is a Republican ward committeeman and a member of East Brothers, a coal firm, which supplied fuel to the hotels under Schreiber's receivership.

"We are told that Mr. East supplied coal to these hotels, and was paid for the coal," said Mr. Lavin. "We also are told that Mr. East was to have paid $1,000 a month for his apartment, but hasn't paid anything."

Denies Knowledge of Rent.

Mr. Lavin indicated that although Mr. East received payment for coal, the $1,000 monthly rent which he allegedly did not pay was not offset against the coal cost. Secretary Bull said he knew nothing of these matters, and referred the attorney general's staff to Newton C. Farr, president of the committee, as possibly having the desired knowledge. Assistant Attorney General Lavin instructed Bull to produce Farr at the hearing Monday.

Other witnesses of the day were J. R. Friendlund, secretary of the Home Mortgage Investment company committee, and Sam Tavalin, president and secretary of the Division Street State bank committee and head of the General Mortgage Investment company.

Mr. Friedlund was asked about reports that a $40,000 loan was made without the consent of the bondholders on $7,500,000 bonds deposited with his company. He said he knew nothing of the question, and was ordered to reappear on Monday with the company records. Mr. Tavalin was questioned about the extension of a $17,500 loan on a Montrose avenue building. He admitted he received a 5 per cent fee for obtaining that extension, and that of the $875 fee, $175 went to the committee and $700 went to his mortgage company.

QUICK ACTION BY FIREMEN SAVES BIG TANK OF GAS

Prompt work by firemen yesterday saved a tank containing 1,000,000 cubic feet of gas, on the property of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company at 2415 Throop street.

Fire broke out in an oil mixing shed near the tank. Workers summoned the fire department and within a few minutes equipment under command of Chief Joseph Enright of the 25th battalion arrived.

BULLETIN.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 18 (Saturday.)—(AP)—Hospital attendants at 2:55 a. m. today said Mayor Cermak was asleep and resting easily. Physicians attending the mayor left the hospital for a few hours of rest.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—From Mayor Cermak of Chicago tonight came the first message to the outside world he has given since an assassin's bullet struck him last Wednesday night. The mayor's temperature had risen tonight and the physicians attending him were grave, although they continued to issue optimistic bulletins.

"Tell Chicago I'll pull through," the mayor said feebly when asked to send some word to the thousands anxiously awaiting reports of his condition. "This is a tough old body of mine and a mere bullet isn't going to pull me down. I was elected to be World's Fair mayor, and that's what I'm going to be."

Mayor's Temperature Higher.

The ten o'clock bulletin issued tonight noted that the mayor's temperature had risen to 99.8 degrees from the mark of 99.2 degrees recorded at 5:20 p. m.; his pulse was 94 instead of the 82 reported in the early bulletin. His respiration of 24 remained the same. "Real improvement may take four or five days," said Dr. Karl A. Meyer, chief of staff of the Cook County hospital. He arrived here this morning to aid the three local physicians who have been in attendance.

"We are hopeful, but there is no use deluding ourselves. Certain circumstances put the mayor's life in danger. The bullet pierced his right lung. He has been coughing up some blood. That means there always is danger of pneumonia developing.

"Also, the bullet passed through the mayor's clothing before imbedding itself in his body. That means a danger of infection which may not be evident for some time."

The heart condition mentioned in earlier bulletins is also considered sufficiently grave to cause anxiety.

Restrictions on Visitors.

All but the physicians and a few members of the family have been barred from the room where the mayor is fighting for his life, but a brief glimpse was afforded a reporter when the mayor whispered his message to his friends in Chicago.

The mayor lies propped in bed. His rugged features have a grayish pallor under the coating of bronze put there by the Florida sun. His eyes are half closed, his lips pallid. His hands are crossed on his abdomen. His breathing is slow and frequently he gasps. A nurse hovers over him constantly, watching for the occasional paroxysm of coughing. Twice he has coughed blood.

The reporter came away with an impression that the man in bed was extremely weak. Yet, in reports of his behavior given out at other times during the day, the physicians declared his condition was "satisfactory" and spoke of the mayor's cheerfulness.

Sons-in-Law Arrive.

Dr. Meyer and Dr. Frank Jirka, head of the Illinois state board of health, and the mayor's personal physician and son-in-law, went into the room as soon as they arrived this morning. They came here by plane and railroad and were accompanied by State Senator Richey V. Graham, another son-in-law, and William Haberkorn, sergeant at arms of the Illinois senate.

"The mayor's greeting was cheerful when we first went in," Dr. Jirka said. "He joked with us, saying that we were good sports to make the trip to see him. He said: 'The only time you doctors get a vacation is when I get sick. This time I had to get shot to get you to Florida.'"

Privately several physicians expressed their apprehensions. Their fears were shown in the phrase included in the early evening bulletin, which read:

"The period of watchful expectancy is to continue."

Anything May Happen.

Asked to explain this somewhat ambiguous phrase, Dr. Meyer said:

"It means we're watchful as before and expectant of anything. A crisis may develop or he may take a sudden turn for the better. Anything may happen."

In an ante-room sit the mayor's friends and members of his family, conversing in low tones, white faced, as they consider the catastrophe which has overtaken the man to whom they all looked for leadership and guidance.

Mrs. Helen Cermak Kenlay was the first of the mayor's daughters to reach his bedside. Tomorrow, his favorite, Vivian Graham, the grand-daughter who helped him campaign for the mayoralty, arrives with Mrs. Graham. Other visitors today were Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board, Harry Ash, former first assistant attorney general, and a host of others. None of these latter persons were admitted to the sick room.

Mrs. Kenlay said that the mayor asked for his grand-daughter, Mary Alyce Kenlay, 2 years old, and was told that she would arrive tomorrow. Mrs. Kenlay left the room in tears.

Calls Zangara Sane.

The mentality of Guiseppe Zangara, the Italian who fired five shots at President Elect Roosevelt Wednesday, wounding Mayor Cermak and four others while not injuring Mr. Roosevelt, occupied the attention of experts today. County Physician E. C. Thomas reported that Zangara was sane.

Dr. Thomas said the stomach pains which Zangara said drove him to the attempted assassination, were due to acute gastritis.

Zangara was arraigned at a brief hearing today which was continued until tomorrow to allow a sanity commission to examine him.

The well built, swarthy little man with the clear, black eyes, regular features, and bushy black hair, was nonchalant as he was brought into court. Three attorneys, appointed to represent him, said they were amazed at his lack of fear after they had talked to him.

"He's friendly and not antagonistic," said Louis M. Twyman, president of the County Bar association, one of those appointed. "He's a fatalist and an atheist and he doesn't seem to care what happens to him."

Mrs. Gill Likely to Die.

The probabilities tonight were that Mrs. Joseph H. Gill of Miami, also wounded by one of Zangara's shots, would die. A second blood transfusion was performed today in an effort to save her life, but she was reported to be sinking.

If she dies, of course, a charge of murder will be placed against Zangara with little doubt of his conviction and execution. He is charged at present with attempts to kill President Elect Roosevelt and the three less seriously wounded victims of his act, upon conviction of which he may be sentenced to a maximum of 80 years.

Explain Mystery Bullet.

During the day Ald. James B. Bowler of Chicago, who was with Mayor Cermak when the shooting occurred, cleared up a mystery that has puzzled the physicians and police for nearly forty-eight hours.

When the mayor was taken to the hospital and undressed a bullet fell from his clothing. As he had only one wound and the bullet that made it was lodged near the mayor's spine, it could not be determined where the loose one came from.

Today the alderman discovered that there was a small wisp of cloth on the lead pellet. He took it to the room of Miss Kruis and found that this wisp had come from her hat. It was then theorized, plausibly, that this bullet had struck Miss Kruis' hat and, after grazing her skull, had struck the mayor's collar, almost spent, and lodged there.

Flowers Fill Room.

Large numbers of floral pieces and bouquets have been received by the mayor — so many in fact that they overflowed his room and filled the corridor and adjoining sunroom.

Messages of condolence and sympathy continued to arrive. Among them were cablegrams from the Lord Mayor of Dublin, the mayor of Prague, Czechoslovakia, and the mayor of Posen, Poland, whom Mr. Cermak met on his European trip last year; and telegrams from Melvin A. Traylor, Chicago banker; the Belgian ambassador in Washington, and numerous personal friends.

PREACHER DECLARES ZANGARA THREATENED HIM IN LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Giuseppe Zangara, held at Miami for wounding members of President Elect Roosevelt's party, threatened to shoot the Rev. R. G. Grimth, Los Angeles street evangelist, in August, 1931, the preacher and Policeman C. O. Walker said today.

Grimth was preaching in a lot, he said, when the man then known to him as Zingara heckled him and pretended to aim a gun at him. The preacher called the policeman, who searched Zangara, but found no weapon.

"From the photographs, I take him to be the same man," the policeman said. The trouble started when Zangara became angered at the preacher's saying "Don't blame everything on Hoover."

FIND NO EVIDENCE THAT ZANGARA IS AN ANARCHIST

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Giuseppe Zangara, the undersized Italian who tried to assassinate President Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, a sick man and a malcontent because of his illness, acted alone, so far as police and U. S. investigators.

The two secret service men who went to Paterson left last evening, the Paterson police said today. As far as the police are concerned, their investigation has closed and no one in Paterson has been implicated.

Federal officials still are hoping to find something in Zangara's past which will permit cancellation of his citizenship and his deportation to Italy if he ever serves out the sentence that undoubtedly will be imposed on him.

So far they have found nothing. They have found no previous criminal record and no affiliation with any outlawed political faith which would permit them to void the naturalization papers he obtained on Sept. 11, 1929.

The picture of Zangara pieced together by the investigators was that of a man whose life was embittered by illness. He was an enrolled voter, but not so far as any one has learned, a communist or an anarchist.

No Fingerprint Record.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Giuseppe Zangara, would-be assassin of President Elect Roosevelt, has no criminal record in the United States.

Zangara's fingerprints were received today by officials of the department of justice and carefully checked against the 3,000,000 criminal prints on file in the United States bureau of investigation. The check failed to disclose any prints on record identical to those of the man who attempted the life of Mr. Roosevelt and seriously wounded Mayor Cermak of Chicago.

ITALY FAILS TO FIND RECORD OF U. S. ASSASSIN

ROME, Feb. 17.—(AP)—Official searches in eastern and southern Italy have thus far failed to disclose any record of Giuseppe Zangara, who fired five shots at President Elect Roosevelt in Miami, Fla., Wednesday. Zangara told Miami police he was a native of Italy and tried to assassinate King Victor Emmanuel ten years ago.

A Giuseppe Zangara was found working in Campobasso and a woman named Zangara in the nearby town of Ferrazzano, as well as several Zingaros. All denied knowing the assassin.

Ferrazzano is in Abruzzi, the state east of Rome. Ferrulzano, Calabria, in the toe of the Italian peninsula, was given in a report from the United States as Zangara's home town, but the newspaper Piccolo said today it had learned his father was living at Ferrazzano. The American consulate at Naples found no authorization for Zangara's emigration in 1923, nor did the consulate at Rome, whose district includes Ferrazzano, have any record of him.

MRS. ROOSEVELT BACK AT WORK IN HER OFFICE

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt returned to her home on 65th street early this morning from Ithaca, where she spoke to 3,000 people at Cornell university yesterday afternoon. She arrived at the house accompanied only by her secretary, had breakfast, changed her clothes, then hailed a taxicab and ordered the chauffeur to drive to her office in the Prudence building.

She expected to be busy at the office all day, her secretary said. Her appointment book listed visitors for every minute of the time.

Mrs. Roosevelt was unguarded in her movements today, although it was announced by the treasury department in Washington last night that a guard would be provided for her at once. At her Prudence building office only her secretary acted as the buffer between her and the public.

BURGLARS LOOT HOME.

Maurice P. Kosner reported to police yesterday that his second floor apartment at 3003 Lyndale avenue had been looted by burglars of clothing and jewelry valued at more than $2,500.

ROOSEVELT BACK IN NEW YORK CITY FROM SOUTHLAND

Heavy Guards Are Posted at Train Stops.

New York, Feb. 17—[Special.]—President Elect Roosevelt came home to New York tonight after a swift journey from the southland during all of which extraordinary protective measures were taken to guard against any further attempts upon his life.

Although Mr. Roosevelt has expressed a desire that the Miami affair be forgotten, and he has indicated that he will in no way curtail his public appearances, all along the way north today heavy guards were established at all train stops.

The police were particularly active in Mayor Frank Hague's Jersey City, where Mr. Roosevelt left his train, was loaded in an automobile and ferried across the Hudson to New York City.

Many Policemen on Duty.

Mayor Hague, who has never ceased —since Mr. Roosevelt's nomination, but not before—to boast of his friendship for the President elect, must have had nearly the whole Jersey police force at the terminal.

After the President elect was put in his own automobile from the train, the stalwart Jersey policemen formed a cordon around the car, forty in front, twenty on each side, and sixty behind, and marched down the platform and all the way on to the ferry boat.

"Now let an assassinator get near him," boasted Mayor Hague, as he surveyed the scene with apparent satisfaction.

Roosevelt Is Shielded.

On the New York side it was not quite so bad, although at least a thousand policemen were on duty at the ferry house and for many blocks along the President elect's way to his home at 49 East 65th street. The large crowd of citizens who came to the ferry terminal at New York caught no glimpse of the President elect because four secret service men rode on each running board of his car, completely shielding him from view.

At Washington, where the President elect's train stopped for ten minutes, police refused to permit any of the large crowd which had come to see Mr. Roosevelt to enter the train shed, and reporters and photographers had difficulty breaking through the deadliness established.

Capt. John Moran, chief of the United States secret service, boarded the train at Washington for a short conference with Mr. Roosevelt on plans for increasing his protection.

Three Senators on Train.

On his trip north Mr. Roosevelt had brief interviews aboard the train with three United States senators who have been slated for places in the Roosevelt cabinet.

Principal among them was Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, whose hesitance about accepting the secretaryship of the treasury has seriously impeded the President elect's cabinet selection program.

It was stated definitely after Senator Glass' conference today with Mr. Roosevelt that the senator had repeated his unwillingness to take the post, but that he had agreed to take "two or three" more days to think it over.

Asked after his conference with Senator Glass if he had promised to exert influence for the bill, Mr. Roosevelt replied: "If I had I wouldn't tell you."

Hull Also on Train.

Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee, who is slated for secretary of state, boarded the Roosevelt train at Richmond and rode as far as Washington. It is understood that if Senator Glass finally refuses the treasury post, it will be given to Senator Hull, which would leave the secretaryship of state still up in the air.

The third senator to come aboard was Bronson Cutting of New Mexico, radical, who, it is believed, will accept the secretaryship of the interior. He has been undecided because of a reluctance to leave the senate.

From a close source it was learned that Mr. Roosevelt is highly pleased over the adoption of the prohibition repeal resolution in the senate yesterday, and that he hopes the resolution will be approved also in the house. He was reported of the opinion that the resolution in its present form, stripped of the complicating features in which it was first reported to the senate, conforms with the pledge in the Democratic platform. Mr. Roosevelt felt that the original resolution did not comply with the platform pledge.

Tonight the governor attended a Masonic meeting at which his second son, Elliott Roosevelt, was to be inducted into the third degree of Masonry.

Mayors Want U. S. Loans to Pay Cities' Teachers

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Legislation to enable Chicago and other large cities to borrow directly from the federal government, to pay school teachers and other municipal employes, was approved today by a conference of forty mayors meeting here under the leadership of Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit. It will be presented to the senate banking and currency committee tomorrow with a plea for immediate action.

The proposed legislation is in the form of an amendment to the Reconstruction Finance corporation act, under which the federal credit agency would be authorized to accept tax warrants and municipal bonds and notes as collateral for loans to cities.

Seeks More Relief Funds.

Meanwhile on Capitol hill the senate has under consideration the Costigan relief bill calling for an additional appropriation of 500 million dollars for direct relief advances to states through the finance corporation. An amendment to loosen up the present restrictions on loans for self-liquidating projects, offered by Senator Robert F. Wagner (Dem., N. Y.), was adopted late in the session.

Not only does Senator Wagner's amendment broaden the self-liquidating section of the finance corporation act to include public construction projects which "are needful and in the public interest," but it likewise stipulates that the rate of interest charged for construction loans may not be more than one-half of one per cent higher than the rate established for the last issue of government bonds preceding the loan. The Wagner amendment also broadens the corporation's power to make loans to finance the exportation of agricultural surpluses and provides that five million dollars of the finance agency's funds shall be made available to credit insurance organizations for providing export credit guarantees.

Represents Mayor Cermak.

Chicago City Controller M. D. Szymczak, who is representing Mayor Cermak at the mayors' conference, stated that all of Chicago's needs can be met if the legislation proposed by the conference is enacted. Mr. Szymczak told the conference today that only the depressed conditions in financial to seek federal aid at this time. The circles make it necessary for Chicago tax situation, he said, is now shaping up very favorably with prospects that a major portion of the back taxes soon will be collected.

The need, he said, however, is for a continuous bond market where the cities can raise capital during the present economic depression. Such a continuous market, he believed, would be found in the Reconstruction Finance corporation, if the proposed amendment were adopted.

The mayors stood for a moment in silent prayer for Mayor Cermak, who lies in a Miami hospital wounded by an assassin's bullet intended for President Elect Roosevelt. Later the conference further honored the Chicago mayor by electing him trustee of a national mayors' organization formed today.

Other Chicagoans There.

In addition to Mr. Szymczak, other Chicagoans at the conference were Paul Betters, executive director of the American Municipal association; Robert C. Keenan of the Illinois State Teachers' association; William Welsh, and Charles Stillman, president of the joint conference of principals and teachers.

Mayors Daniel W. Hoan of Milwaukee, William J. Hoan of Fort Wayne, Nos D. Karel of Grand Rapids, and S. L. Morgan of Flint also were at the conference.

RETURN SUICIDE VERDICT.

A verdict of suicide was returned yesterday at the inquest into the death of Leo Novatsky, 49 years old, who shot and killed himself in his room at the Elm Park hotel, 1527 Wicker Park avenue, after attending the wedding of his daughter.

INTRODUCE BILL TO EXPEL JESUITS IN JUGO-SLAVIA

BELGRADE, Feb. 17.—(AP)—A bill to expel all Jesuits from Jugo-Slavia was introduced in parliament today by a group of 56 deputies. If it becomes law it will mean the Jesuits must choose between leaving the country within 48 hours or going into internment on an island in the Adriatic.

It was generally believed that the bill would not command enough votes for passage, but it was significant as another revelation of the tension between orthodox Serbia and Catholic Croatia and Slovenia.

CHINA GETS JAP ULTIMATUM TO QUIT JEHOL CITY

Threaten Attack; Peiping to Ignore Demand.

PEIPING, Feb. 18.—[Saturday]—(AP)—Japan today sent an ultimatum to the Chinese commander at Kailu, in northeast Jehol, demanding the immediate evacuation of the city.

This was announced in an official Chinese communique, which added that if the ultimatum were not obeyed the Japanese would attack Kailu, a strategic point in the province which Japan claims as part of Manchukuo.

The Chinese have decided to ignore the demand, the announcement said.

Meanwhile, Japanese troop movements continue and the crisis in Jehol seemed imminent.

Japs Spurn League Report.

GENEVA, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The league of nations told the world today over its own wireless station of the plan of its leaders for a pronouncement of solemn censure upon Japan for its military action against China and for a peaceful settlement of the conflict in the far east.

Yosuke Matsuoka, special counsel for Japan, announced less than an hour after publication of the league's proposals that his government would not accept them.

"There never was any question of Japan's accepting the report," he said. "To protect Manchukuo we must possess the chief town of Jehol. The only way to get peace is for the Chinese to withdraw their troops from Jehol.

Sneers at Chinese.

"We will fight if we have to. I have heard that there are 180,000 Chinese troops in Jehol, but one Japanese is worth ten Chinese. All Chinese soldiers are bandits."

Matsuoka declined to answer questions concerning Japan's plans for withdrawal from the league, saying he had received no instructions to withdraw.

"Nobody in the league wants Japan to leave," he said, "and Japan does not want to leave, but if the league creates certain circumstances, the league may compel Japan to leave."

Chinese spokesmen accepted the league's settlement proposals as vindication of their nation's policy.

Upholds Chinese Sovereignty.

The settlement plan, drawn up by the representatives of the 19 principal league powers, is embodied in a report which will be presented to the league assembly next week with every prospect of the full approval of all members except Tokio.

Reaffirming China's right to sovereignty over Manchuria, the report repeats the Lytton commission's conclusion that the Japanese military activities in Manchuria have not been legitimate self-defense, and it recommends the early evacuation of Japanese troops.

To seek a solution of the eastern problem, the report proposes negotiations between China and Japan, with the league powers and the United States and Russia participating in the role of assistant and umpire.

Declares Against Recognition.

Meanwhile, the report would engage the signatory powers not to recognize the state of Manchukuo in law or in fact, and to continue to deal with the problem in concert with other nations, league members and nonleague members.

Other than this program of nonrecognition and noncooperation, the report proposes no measures for coercing Japan if the Tokio government formally refuses to accept the recommendations. Adoption of further measures at this stage to insure execution of the league's will, leaders assert, would amount to uttering a threat. They consider that Japan's reaction to the report must be made clear before further steps are planned.

After adoption of the report by the assembly, three months are allowed under the league covenant for acceptance or rejection.

Jap Cabinet Maps Course.

TOKIO, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The conflict with the league of nations over Japan's Manchurian policy was the subject of a cabinet meeting today at which it was understood the ministers decided to withdraw the Japanese delegate from Geneva if the league assembly adopts the report censuring Japan. Four decisions reached by the cabinet were reported as follows:

1. To reject the league's recommendations in the Manchurian situation.
2. To maintain the attitude set forth in Japan's observations on the Lytton commission's report, especially regarding recognition of Manchukuo and the stand for direct negotiations with China without outside intervention.
3. To issue a counter-statement if the league assembly adopts the recommendations prepared for it.
4. To instruct the Japanese delegate to vote against the league report and, in event of its adoption, to withdraw either to London or Paris to await further developments.

SETTLE SUIT OVER DOG BITE

MRS. MYRTLE SCHWENGEL.

MRS. GERTRUDE KEMPER.

One Bite "Legal"

The perils of dog walking in the quiet suburb of Glencoe were described yesterday to Judge Walter T. Stanton in the Superior court, when the suit of Mrs. Myrtle Schwengel against Mrs. Gertrude Kemper for $492 medical expenses was called for trial. The suit was settled when the defendant agreed to pay Mrs. Schwengel $246—one-half of the bill.

Mrs. Schwengel is the wife of Frank R. Schwengel, advertising executive and brigadier general of the 58th field artillery brigade, Illinois National Guard. They live at 191 Park avenue, Glencoe. Mrs. Kemper and her husband, Frank S. Kemper, president of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company, live across the street, at 210 Park avenue.

Mrs. Schwengel and Mrs. Kemper both have chow dogs. On May 6, 1930, they were walking the dogs in the neighborhood and the two animals tangled in a fight. In separating them Mrs. Schwengel was bitten on the hand by Mrs. Kemper's chow.

Attorney John V. Clinnin, chairman of the state boxing commission, represented Mrs. Schwengel, and Attorney John A. Bloomingston, Mrs. Kemper, at the trial.

"You gentlemen know," Judge Stanton reminded them in suggesting a settlement, "that to collect damages in a case like this it must be proved that the offending dog is vicious. It has also been held by the Supreme court that every dog is entitled to one bite. Mrs. Kemper's chow cannot be held to be a vicious dog if Mrs. Schwengel is the only person he has ever attacked."

WOMAN TRAPS RAPE SUSPECT IN CITY HALL

Every day except Sundays since Feb. 2, Mrs. Helen Reiter of 6112 South Kedvale avenue, has been doing detective work in the city hall. Late yesterday she got her man. He is Charles J. Polanek, 34 years old, 1538 North Homan avenue, and he was locked up in a cell at the detective bureau, charged with attempted rape.

According to Mrs. Reiter, Polanek offered to assist her when she went to the city hall on Feb. 2 to purchase an automobile license. After the license was obtained, she said, he seized her in a corridor of the second floor and attempted to attack her. She added that she fought off his attempt and he fled.

Her husband, Gustav, suggested that she go to the city hall every day, find the man and have him arrested. Polanek said that he was a Democratic precinct captain in the 31st ward and that he was employed as a counter clerk in the county treasurer's office. He denied that he tried to attack Mrs. Reiter.

North Western's Train '13' Loses Lucky (?) Number

This looks like a case for the Anti-Superstition society. The Chicago and North Western railroad has decided to change the number of its crack Chicago-Denver train, the Columbine, from 13 to 11. R. Thomson, passenger traffic manager, said travelers frequently object to riding a train so numbered, and so it has been decided to "give fate a fair trial in 1933." The change in numbers takes effect tomorrow.

SETS HOUSE ON FIRE; INSANE.

Frank H. Mullin, 69 years old, who set fire to the home of his sister at 8456 East End avenue, was found insane by a jury yesterday and committed to the state hospital for the insane by Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court.

PREDICT HOUSE WILL VOTE DRY REPEAL MONDAY

Democrat Caucus Agrees to Back Measure.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The drive to put national prohibition repeal squarely up to the states slashed forward at increased speed today. House Democrats, meeting in secret caucus, bound themselves to vote as a unit for prohibition repeal on Monday, when the Blaine repealer comes up under suspension of the rules. House Republican wets meet tomorrow to line up their full strength back of the Blaine resolution submitting repeal to state conventions. It provides federal protection for dry states, but does not ban the saloon.

As house wets sped up the rout of the drys, senate wets took steps looking towards redemption of the second part of the Democratic campaign pledge—that of giving the country beer pending the complete unshackling of national prohibition from the constitution. Efforts were made to arrange for action on the Blaine-Collier 3.05 beer and wine bill before March 4. Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], one of the main sponsors of the measure, said he believed the chances were good for its passage.

Five Years to Repeal Law.

At the conclusion of today's wet activities Democratic and Republican leaders predicted approval of the repeal resolution by a margin of at least twenty votes over the required two-thirds. Majority Leader Henry T. Rainey, veteran Illinois legislator, said the Democrats would run up twenty more votes than on the opening day of the session, when a naked repeal resolution lost by a margin of six votes. He predicted the Republicans would add ten votes to the total cast for the earlier repeal motion, bringing the total gain up to thirty and the total repeal vote to above 300.

Approval of the Blaine repealer would put repeal of the eighteenth amendment in the hands of the states by a week from next Monday. Once passed by the house the resolution would be signed by Vice President Curtis and Speaker John N. Garner, then it would go to the state department for transmission to the states.

While some wets predict the amendment will be repealed in two years, the wets will have five years to obtain approval of the necessary three-fourths of the states.

Congress May Pass Enabling Act.

The states will be pioneering when they arrange for ratification by state conventions. There are no federal restrictions and in arranging for the calling of state constitutional conventions, the state legislatures can write their own tickets and set out their own rules of procedure.

Congressional wets said today that if there is any disposition by any considerable number of state executives or legislatures to refuse to call conventions through which the people will express their views on repeal, congress will push through an enabling act arranging for the calling of the conventions.

Bitter Fight in Secret.

The decision by house Democrats to bind themselves to vote en bloc for the Blaine repealer climaxed a protracted and bitter fight behind closed doors, at which diehard drys fought to the last ditch against repeal. When the vote was announced it was found that 116 had voted to pledge the Democrats to repeal and 46 had voted in the negative. A two-thirds vote having been received, the chairman announced that all Democratic members of the house, except those excused, were bound to vote for the repealer.

Under the Democratic caucus rules any representative who was pledged to his constituency to vote dry was excused from voting with his party majority. Thirty members at once arose, asked for and received consent to vote dry Monday.

There are at present 220 Democrats in the house out of a total house membership of 435. There are 206 Republicans, one Farmer-Laborite, and eight vacancies. A total of 284 votes, representing a two-thirds majority, is necessary to pass the repealer.

Majority Leader Rainey said he expected to give the repealer not less than 188 Democratic votes. He anticipated Minority Leader Bertrand H. Snell [Rep., N. Y.] would line up 113 Republican votes, bringing the total to 301. On Dec. 5 naked repeal lost by six votes.

"The repeal resolution will be adopted," Mr. Rainey said. "We lost before largely through five lame duck dry votes. We have more than made up the loss."

LEAGUE BID FOR U. S. HELP IS PUT UP TO ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Whether the United States will accept an invitation from the league of nations to join the committee of nineteen which is endeavoring to conciliate China and Japan is a problem for the incoming President.

The invitation probably will be extended on Feb. 28, when the league assembly is expected to approve the report of the conciliation committee, made public at Geneva today.

Although President-Elect Roosevelt has announced a policy of defending the sanctity of treaties, it is not known whether he will follow the same course as the Hoover administration in dealing with the Manchurian situation.

Senator Swanson of Virginia, ranking Democrat and probably next chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, said the league committee's report is "too delicate" a question for him to comment upon at this time and indicated that such an important problem in foreign relations must be passed on by President Roosevelt.

Daughter Fires House by Accident; Father Dies

Thomas McDonough, 44 years old, died this morning in the Alexian Brothers hospital of burns suffered from a fire in his home at 1129 Felton court yesterday. Police said they believed the fire was caused by McDonough's young daughter, Dorothy, striking a match in a clothes closet. The child fled to safety. Firemen carried out her father.

SWITCHMAN DROPS DEAD.

Fred Schultz, 59 years old, a switchman for the Nickel Plate railroad, died of heart disease yesterday in the yards at 87th street and Kenwood avenue.

BILL IN IOWA SENATE PAVES THE WAY FOR PROHIBITION REPEAL

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Senator Joe R. Fralley [Rep., Fort Madison], today introduced a resolution to pave the way for Iowa prohibition repeal.

His resolution asks appointment of a committee of four each in the senate and house to bring in bills to meet any needs set up by congressional action.

The legislature already has before it a proposal to provide for a state constitutional convention to consider ratification of repeal of the 18th amendment if congress submits the question.

INDIANA MEASURE LEGALIZING BEER COMES UP TODAY

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The Democratic administration's bill to legalize beer, with new concessions to "home brewers," clubs, and drug stores and reducing certain license fees for manufacturers and retailers, is to be reported for passage tomorrow by the Indiana state senate's committee on public policy.

The amendments approved today provide that manufacture of beer or wine by an individual for use in his own home will not be prohibited; that the state excise director, referred to by critics as the "beer czar," be reappointed for a four year term; that members of clubs will not be limited in amount of consumption of beer on the premises.

They also provide that the tax on wort or liquid malt products used by home brewers be reduced from 60 cents a gallon to 3 cents; that license fees for resort hotels be reduced from $200 to $100; that brewers' license fees be reduced from $3,000 to $2,000.

Wyoming Beer, Dry Repeal Bills Now Up to Governor

Cheyenne, Wyo., Feb. 17.—(AP)—The Wyoming senate today concurred in house amendments to bills legalizing four per cent beer and repealing the state's dry enforcement acts. The measures now go to Gov. Leslie Miller.

Oklahomans Oppose Submission.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 17.—(AP)—A resolution to submit prohibition repeal to Oklahoma voters was killed by the state house of representatives today.

WOMAN'S $7,500 VANISHES WITH 3 GYPSY "SEERS"

Chicago police were asked yesterday to help find three gypsy women who fleeced Mrs. Rose Schanda, 205 Richards street, Joliet, out of $7,500 on the promise of freeing her husband from prison. The husband, Frank, is serving 99 years for murder.

The gypsies met Mrs. Schanda last Monday and told her fortune for a fee of 50 cents. They said they could see that her husband was innocent. For a few dollars more, they said, they could see who was really the guilty man. For a still larger sum, they suggested, they could fix it so that even Mrs. Schanda could see the real slayer.

Mrs. Schanda, eager to see the man for whose crime she believed her husband to be serving a 99 year term came to Chicago on Thursday, withdrew the $7,500 and handed it over to the gypsy seers. Gypsies and money disappeared.

Mistaken for Burglar and Shot as He Enters Home

Frank Drogos, 21 years old, of 1942 North Fairfield avenue, was shot above the heart this morning when he entered the home of Theodore Speropulos, 45 years old, of 1820 Wabansia avenue, to collect an alleged debt. He was taken to the Bridewell hospital in a critical condition. Speropulos shot Drogos, mistaking him for a burglar. Drogos told police that a few months ago he cashed a bad check for $5.67 for Speropulos and entered the latter's home to get his money back. He absolved Speropulos of blame for the shooting.

TAX PAYMENTS IN 2 COUNTRY TOWNS UP 20%

Officials Cheered by Gain Over Last Year.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Cook county governments may find their most encouraging news in many months in reports obtained yesterday from township collectors in the three country towns where 1931 tax collections are farthest advanced.

Two of the collectors, W. B. Ross of Oak Park and H. E. MacNiven of River Forest, said that about 20 per cent more tax bills have been paid this year than were paid on the corresponding date after the collection of the 1930 levy was started last year. The third, Sanford Hale of New Trier township, said that his collections are coming in a trifle slower, but he blamed this upon the increased difficulty of handling payments in which tax warrants are offered, rather than upon unwillingness or inability of property owners to meet their bills.

Mr. Ross received his first payments on Saturday and up to yesterday 3,600 Oak Park real estate owners had paid their tax bills. In the first five days of collections of the 1930 levy, about 2,000 bills were paid.

Find Bills Must Be Paid.

"Last year," said Mr. Ross, "payments were slow because people weren't certain whether they were going to have to pay their bills. Taxpayers' associations were active in urging them not to pay, and there was talk of funding the tax levy. The principal reason why more are paying this year, in my opinion, is that all of that kind of talk is over and people know they will have to pay their bills."

Mr. MacNiven said that the increase in payments in River Forest was about the same as in Oak Park. He added that whereas tax bills are lower this year than the 1930 bills were, and taxpayers, for the first time in history, have to pay only half of their real estate taxes in this installment, he had received approximately as much money to date as he did in the same number of collection days last year.

This, Mr. MacNivan said, is due to the fact that 65 per cent of those who have paid have paid in full, although they need not pay the second half of their real estate tax until July 1. This is partly because taxpayers are not fully educated to the part payment plan, but principally because of the use of tax warrants in paying bills. The collector can give no change in applying a tax warrant to a bill, and in order to use their warrants, many people are finding that they must pay their whole bill at once.

Pay in Tax Warrants.

Mr. Hale estimated that 60 per cent of the payments he had received were for the full amount of the bill, instead of one-half. Wilmette, Glencoe and Kenilworth, as well as a number of the school districts in New Trier township, have issued tax warrants in small denominations, which home owners can apply on their tax bills of $200 to $500. One of Mr. Hale's assistants has to spend his full time calculating the interest on these warrants and making sure that the warrant offered is not for more than that share of his tax bill which the taxpayer presenting it owes the particular government which issued it.

The experience of the three country town collectors is scarcely considered a precise indication of the manner in which collections will proceed in Chicago. Oak Park, River Forest, and the various suburbs in New Trier township are among the wealthiest communities in the county, and the financial condition of their citizens is undoubtedly far above the average of Chicago residents.

See Collapse of Strike.

However, it is pointed out, the citizens of these suburbs certainly have no more money than they had when they got their 1930 bills a year ago, and the fact that their payments are coming in 20 per cent faster than they did last year would indicate that the tax strike is dying or dead in their communities and that those who have the money to meet their tax bills are meeting them this year.

Taxpayers who can pay their bills but won't will receive another blow today when County Judge Jarecki is expected to approve a blanket order dismissing every tax objection pending before him in the County court. These objections cover more than $130,000,000 in tax payments and have protected the property owners who filed them against forfeiture of their properties, although not against penalties for nonpayment accumulating at the rate of 1 per cent a month.

First Chicagoan to Pay.

Dr. Fred H. Brosnihan, a dentist living at 6246 University avenue, was the first Chicagoan to pay his 1931 tax bill. He appeared yesterday at the county treasurer's office and paid $259 the first installment of the bill on his home, which has an assessed valuation of $7,049.

Dr. Brosnihan's bill was mailed to him on Thursday in the first installment of Chicago bills sent out by County Treasurer McDonough.

Thirteen persons in all appeared at the treasurer's office yesterday and paid a total of $3,162 in taxes. Six of these paid their real estate bills in full.

During the day $235,706 in delinquent 1928, 1929, and 1930 taxes was paid.

The county treasurer temporarily stopped the sending of real estate tax bills to city township residents because the supply of printed pamphlets containing information concerning the payment of tax bills has been exhausted. The pamphlets are sent out with all bills. Printers have promised to have a new supply on hand by Monday morning.

Because of the computation of interest necessary when tax warrants are offered in a tax payment Mr. McDonough has established a special office at 6 North Clark street, where all payments involving warrants must be made. He warned taxpayers that because of the time necessary to handle such payments those who delay until just before March 1, the penalty date, may suffer inconvenience and delay in paying their bills, and he urged that warrant payments be made at once.

HYDE PARK FOLK FIND THEIR 1931 TAX BILLS LOWER

Property Owners Receive First Statements.

Property owners in the Hyde Park district began receiving their 1931 tax bills from County Treasurer McDonough's office yesterday. Since this tax is being collected in two installments, the first bill was for only half the annual levy.

Many of the south siders viewed their bills with satisfaction. Out of ten names selected at random from the tax books, eight persons found their bills lower than a year ago. Another taxpayer said his bill was about the same as last year, while the tenth found his was slightly higher.

His Bill Cut 25 Per Cent.

The experience of William L. O'Connell, head of the new receivership bureau in State Auditor Barrett's office, was typical. Mr. O'Connell owns and lives in a two apartment building at 4418 Drexel boulevard. His bill, which came yesterday revealed his first installment was for $408.08, his total 1931 taxes being $816.16.

"I believe that represents a reduction of about 25 per cent under last year's bill," said Mr. O'Connell. "One reason I can assign for it is that for the 1930 levy the building was assessed at too high a valuation. It was estimated on the basis of a building only five years old, while this building is twenty years old."

John F. Lyon, 4066 Lake Park avenue, said his total bill this year is $158.50. He recalled his 1930 bill as in the neighborhood of $200. "So I am about $40 to the good," he said.

Other Reductions Made.

A reduction of about $30 was reported by William C. Carnes, 4078 Lake Park avenue. This year he will pay two installments for a total of $137.82. John Sedivec, 7322 Greenwood avenue, recalled that his 1930 bill was approximately $398. For 1931, it is $362.52.

M. J. Barry, 6315 Paxton avenue, owns a piece of property in 43d street on which his 1931 tax bill will total $265.73. "That is quite a reduction," he said. "I believe it is about $200 less than he paid for 1930."

Frank W. Burtis, 3967 Drexel boulevard, said his 1931 bill was about $250 less than he paid for 1930.

Mrs. Anna Stirling, 7400 Ellis avenue, said that her 1931 bill—for a total of $102.82—was "lots lower" than the 1930 levy, although she didn't recall the exact figure. "A little lower," was the comment of Mrs. Nathan Gorbien, 7440 Maryland avenue, regarding the $208.60 bill sent to her husband.

Peter S. Macaluso, 3942 Ellis avenue, said his $383.06 bill was "about the same" as the one he received for 1930. The one person called whose bill was higher was Mrs. Frank J. Renshaw, 3982 Ellis avenue, but she could not recall the exact amount of her 1930 bill.

ADVANCE PLANS FOR COMPLETING THREE SCHOOLS

The plan for starting work on several uncompleted school buildings were advanced yesterday at a conference between Howard P. Savage, business manager of the school system, and Patrick F. Sullivan, president of the Chicago Building Trades council. The work will be financed with tax anticipation warrants.

Mr. Sullivan promised to help but said contractors involved would have to join in the program before he would ask members of the various building unions to accept pay in warrants. The material supply concerns also will enter the negotiations. Three buildings chosen for completion under the plan and costs to complete each follow: New Lane Technical High school, $1,700,000; Senn Senior High school addition, $250,000, and the Smyser Elementary school, $50,000.

Should the plans materialize Mr. Savage estimates that 1,000 men would be put to work immediately.

Quebec Profits $9,300,372 from Liquor in 9 Months

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 17.—Profits of the Quebec liquor commission swelled the resources of the provincial government by $9,300,372 between Sept. 23, 1931, and June 30, 1932. This was announced tonight by R. F. Stockwell, provincial treasurer.

FIND SCHOOL HAS 16,000 BOOKS FOR ONLY 890 PUPILS

At the outset of their investigation of the school system yesterday the bureau of property control discovered 16,000 books in a school housing 890 elementary pupils, an average of 18 books for each pupil. Among those who participated in the inquiry were School Auditor Harry Brackett and Frank P. Sullivan, director of educational expenditures.

The school is La Salle, at 826 Eugenie street. The count was made by employes from the office of Howard P. Savage, business manager.

Mr. Sullivan explained that many of the books probably belonged to the school library and were not textbooks. He also said that the La Salle is 50 years old, and therefore a large accumulation of books is to be expected.

The bureau of property control was created recently by Mr. Savage and sanctioned by the board of education.

URGES HOTEL MEN TO KEEP UP FIGHT FOR LOWER TAXES

Theodore De Witt, newly appointed manager of Hotel La Salle, warned Illinois hotelmen yesterday that the battle to repeal the 18th amendment and to force government reduction of taxes "has just begun" and that if it is not successful the business structure of the country "will collapse."

He spoke at the opening session of the 33d annual joint convention of the Illinois and Chicago Hotel Associations in the Great Northern hotel.

"Prosperity can only get a start," he said, "by reduction of taxes. A way must be found to lift the oppressive burden from legitimate business and shift that burden to the tremendous army of illicit distillers, brewers, and bootleggers."

Passenger Trains Delayed by $50,000 La Porte Fire

La Porte, Ind., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Two eastbound New York Central passenger trains were tied up for more than an hour tonight when fire swept through the Leader Furniture Manufacturing company plant. The plant lies along the New York Central right of way, and to fight the blaze it was necessary to lay four hose lines across the tracks. A freight train was delayed in addition to the passenger trains. Fire Chief Albert Homann estimated the damage at $50,000.

GERMAN VOTERS AT SEA; HITLER OR A MONARCHY?

Public Dazed by Cabinet's Conflicting Aims.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—Forty-five million German voters will face the most difficult election problem of their voting careers when they go to the polls on March 5 to elect a new reichstag and a new Prussian diet. They must choose between fourteen parties, most of which lack a clear program and drown the voter in a sea of sentimental, swashbuckling or utopian propaganda.

The German voter must decide whether or not he approves of the Hitler-Von Papen-Hugenberg government formed by President von Hindenburg, but to date the voter does not know what the government actually stands for. It has issued no concrete program beyond the statement that it wants four years to carry out its program for the "resurrection of Germany."

Aims Smack at Socialism.

Chancellor Adolf Hitler, Minister of the Interior William Frick, and Hermann Goering, minister without portfolio, are National Socialists. The party's aims smack of socialism. The official 25 point program still has three famous clauses. One reads:

"We demand abolition of incomes obtained without work and abolition of the slavery of paying interest."

Another says:

"We demand that all trusts be taken over by the state."

"We demand a real estate reform adapted to our national needs, creation of a law for confiscation of land for the good of the public, suppression of interest payable on land," reads the third.

And millions of German men and women have been dreaming of the day when Hitler would take over power, seize the estates of the junkers, and give this land to his followers to create new homesteads.

What Hugenberg Wants.

But now Hitler and his aids are in a government together with Franz von Papen and the Nationalist leader, Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, who for the last fourteen years helped the junkers to retain their land besides getting millions of the taxpayers' money as subsidies for them. Private ownership of plants, with subsidies to help trusts, has been the Hugenberg policy.

Hitler's program calls for povisions to take care of the aged and feeble. Hugenberg, on the contrary, has always combated social state insurance, alleging it undermines private initiative.

Hitler wants a state in which professional chambers, inspired by the old guilds, should replace parliament, with the "state's citizens" determining the laws.

The voter wonders which of the two will be able to dictate his wishes to the cabinet.

If the voter supports Hitler, he may find Hitler outmaneuvered by Von Papen and Hugenberg on vital issues. If he chooses Hugenberg, he may find Hugenberg yielding to Hitler.

Hitlerites Head List.

Hitlerites head the list of parties bidding for votes. Socialists are second. They indorsed Von Hindenburg for president and fought for his election. Then the president ousted his republican chancellor, Heinrich Bruening, a Catholic Centrist and turned to Von Papen and his junker friends, and now to Hitler. Socialist leaders must do a lot of explaining to their voters why Von Hinderburg, the man elected by labor, turned away from it.

Socialists and communists are beginning to fraternize again under the influence of this new nationwide rift. Should the Hitler government prohibit the communist party, Socialists expect the Reds to flock to them.

RICH LANDOWNER OFFERS SPAIN 'ALL HIS HOLDINGS

His possessions, including tobacco, sugar, wheat, and corn lands, are valued at more than 10,000,000 pasetas ($800,000 at the present depreciated rate).

The offer was considered surprising because he is generally recognized as a close friend of former King Alfonso, who was ousted when the republican government was set up.

Music Teacher Is Found Guilty of Attempted Rape

Charles Dobson, 45 years old, 434 Oakdale avenue, a music teacher, was found guilty yesterday by a jury before Judge Harry Lewis of the Criminal court on a charge of attempted rape. The penalty was fixed at one to fourteen years in prison. The state charged that Dobson forced Roberta Schulski, 19 years old, 2049 Division street, into his automobile Jan. 15. Policeman Robert Schmidt testified that he found the girl in Dobson's car at Southport and Belmont avenues, her clothing torn and her face bruised. Dobson denied the charge.

ALLMAN MOVES TO ENFORCE BAN ON HARD TIRES

Truck Operators Ready to Seek Injunction.

BY HAL FOUST.

Police Commissioner Allman announced yesterday that he was preparing a general order for the enforcement of a statute prohibiting the use of hard tires on motor vehicles driven faster than ten miles an hour. The commissioner earlier in the day received an opinion from the Illinois attorney general's office holding that the ban applied to the streets of municipalities as well as to rural highways.

Truck operators have indicated that they will go into court to seek injunctions as soon as the first arrests are made. They are preparing to attack the validity of the statute on the allegation that it constitutes confiscation of property without compensation.

Adopted by 1931 Legislature.

The tire law was enacted by the 1931 legislature, to become effective on Jan. 1, 1933. Truck operators were given 18 months to change their equipment.

Due mainly to the depression, there are still many large trucks operated in Chicago without pneumatic tires, although research engineers have found that the cushioned wheels are an economy to the vehicle owners themselves. The natural laws of economics during the last five years have greatly reduced the use of hard tires.

The ban was adopted by the legislature, however, not to aid the truck owners, but to protect the public's investments in pavements. Evidence was presented to the general assembly showing that the heavy vehicles without pneumatic tires were cracking rural slabs and rutting city streets.

No Arrests Made Yet.

Although the statute was effective on Jan. 1, no arrests have been made to date, insofar as could be learned last night. The state highway police received orders from Acting Chief Lawrence Taylor last week to enforce the law, but there has been snow on the county roads since, making it difficult for a hard tired truck to travel faster than ten miles an hour.

Leslie Sorenson, city traffic expert, pointed out yesterday that while this ten mile speed limit for hard tired vehicles may be necessary to save the pavements from crushing impacts, a speed this low is a hazard as well as an obstruction to normal traffic.

BRITAIN REVEALS IDENTITY OF MAN HELD IN TOWER

Army Officer Accused of Divulging Secrets.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The secret of the identity of the "prisoner" in the tower of London" was revealed tonight—officially by the war office. He is Lieut. N. Baillie-Stewart of the Seaforth Highlanders, one of the proudest regiments in the empire's service.

The war office statement said:

"This officer is in arrest in the tower of London charged under section 41 of the army act with having committed breaches of the official secrets acts, and the case is being proceeded with in accordance with the provisions of the army act and the rules of procedure thereunder."

Faces Court Martial.

"His trial by general court martial has been ordered, but the date of assembly of the court has not been fixed. The trial probably will take place on a date early in March, subject to the interests of Lieut. Baillie-Stewart and to the convenience of his legal advisers."

It is understood that Lieut. Baillie-Stewart, who has been a prisoner in the tower for nearly a month, left the Seaforth regiment, most of whose officers hold high social rank, to take the junior officers' course at Aldershot about six months ago. On Saturday, Jan. 21, he was questioned for several hours at the Aldershot Command headquarters. Later he was sent to the tower.

He was born in 1909, his father being a captain in a Punjab regiment. When he was 20 years old he changed his name by deeds poll [his own choice] to Baillie-Stewart. While attached to the first battalion of the Seaforth Highlanders at Dover in 1929, the lieutenant was one of a group of officers photographed with the prince of Wales.

Created Great Excitement.

The case of the "mysterious" prisoner excited such public interest that members of the house of commons planned to ask the government to make a public announcement concerning him next week.

Court Awards 'Million Dollar' Oak Park Baby to Her Father

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

The dispute over 3 year old Myrtle Fahrney Saemann, "million dollar baby," who is a great-grandchild of the patent medicine manufacturer, Peter Fahrney, was settled yesterday when Judge Daniel P. Trude ordered that custody of the child be transferred from the mother to the court.

The child is to remain in the home of her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Emery H. Fahrney at 400 North Euclid avenue, Oak Park, or in their summer home at Oshkosh, Wis., until May 15, he ruled. After that date the child is to live with her father, Franklin I. Saemann Jr., and his sister, Charlotte Saemann, 23 years old, in an apartment which he shall maintain in Oak Park or River Forest, according to the order of the court.

Excludes Other Relatives.

The order provides that, excepting Charlotte Saemann and the father of the child, "no other member of the family of either petitioner or respondent shall reside in such apartment."

The ruling also provides that "at any time hereafter when the respondent [the mother] shall have recovered from her illness, she shall have the right to the care, custody and control of the child." The order was agreed to by Attorney Frank E. Cantwell, representing the father, and by counsel for the mother, Myrtle Fahrney, who resumed her maiden name after being divorced by Saemann more than a year ago.

Sister Is Teacher.

Saemann, who said he lived at 429 Forest avenue, Oak Park, when he was not in New York, where he also has a surgical supply office, testified that his sister, Charlotte, was graduated from the University of Chicago with highest honors. She is now teaching in the Ballard school, Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. Fahrney, the grandmother, who is 45 years old, testified that her daughter, Myrtle, 26 years old, resided with the Fahrneys after Saemann was awarded a divorce on Dec. 31, 1931, until last April, when she was taken to a hospital where she remained six months.

The child's mother is now living in an apartment with a companion under her physician's orders. She was unable to come to court to testify.

PERUVIANS SEEK TO JOIN ARMY TO FIGHT COLOMBIA

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 17.—(AP)—An official government announcement today said that "great patriotic excitement" prevails in Peruvian provinces concerning the Leticia difficulties with Colombia.

Large numbers of volunteers, it was added, were seeking admission to Peruvian forces, but no reserves had been called to arms so far.

A statement has been forwarded to Geneva informing the League of Nations that Colombia was the aggressor in the engagement at Tarapaca last Tuesday, having attacked after delivering an ultimatum demanding evacuation of the town.

SENATE DEBATE REVEALS STAND AGAINST SLASH

Lawmakers Still Clinging to Patronage.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Why congress cannot be relied upon to abolish useless activities of the federal government and the jobs of the bureaucrats, is revealed by the consideration of the appropriation bills in both houses.

Take, for example, the mint at Carson City, Nev., and the assay offices at Boise, Idaho; Helena, Mont., and Salt Lake City, Utah. They are as nonessential as are the superfluous army posts and navy yards which congress perpetuates for the "pork" there is therein for politicians and communities.

Every Year the Same.

Every year a little farce revolving around the mint and three assay offices is staged in congress. Because they are superfluous the house declines to appropriate for their continuation. The bill then goes to the senate, which regularly restores them to the bill. Then the house accepts the amendment. The Nevada mint and the assay offices are saved to their communities and the patronage to the senators of the respective states. This has been going on for a decade or more.

Because "we have an economical streak on" Senator George W. Norris [Radical, Neb.] felt constrained to remonstrate when the senate restored the four offices to the 1934 treasury appropriation bill. Senator Tasker L. Oddie [Rep., Nev.], anticipating trouble, had armed himself with a telegram from E. T. Clyde, director of the Nevada mint, reporting that demands of gold miners for assays had doubled in the last six months.

Senator Names Employés.

Mr. Norris elicited from Mr. Oddie the information that there were two employés of the Nevada office, both named by Mr. Oddie, who, however, will be succeeded by a Democrat on March 4.

"The senator," said Mr. Norris, "named the fellow who is there now and the Democrats will name the next fellow, so it evens up all right, and the taxpayers pay the bill. When it comes to a few little offices like this, we continue to support them while the people all around are yelling 'economy,' and we are all saying 'Amen.' Why do we not practice what we preach?"

Mr. Norris thought that if any economy were to be achieved senators will "have to give up some of this patronage." Mr. Oddie contended the offices had been restored to the bill because "it is extravagance to cut them out; there is a necessity for these offices; they help the small prospectors. The west needs more mining development and the world needs more gold."

Norris Makes Reply.

Mr. Norris suggested that "all we will have to do will be to add four or five hundred more assay offices and the gold will come in till we stop it by main force."

Senator Burton K. Wheeler [Radical Dem., Mont.], springing to the defense of the Helena assay office, called it "perfectly silly and absurd" to say that patronage was mainly involved. That riled Mr. Norris, who hotly retorted that "we all know these little assay offices and land offices are often kept in existence solely as a matter of patronage. I have seen land offices in my section of the country disappear but never without the man who held the office objecting to its disappearance."

Senator Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.] pleaded for the four offices, citing figures that the business of the Helena establishment had increased 100 per cent recently. "If we are going in for economy," he said, "opportunities in abundance will be presented instead of taking away these little assay offices which exist merely for the purpose of giving employment to most deserving men, who, in addition to making their own living out of the thing, bring to the attention of investors properties that may be of inestimable value to the whole country, and particularly at this time, when the desire to increase the amount of gold ought to be in the mind of every citizen."

No Charge Made.

"Do these assay offices make a charge to prospectors for their services?" inquired Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.].

"No; they do not," Senator Walsh answered. "It was conceived to be in the interest of the government to promote the bringing of gold and silver into assay offices for monetary use."

Thereupon the senate restored the four offices to the bill by voice vote, the appropriation being increased $25,000 thereby.

IRELAND ARRESTS MILITARY HEADS; COUP SUSPECTED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Feb. 17.—Citizens are speculating over the arrest tonight of two prominent men for violation of the "official secrets" act. One theory is that the arrests followed discovery of a plot to overthrow President Eamon de Valera's government and another that they related to communist activities in the Free State.

The arrested men are Inspector William O'Connel of the civic guards headquarters staff and Col. George Hogan, an army officer and brother of Patrick Hogan, former minister of agriculture and a supporter of former President William T. Cosgrave. Col. Hogan was prominent in the Anglo-Irish treaty struggle and supported the treaty. He recently returned from a health trip to Switzerland.

O'Connel and Hogan were arraigned on six counts. They pleaded not guilty and were remanded in custody until tomorrow. The nature of the documents presented in support of the charges was not revealed.

SALES PRESENT CAR ROBBERY.

Special Policeman J. W. Cosberly of the Pennsylvania railroad yesterday fired a half dozen shots at seven hoodlums as they tried to force the door of a box car on a moving freight train at 55th street and Stewart avenue. The men leaped from the car and escaped.

ANGELINA CAPUTO.

Carmen Moore, 33 years old, and his brother, Douglas, 35 years old, arrested at 833 Lakeside place on police information, were identified yesterday as the bandit companions of Ray Blackmer, who is alleged to have shot and seriously wounded Lincoln Park Policeman Edward Johnson during a holdup Sunday of a grocery store at 521 Diversey parkway. The Moore brothers and Blackmer were identified by 35 robbery victims in a showup at the Summerdale police station. Miss Angelina Caputo, 20 years old, of 1118 North Monticello avenue, who police said is Blackmer's sweetheart, was arrested yesterday. She admitted being with the trio when they shot Johnson.

2 FOUND GUILTY OF TERRORISM IN DYEING INDUSTRY

Louis [The Louse] Clementi and Philip Mangano, west side hoodlums, were found guilty by a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Thomas J. Lynch yesterday afternoon on charges of conspiracy growing out of terrorism in the cleaning and dyeing industry.

The jury, which deliberated only an hour and a quarter, chose the most severe of three possible verdicts. The convictions automatically impose sentences of one to five years in Joliet penitentiary and $2,000 fines.

Hearing on a motion for a new trial was set for Feb. 25. Motion that the bonds of $10,000 each, on which the defendants are at liberty, be doubled was denied by Judge Lynch.

Recall Killing of Witness.

Prosecutors Charles Mueller and Leonard Mandell, in arguing for the bond increase, stressed the fact that Philip Rosenberg, one of the officials of the International Cleaners, was slain after the indictments were returned against Clementi and Mangano. Rosenberg was on his way to the office of State's Attorney Swanson to give evidence against terrorists when he was shot to death in 1931.

The verdict was returned in a courtroom crowded with policeman assigned to halt any outbreak or demonstration. Clementi and Mangano, a cousin of "Dago Lawrence" Mangano, were arrested after four hoodlums entered a garage used by the International Dyers and Cleaners, 2810 South State street, Oct. 11, 1931, and wrecked four trucks.

Describes Terrorism.

Harry Alpert, manager of the International Cleaners and Dyers, testified for the state during the trial that a difference with the union had caused a strike to be called against him.

"Then," he testified, "my trouble started. Our trucks were wrecked, our drivers beaten, and acid thrown on our clothing."

Alpert was followed on the witness stand by three drivers for the International Cleaners. They identified Mangano and Clementi as hoodlums who slugged them during the trouble with the union.

Assistant State's Attorney Steve Adamowski made the closing argument for the state. Albert Filetti was the defense attorney.

TIED AND ROBBED IN HOME; CHASES BANDITS; 1 SHOT

One of three alleged bandits was shot in the arm and captured this morning because of the quickness of their victim, Arthur J. Gillette, 1114 Ardmore avenue, a garage owner.

The three robbers entered his home, tied him, and left with $24, his coat, and a mandolin. Gillette freed himself the moment they left, ran downstairs, and started after them in his automobile. The bandits were less than half a block away in their car at the time.

At Argyle street and Sheridan road Gillette picked up Lincoln Park Policeman Henry Larson, and together they trailed the bandits. At Leland avenue the men abandoned their car and fled on foot. Larson fired, hitting one. This man identified himself as Charles Gunther, 40 years old, of 2505 Broadway.

BALANCE BUDGET AND FARM CROPS, HOUSTON URGES

Key to Recovery, He Tells Senate Committee.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—David F. Houston, secretary successively of both agriculture and the treasury in Woodrow Wilson's cabinet, walked into the senate finance committee's depression clinic today and pulled out two pills which, he insisted, America must swallow if she wants to get well.

One pill—concocted from his experience with the treasury department—was for the government. Its familiar label read:

One Directed to Farmer.

The other pill—developed from his work in the department of agriculture—was for the farmer. It directed him to:

"Balance the crops."

Of the first remedy, the doctor didn't have much to say. Simply that it was good medicine, and he supposed everybody by now realized that it was necessary medicine.

Of the second remedy, he had this to say:

"If every farmer would do what the best farmer does, that is, be self-sufficient, agriculture would be a lot better off than it is today. Balanced farming is the answer. We, in the department of agriculture, tried to work out such a plan just before the war. The war sent the plan into the discard. It ought to be brought out now, immediately."

Opposes Inflation.

Then he produced figures to show how much more self-sustaining is the middlewest farmer with his chickens and eggs, his dairy cattle and his hogs, than is the farmer in the Carolinas, who has to buy most of his own food.

There must be no monetary inflation. It would be the "quickest way to precipitate a panic." Its danger is so great that "we'd have a panic that'd make the present one look like 30 cents."

"By hook or crook, we must get a better banking system." The former secretary of the treasury was emphatic on this point, saying, "I can't see why this nation hasn't enough intelligence to establish a banking system for the small depositor."

Questioned by the committee members, he declared that the only answer he knew to the present abundance of small banks with the small deposits was a unified banking system.

Against Guaranteed Bank Deposits.

But he found no curative value in the proposition to guarantee bank deposits. "It puts a premium on bad banking at the expense of good banking."

When he began to talk about the necessity of revision of the tariff laws to break down the "watertight economic compartments into which nations were withdrawing," Senator Smoot [Rep., Utah], father of the Smoot-Hawley tariff act, began to grumble his inaudible indignation. Then Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], father of this clinic, advised that "we'd better not go into that subject."

John L. Lewis of Springfield, Ill., president of the United Mine Workers, urged the establishment of an emergency board of control on which labor should have equal representation with industry, agriculture and finance. L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange, pleaded for greater governmental solicitude for the farmer.

DAY IN WASHINGTON

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

House Democrats agreed in caucus to support senate resolution to repeal eighteenth amendment.

Secretary Hyde in letter to Chairman McNary of senate agriculture committee opposed domestic allotment farm relief bill.

Senate banking committee virtually completed hearings on Insull utilities and announced inquiry into National City Bank of New York.

Senate adopted amendment to $500,000,000 La Follette-Costigan relief bill to liberalize Reconstruction corporation public improvement loans and agreed to limit debate.

TRAP 3 BANDITS IN ACT OF HOLDING UP 2 MERCHANTS

CRIMINAL COURT.

Charles Dobson, assault to commit rape, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Harry A. Lewis.

James Pappas and Jack Lawhorn, robbery, 1 to 20 years each in the penitentiary; William Williams, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell by Judge Michael Feinberg.

Frank Cisek, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Randolph F. Desert.

Casimer Ostapyk, robbery, 2 years in Pontiac reformatory; Stanley Bussa, robbery, 2 years in the Bridewell; Frank Dean, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

Three bandits were captured yesterday afternoon after they had forced Aaron Feldman and William Grossman, commission merchants at 69 South Water market, into their automobile in an attempted robbery at 14th and Peoria streets. Confronted by a squad car, the bandit driver put his automobile into reverse and sped backwards for a block, crashing into a car driven by Burton Stone, president of the Stone Guarantee Distributing company, 1249 West Van Buren street at Sangamon and 14th streets. Stone was slightly injured.

The bandits then surrendered to Policemen Maurice O'Keefe and Joseph Lenert of the Maxwell street station. They identified themselves as Samuel Colton, 23 years old, 2950 West Jackson boulevard; Ben Popilsky, 24 years old, 1115 Independence boulevard; and John Tranuco, 19 years old, 3388 Grenshaw street.

ALDERMAN DOES HIS OWN JOB OF ARRESTING

O'Grady Seizes Vote Fraud Suspect in City Hall.

Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady of the 14th ward, yesterday arrested a man in the city hall on a charge of fraudulently registering as a voter in the ward. The alderman took his prisoner to the first district police station and signed a perjury complaint against him.

The arrest was made after a hearing before the election board on a suspect notice. The suspect, whose real name was said to be Egan, had registered from 4515 Emerald avenue as Charles Graham. Under questioning he gave his name as Graham, but refused to answer further questions and his name was ordered erased from the poll book. Commissioner Harry Lipsky denied the request of O'Grady for Egan's arrest, stating that he had no power to detain him.

Alderman Follows Suspect.

Egan was followed from the election board office and arrested by the alderman, exercising the right of a private citizen to make an arrest for a felony committed in his presence. Egan was booked for arraignment in the felony court, but was released from custody several hours later on a $1,000 bond which, the police said, was signed by James J. McDermott. McDermott is O'Grady's only opponent in the aldermanic race in the 14th ward.

The fight in the 14th ward for the aldermanic election on Feb. 28 is one of the bitterest in the city. McDermott defeated O'Grady last year in the election for Democratic ward committeeman, and since McDermott became a candidate for alderman, O'Grady has been shorn of his city patronage. O'Grady charged yesterday that 33 "floaters" had been registered in one precinct alone in the ward in the attempt to defeat him.

The election board yesterday made tentative plans for reducing the number of polling places in 14 of the 21 wards where there is only one aldermanic candidate and nothing else to be voted upon with the exception of filling a vacancy in the Municipal court. In the 14 yards the proposed reduction is from 705 precincts to 125, which would save several thousands of dollars in the hire of polling places and judges and clerks of election.

Vote Issues in Other Wards.

In six other wards, where there are no aldermanic contests, there are small park commissioners or the Lincoln park bond issue to be voted upon and no reduction can be made. One other ward without an aldermanic contest lies wholly within the 11th senatorial district, in which an election will be held on the same date as the aldermanic vote to fill the vacancy in the state senate caused by the resignation of Thomas J. Courtney upon his election as state's attorney, and no reduction can be made there, either.

There is only one candidate for the Municipal court vacancy, Gibson E. Gorman, an assistant corporation counsel and secretary of the 19th ward Democratic organization. John M. Lee has been indorsed by the Democratic county central committee for the Courtney senatorial vacancy and has filed his petition, but as yet no Republican has filed, according to information received by the election board from the office of the secretary of state.

MRS. MASSIE PONDERS LEGAL ACTION AGAINST HAWAIIAN OFFICIALS

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Thalia Fortescue Massie said today she is considering legal action against "certain Hawaiian authorities" to defend her name from statements in connection with the release of four man of mixed blood accused of attacking her. She mentioned no names.

"I am considering legal action," she said, "and will consult my attorneys."

Mrs. Massie made her statement after learning Senator David Trask had introduced in the Hawaiian senate a resolution asking that Attorney General Hewitt "be removed from office without delay."

Trask's measure was introduced after receipt in Hawaii of a dispatch from this city in which Mrs. Massie said Hawaiian authorities induced her to leave the island to save her husband, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, and her mother, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, from prison.

"Knowing what I do about Hawaiian politics," Mrs. Massie added, "I don't have much faith in the resolution."

BURGLARS VISIT WILLIAM HERTZ'S GLENVIEW HOME

William H. Hertz, head of the Greyhound Advertising service, 546 Harrison street, and brother of John Hertz, Chicago capitalist, reported to police yesterday that burglars broke into his home on York road in Glenview Thursday while the family and servants were away.

Hertz's bulldog was in the kitchen, but the burglars did not bother the dog and he did not bother them, apparently. The burglars ransacked the house, taking a quantity of jewelry from Mrs. Hertz's bedroom and a chest full of linen, valued altogether at $5,000, Mr. Hertz said.

Fingerprint experts of the Evanston police went to the house to assist Glenview police. Outside the window which the robbers broke to gain entrance police found the footprints of a woman.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Housewives shopping this morning for this week-end food supplies will have the chance to purchase the ingredients for making pastries and breadstuffs at new low prices. On the other hand, they will also find these bakery goods priced especially low if they do not care to prepare them at home.

Most food stores in the Chicago area now are found to be carrying a wide assortment of freshly baked and sealed cookies, cakes, crackers, many kinds of bread, rolls and sweet pastries. Housekeepers this morning will find the prices on such former luxury items to have been reduced materially, or the portions increased, in recent weeks.

In some stores, for instance, sliced pound loaves of fresh bread sell as low as five cents, and cakes of the kitchenette size at 10 to 25 cents. A dozen pan rolls ready for warming and serving are obtainable for as little as 5 cents.

Flour Prices Are Low.

In another department of such stores will be found cake and bread flours selling at prices 10 to 35 per cent lower than six months ago. Good quality butter remains low priced at 19 to 23 cents a pound, and some stores are selling fresh eggs of fair size for as little as 15 cents a dozen.

Granulated sugar also has dropped slightly in price, a ten pound sack costing only 42 cents. Many brands of extracts are either lower in price than a year ago, or are being sold in larger volume for the same retail price. Lard for shortening is still a good value at 2 pounds for 11 cents.

Attractive meat values also are offered. Pork loins, beef roasts, and steaks are lower in price than a week ago. Good porterhouse steaks are selling as low as 25 cents a pound. Leg of lamb and veal are still more expensive than other meats in proportion to general market values.

Many stores are offering special values in coffee, soap, pork and beans, chocolate candies, and canned foodstuffs.

On Vegetable Bargain List.

Such items as cabbage at three pounds for 10 cents, carrots at 4½ cents a bunch, and both sweet and Irish potatoes are continuing at the lowest prices for this season in several years.

But peas, lettuce, spinach, brussels sprouts, artichokes, and string beans have either advanced somewhat in price, or are in such meager supply in Chicago because of the recent storm that care will be necessary in selecting good quality. Many grocers are advising housekeepers on a budget to turn to the shelves of canned foods for such needs.

Oranges and grapefruit continue to offer the best values in citrus supplies, especially for fresh juices and cocktails. Some of the new supplies of canned pineapple and grapefruit juice are low in price and retain the original fresh fruit taste.

Brick Cheese Is Higher.

Retail cheese prices are lower than a year ago and grocers have in most cases stocked a wider variety than in previous Februaries, both in bulk and package forms. One development noted this week in the wholesale market was a rise in the price of brick cheese, said to be due to a strike of dairy farmers started in Outagamie county, Wisconsin, this week.

Twenty-three cheese factories in this one county stopped shipping brick cheese in protest over present low prices paid to farmers. Several Chicago wholesalers were obliged to find their supplies in other regions, causing a rise in the local market, but thus far the increase has not been reflected in retail quotations.

Canada Bank Robber Is Captured Here; Confesses

Elroy Hunt, 26 years old, of Ripley, Ontario, confessed yesterday at the detective bureau that he robbed the Canada Bank of Commerce, Markham, Ont., of $2,800 on Jan. 30. Hunt was arrested on Thursday night at the Saratoga hotel, 27 South Dearborn street, on information furnished to Chicago police by Inspector William H. Springer of Toronto. Hunt told detectives that he fled from Canada to Detroit after the robbery and spent most of the stolen money "having a good time." He came to Chicago on Feb. 6 and took a room at the Saratoga hotel under the name of Frank Sherman.

PUBLIC BARRED FROM BRUNKER HEARING AT RENO

Mr. and Mrs. Ruppel Are Witnesses.

Reno, Nev., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Closed doors were ordered today in the hearing of the motion of Albert Brunker, wealthy Lake Forest, Ill., resident, to obtain modification of the 1931 divorce decree dividing the custody of the two children between himself and Margaret Gaylord Brunker Ruppel.

A motion to make Frederick H. Ruppel, husband of Mrs. Ruppel, party to the case was denied by Judge B. F. Curler.

Ruppel was called as the first witness, however, by counsel for Brunker.

He met his present wife while she was Mrs. Brunker, Ruppel testified, and said he paid her attentions before she obtained her divorce in Reno. He fell in love with her in 1930, he asserted, and even talked of marriage that year.

First Met in Pasadena.

Mrs. Ruppel was next called as a witness, but the question arose whether the testimony could go back of the divorce hearing. Judge Curler ruled that the present hearing was on the motion only and that questions could not be asked and answered which went back of the divorce case.

Mrs. Ruppel said she met Ruppel in Pasadena Feb. 2, 1930, and that he visited at her mother's home. She said he knew she was married. "But unhappily so."

Back at Lake Forest, Mrs. Ruppel said, she lived in the Brunker home for one month. Brunker then occupied it for a month. They alternated their time with the children.

She denied that she became engaged to Ruppel while she was married to Brunker.

Asked if she had attempted suicide in the Lake Forest home in November, 1929, she denied it vehemently.

She thought the agreement now in effect, that each parent should have the children for six months a year, was not a good plan, feeling that they ought to live at least during the school year in the one place.

Detective's Evidence Barred.

Eugene J. Kerrigan, a private detective of San Francisco, was called to the stand, but little of his testimony was admitted. Judge Curler remarked from the bench that he had little confidence in efforts of counsel to admit, when the divorce case was tried, that the mother was competent to have custody of the children half the year and then to come back after the divorce case was a closed incident and seek to disqualify this same mother because of alleged acts prior to the divorce.

Brunker was called just before court adjourned. He said he had agreed, reluctantly, that custody of his two children should be divided. He said he had an oral agreement with Mrs. Brunker that she should not marry Ruppel. Brunker will resume the stand tomorrow. He said he had an income of from $25,000 to $159,000 a year until the crash came.

$35,000 DIAMOND STOLEN IN RAID ON LONDON SHOP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Four thieves escaped with a $35,000 diamond ring in a "smash and grab" raid in fashionable Mayfair today. It is believed they gave the stone to a confederate bound for Paris. The gem once belonged to an eastern potentate. It is three-quarters of an inch square and weighs 10.6 carats.

On Monday police discovered an acetylene torch at the rear door of the shop of James Ogden, court jeweler, where the diamond was displayed. A hole had been cut in the top of the elevator, indicating that the thieves had been disturbed while attempting to obtain the gem.

This morning a blue sedan was observed crawling along the street behind a man carrying a brown paper parcel. The package contained a brick which the man hurled through the window. The thief pried the steel grill apart, snatched a tray and raced to the car in which three men were sitting. A witness hurled a suitcase at the robber but missed. The auto sped past Buckingham palace in the direction of Victoria station where a boat train departed a few minutes later.

25 States' Representatives Plan Polish Week Here

Representatives of 100 committees from 25 states met last night in the Hotel Sherman to discuss plans for Polish week, July 17 to 23, at A Century of Progress exposition. Leon C. Nyka acted as chairman. Dr. Walter F. Kalisz, who traveled by plane to Washington Thursday night to call on the Polish ambassador, will sail today on the Europa for Poland to make final arrangements for the erection of a Polish pavilion at the World's Fair.

ANOTHER MOUNTAIN HUNT FOR KIDNAPED BROKER IS FUTILE

Denver, Colo., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Detectives armed with machine guns searched in the wild foothill country surrounding Virginia Dale, 100 miles north of here, tonight in the fifth day of the hunt for Charles Boettcher, kidnaped Denver broker.

Chief of Police Albert T. Clark said the search near the Colorado-Wyoming line, where Capt. Jack Slade was an uncrowned king when Virginia Dale was a stage coach station in the pioneer days, had proved futile.

Police, private detectives and federal authorities admit the futility of clews in their hunt for the missing heir to one of the largest fortunes in the west. Boettcher is held for $60,000 ransom, but no word has been received from him since abductors took him from his wife's side as they drove into the driveway at their home here.

DENMARK TO GIVE CHICAGO EXHIBITS AT WORLD FAIR

Objects to Be Placed in Rosenwald Museum.

BY JOHN AHL-NIELSEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 17.—Although economic difficulties stand between many countries and participation in the Chicago Century of Progress exposition, Denmark has decided that it will not only take part, but will make Chicago a gift of its many notable exhibits.

After the close of the fair most of the articles to be shown will be presented to the Julius Rosenwald Museum of Science, where they will have a permanent home.

Plan Scientific Exhibit.

Denmark's decision to participate is largely due to the untiring efforts of Dr. Max Henius, a member of the committee of nationalities and a Dane by birth, who has spent much time in Copenhagen urging government officials to make the necessary appropriation. It is mostly due to his activities that the government has granted 50,000 kroner [about $8,600] to pay for a display of Danish scientific exhibits at the fair.

The exhibit will include many models used by Danish scientists and inventors in their work for the betterment of humanity. There will be a replica of the globe of the famous astronomer, Tyco Brahe, which is five feet in diameter, together with his models of the sun and planets.

Apparatus used by Hans Christian Oersted, famous for his investigations in electricity, will be exhibited, showing the action of the magnetic needle.

Many Other Exhibits.

Equipment used by Dr. Valdemar Poulsen, who invented the telegraphon, will also be shown. The telegraphon was the first step towards the dictaphone of today, and is one of the basic inventions in the development of radio.

One of the first protagonists of the atomic theory will be represented in an exhibition of the apparatus used by Prof. Niels Bohr, who was a pioneer in the field.

The first Danish Diesel motors and many other mechanical inventions will bring home to Americans, perhaps for the first time, the great part which the skill of Danish scientists and inventors played in the march of progress.

Denmark is the first government financing an exhibit in Chicago to make a gift of its exhibits. Immediately the fair closes the Danish contributions will be moved to the Rosenwald museum of science and industry, where they will be housed with other relics of mankind's scientific progress.

On the same day that the government approved the appropriation, Prime Minister Stauning telephoned Dr. Henius that he would accept the invitation of Danish born Americans to act as official speaker on Danish day at the fair. This, incidentally, is June 21, and the Danes are pleased that they have been given the longest day.

DEMAND RELIEF REORGANIZATION TO AVOID WASTE

Year's Charity Needs in County 80 Million.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

With $80,000,000 figured as Cook county's relief need in 1933, the call is being set up for a reorganization of relief machinery which will avoid possible waste. Expenditure of public funds, which in the year just ended reached the sum of $45,460,000 in the county, has been concentrated, so far as family relief is concerned, in the Cook county bureau of public welfare.

This bureau has suddenly found its activities expanded at a tremendous rate. In normal times it used to spend about $50,000 a month. Now $5,000,000 a month is its rate. Where its ordinary staff was 150 persons, its personnel has been increased to 2,200, of which some 1,250, according to Director Joseph L. Moss, are social workers with a background of college training.

Estimate 750,000 to 800,000 Idle.

Figures upon which the Emergency Relief commission is basing its estimate of needed funds to care for the destitute place the present number of unemployed in Chicago at between 750,000 and 800,000. This includes persons out of jobs though able to work and looking for employment, and those who still nominally have jobs but have been laid off without pay. In April, 1930, the federal census gave the number of these as 167,924. In January, 1931, a recanvass of the U. S. census placed the number at 448,739. An estimate by the state department of labor in October, 1931, gave it as 624,000.

In 1930 the census showed the total number of gainfully employed workers in Chicago, over 10 years old, as 1,558,858. Of these there were 1,152,108 males and 406,750 females.

There were 43,000 between the ages of 10 and 17, and 83,000 between 18 and 19. The latest estimates of the relief workers indicate that approximately one-half the workers in Chicago are idle.

Relief Demands Growing.

The growth in family cases taken care of by the county public welfare bureau with public funds is seen in the following figures on relief cases in the month of February each year, as follows:

Families
1929	5,961	1932	87,555
1930	8,876	1933	160,000
1931	24,394

An average of 3½ persons to a family is estimated by Director Moss, which would indicate a total of 560,000 individuals taken care of by public funds under family relief. The cases are now increasing at the rate of 9,000 a month.

The tremendous load suddenly placed on the bureau has led to a question of whether the bureau has been able to adapt its machinery to the rapid growth. The Association of Commerce, after a two months' study of the relief situation, says in its report that the emergency relief has done its job "remarkable well." But with the relief problem now reaching the point where staggering sums are involved, with a corresponding burden on the taxpayer, special and business engineering of the highest type should be applied. The report suggests that the Illinois relief work be centralized in a small nonpartisan commission of five or seven, to be composed of outstanding representatives of industry and the professions.

How Relief Is Distributed.

Under the present setup family relief from public funds is centralized in the county bureau, which has fifteen district offices. There is a field service to care for the aged and blind. Relief to destitute families is given in two ways: first, directly by allotments of groceries, coal, and other necessaries, and, second, through work relief. Unemployed family men are placed at work through a special bureau, on "made work" projects. They are given in wages what otherwise they would get in direct relief, and do their own shopping. The expense is paid out of a revolving fund advanced from the relief funds.

The idea in this is to keep up the morale. Some 12,000 or 15,000 men a month are on that kind of relief. About 8 per cent of the relief disbursements are going for work, as against 71 per cent for food and 6½ per cent for fuel. In December 18,773 clients were aided by this kind of special work, and the amount of relief thus given was $474,147.

Cost of Shelters.

Unattached men and women are cared for in the main through regularly established shelters. There is a clearing house for men at 756 West Harrison street. In the shelter program the food, which is paid out of the relief fund, costs about 10 cents a day per man. In November a system of "made work" at the rate of $4 a day per man was tried, but it was found too expensive. In January about 27,000 unattached men were given service in the shelters.

Unemployed women who are unattached are given shelter relief through the service bureau for women at 126 North Wells street. Regular shelters are used, such as the Cathedral shelter, 1742 Maypole avenue, and Sunshine haven, 5059 Vincennes avenue. In December 635 unattached women received shelter service, as against 27,135 men.

As to the cost of administering relief, the figures show that between Feb. 6, 1932, and Jan. 1, 1933, expenditures of state and federal funds in Cook county were $37,803,598. Of this, $34,603,164 actually was distributed among the needy, or 91.5 per cent of the total. Salaries amounted to $2,628,947, or about 7 per cent, and other expenses $571,376, or about 1½ per cent. The relief authorities say this is an unusually low administration cost.

Liverpool Asks Government for $5,551,858 to Aid Idle

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Liverpool, the fourth largest city in Britain, today asked for government assistance. It needs £1,621,532 [$5,551,858] to provide for the idle of the city. Liverpool, once the terminal port of great Atlantic liners, was badly hit by the transfer of services to Southampton, now described as Britain's boom town.

VISITING NURSES ISSUE CALL FOR FINANCIAL HELP

Aid to Sick Despite Weather Cited.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

No banners fluttered and no bugles blared when the army of uniformed members of the Visiting Nurses' association marched out into the recent blizzard. More than a hundred strong, many of them dependent on their own feet for transportation, the nurses fought the storm so valiantly that within two days every one of their serious cases had received the usual ministrations.

Directors of the organization, who each year raise more than 50 per cent of the funds needed, have issued special appeals during the last few days for financial help. No more vivid illustration of the devoted care and valuable aid they render could be cited, the board members declare, than the conduct of the nurses under the severe conditions of last week.

Nurses Brave Snowdrifts.

Penetrating into most of the poorer districts of the city, where sidewalks and yards alike remained snow blocked, scores of the nurses waded up to their waists through drifts to reach their patients. Two in particular walked fourteen blocks through the worst of the storm, half blinded and nearly frozen, to make certain that two sick women would have attention that day.

Many cases of frozen noses and fingertips were discovered by the Visiting Nurses where delay in prompt and proper care might have had serious results. Pneumonia patients were numerous.

"Lots of tiny babies would have suffered but for the nurses," Miss Edna Foley, superintendent, said yesterday, "because we have so many young mothers of 19 and 20 who haven't learned how to handle and care for them. We also have been taking note of the marked increase in the number of burns suffered by mothers or children these days, which seem to be due not to carelessness, but to the more crowded condition of homes where families have doubled up."

432,258 Calls Made in 1932.

Since the organization was founded in 1889 the work of the nurses has increased from about 5,000 calls annually on 400 patients to 432,258 calls made during 1932 on 91,544 persons, records show.

"Our finances are getting more and more in need of help, like those of other philanthropic agencies," Miss Foley stated. "About $150,000 was raised last year by the directors, and 20 per cent of our income came from sources other than gifts. Because it was felt that the welfare commission had sufficient trouble raising funds for other agencies, we did not appeal to them for aid and that is why help would be so much appreciated now."

GOVERNOR ASKS FOR MORTGAGE MORATORIUM

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Gov. Ruby Laffoon, in a proclamation late today, requested financial institutions to observe a voluntary moratorium on mortgage foreclosure proceedings against farmers and home owners in Kentucky for a period of six months.

The chief executive said he made the proclamation "with full knowledge that there is no authority given him by the law to suspend lien enforcement suits." He added the proclamation was issued because he had been "informed by citizens from every section" of the commonwealth that holders of mortgages be requested to withhold foreclosures until economic conditions improved.

The governor said "wholesale enforcement of mortgage liens" at this time would "bring untold distress and suffering."

Mrs. Winifred Maccurdy Wins Divorce at Reno

Mrs. Winifred Jones Maccurdy, daughter of the late David B. Jones, Chicago millionaire, won a divorce at Reno yesterday from Dr. John Thomson Maccurdy, lecturer at Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, England. The charge was desertion. Mrs. Maccurdy was awarded custody of their two children. The father is given the right to visit them. The Maccurdys were married in Chicago Jan. 16, 1914. Her father died in Lake Forest in 1923. He was chairman of the Mineral Point Zinc company.

20 ATTORNEYS STORM THE COURT OVER ONE SMALL RECEIVERSHIP

Twenty attorneys crowded to the bar yesterday when a foreclosure suit on a 20 apartment building at 3635 Vincennes avenue was called in the courtroom of Circuit Judge Joseph Burke. Each of them presented the name of a prospective receiver.

"Why all this rush?" asked Judge Burke.

The pushing throng quieted long enough for various attorneys to present the names of Arthur Rance, Sidney Abelson, John O. Oschatz, Herbert T. Taylor, and Edward M. Strasser to the judge. All sought to be appointed receiver of the building, upon which Henry C. Morris has a $9,000 mortgage. After receiving the names Judge Burke announced that he would take the case under advisement and appoint a receiver within a few days.

"Why was there such a pushing for a little building like that?" some one in the audience asked a court attendant.

TWO INDICTED FOR MAIL THREAT SENT TO WIDOW

George P. Stevens, 65 years old, 4819 North Lawndale avenue, and Henry Nussbaumer, 62 years old, 246 Riverside drive, Villa Park, were charged with sending threatening letters through the mail and conspiracy in an indictment returned yesterday before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. Each faces a possible maximum sentence of 22 years and a fine of $15,000.

Stevens and Nussbaumer, a taxidermist with offices at 15 North Morgan street, are alleged to have written and posted letters demanding $6,000 of Mrs. Catherine Thilo, widow of Dr. George Thilo, who was slain by robbers four years ago.

Stevens, a friend of Mrs. Thilo, is said to have obtained the information on which the plot was based. Three of the four bandits who killed her husband were captured and sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary. They recently sought parole, and Mrs. Thilo, who now lives in Baltimore, expressed fear that the youths might try to harm her in revenge. Stevens, acting on this information, is alleged to have sent the letters offering to "square things" with the murderers for $6,000. Bond of $10,000 was set for Stevens, and bond of $3,500 for Nussbaumer.

STATE JUDGES STUDY PROBLEM OF POOR RELIEF

Problems of poor and idle relief, juvenile crime, proposed legislation and their own salaries were discussed yesterday in Hotel La Salle by members of the County and Probate Judge's association of Illinois at the opening session of their two day annual convention. In the evening the judges were addressed by Rodney H Brandon, state director of public welfare, who spoke on the "Big Brother" movement in Illinois.

County Judge Win G. Knoch of Du Page county, chairman of the association's legislative committee, reported on pending legislation in the general assembly which affects the county judiciary system. At his recommendation the judges went on record as approving the passage of a law requiring all county and probate judges in Illinois to be licensed attorneys.

Following the dinner meeting the judges went to the detective bureau to witness a special show-up.

NAVY'S DECLINE INVITES A WAR, MOFFETT SAYS

Points to Manchukuo Fleet Plans of Japan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special]—Rear Admiral William A. Moffett tonight warned that the United States was inviting war by allowing its national defenses to deteriorate. He asserted that the American people, by permitting the navy to become decadent, "as it has become," were risking "not only the honor and glory of America, but her very existence."

"The decadence of its navy is a sign of the decadence of a nation," the naval officer declared.

Rear Admiral Moffett, veteran chief of the bureau of aeronautics, criticized the state of the nation's defenses before the Naval Academy Graduates' Association of New York City. His principal purpose was to arouse national support for a program to build up the United States fleet and to defeat the Bratton amendment cutting all government department appropriations by 5 per cent.

He asserted that Japan, according to Japanese newspapers, intended to build a navy consisting of cruisers, destroyers, and submarines for the newly created state of Manchukuo.

Japan's Approaching Armada.

"Such a navy," he said, "would not be subject to treaty limitations, including the treaty ratios." His inference was that, with such a fleet built, Japan would have at her command a greater naval armada than the United States. At present, he said, the United States and Japan have navies of approximately equal size, despite the fact that the treaty ratios give this country an advantage.

Without naming any party, Rear Admiral Moffett indirectly lashed the Republican administrations since Harding for having allowed the navy to deteriorate. The United States, he declared, had been "hoodwinked and bamboozled" at naval conferences and, in fact, had become "an international fruit tree," shaken down to the tune of hundreds of millions at the Washington arms conference and to the tune of 11 billions in post-war debts. He ridiculed the American people for "boasting that we are the greatest nation on earth."

Calling attention to his own field, the rear admiral asserted that aviation has so advanced as a weapon that within a few days after war was declared enemy planes could be pounding American cities with bombs. Aviation was to revolutionize all warfare.

Has Progressively Declined.

"Since the administration of President Wilson and the Washington treaty of 1922 our navy has progressively declined," said Rear Admiral Moffett. "Wilson, after his conference in Europe, cabled for an adequate navy, and the American people gave it to him, only to have it, or the major part of it, destroyed, scrapped, after 1922, when the United States was bamboozled into destroying and limiting the only category [battleships] in which it was strongest, at the same time signing a treaty putting no restrictions on the other categories except aircraft carriers. Uncle Sam lost everything but his shirttail.

"We have done almost no building as compared with the other signatories to the Washington treaty since 1922, after we destroyed most of the naval power we had. Japan has laid down or appropriated for 164 vessels, totaling 410,000 tons; Great Britain, 148 ships [including two battleships], totaling 470,000 tons.

Losing World's Respect.

"Both of these building programs have comprised practically every class of combatant vessel, and have maintained those navies very nearly up to the full treaty strength. The United States, faced with the growing antagonism of the world, has appropriated for the niggardly total of 40 ships of 197,000 tons. That is less than one-fourth of the building done by Japan and a little more than one-fourth done by England.

"By letting the navy become decadent we are losing our self-respect as a nation and the respect of other nations. We cannot maintain our foreign policies; we cannot maintain peace and are inviting war by our weakness. It never seems to occur to us in our conceit that another nation may declare war against us. The time has come to stop 'kidding' ourselves, to stop boasting and do something to show that we are, or can be, worthy of the traditions we talk so much about—worthy of the great men and women who founded this nation."

SEEK DIRECT U. S. LOAN FOR COUNTY RELIEF IN MARCH

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission will make an effort to obtain a direct loan of $6,500,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation for relief in Cook county during March. This action was decided upon yesterday by a joint committee of county commissioners and members of the emergency relief group when they were informed that only $4,500,000 worth of the $17,000,000 relief bond issues remains unsold.

These securities have been used as collateral with the Reconstruction Finance corporation in the past, but the remaining bonds are insufficient to cover requirements for the next month. If the direct loan is made the control of the relief finances will revert to the emergency relief commission.

A proposal that the county buy relief food on a wholesale basis was tabled by the joint committees. Joseph L. Moss, director of the county welfare bureau, said that all staple foods now are purchased wholesale and that perishable foods could not be bought in such quantities with the present organization.

MICHIGAN BUSY ON PROGRAM TO GOVERN BANKING

Look to Washington for Emergency Help.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Day and night conferences among Detroit and Michigan state bankers, talks with consultants in New York, Chicago, and Washington, brought out various plans today for clearing up the banking situation here. The prospect continues for limited banking, where needed, even after the governor's moratorium ends next Thursday.

Washington is looked upon for the solution of the major difficulty, that of providing ready money for emergencies and conserving the good but slow assets which are held by many banks. There was a report of a new application for a 100 million dollar R. F. C. loan on the part of a big Detroit group and another report of a merger plan between two big groups, the First National and the Guardian Union groups. These reports were not confirmed.

Merger Plan Presented.

The plan to merge the First National and Guardian Union groups was presented at the Detroit conference today by George W. Davison, head of the Central Hanover Bank and Trust Company of New York, it was learned tonight. It is understood that this is only in preliminary stages. The First National is considered the strongest, most conservative bank in town. Such a merger would call for a big loan from the R. F. C. to take care of the frozen assets for a term of years.

Lansing contributed to the picture by proposing a temporary dictatorship for Gov. William Comstock, through the banking department, giving him the power to step in and protect the assets of any bank that asked for such help.

Whatever plan is finally adopted it now looks as though a portion of the depositors' funds would be tied up for an indefinite period. More than a billion dollars is impounded in the 5 per cent plan which is expected to be lifted in part next Thursday, but not enough to cause runs on the banks.

Governor Given Powers.

Under the plan proposed in a resolution in the state legislature it is declared that a state of emergency exists in Michigan and that the governor is empowered to extend the bank holiday as he finds necessary, restrict where it is advisable the conditions under which deposits may be released. Michigan representatives in congress were being urged by telegram and letters from smaller banks throughout the state or urge federal guarantee of bank deposits.

That Michigan will evolve a plan which will be nation-wide in interest and will be adopted in other states which are supposed to be in the same fix is commonly forecast here. This plan will require both state and federal legislation. It is now being considered by the treasury department, which is in frequent telephonic communication with Detroit.

Plan to Segregate Assets.

The plan, in brief, is to segregate the slow assets of a bank from its live assets until something approaching their former value can be realized. In the meantime the bank would be run with its live assets as capital on the basis of present values, with the state banking commissioner given dictatorial powers so that he could act quickly to keep the banks in sound condition.

The banking commissioner would take the slow assets and segregate them, deducing their value from the amount due depositors. Then the bank would issue participation certificates, pro rated among the depositors on the basis of the amount on deposit and what had been scaled from it and the depositor would realize eventually on the sale of these assets. It would be a combination bank and trust company under this plan, with all the profits of the bank going to pay off the holders of certificates.

Used in Emergencies.

This plan would be used as an emergency method of saving a bank, but would not be mandatory or compulsory over a bank that was in a position to go ahead in a normal way.

"There are 20 or 25 other states in precisely the same situation," said a bank official today. "We believe this will cure the situation and put the nation on an even keel. We hope to try this out in Michigan and if it works out you will hear of it all over the country in a year."

Withdrawals under the 5 per cent allotment continued slowly today in Detroit. It was announced that depositors withdrew only $4,610,000 of the $26,117,000 available to them. The First National with $18,000,000 available for this purpose had withdrawals of $2,995,000, while the Guardian National with $5,200,000 available paid out $1,200,000. Other banks were proportionate.

6 MEN ARRESTED FOR BLOCKING FORCED SALE

Aledo, Ill., Feb. 17.—Six men were arrested today on conspiracy charges resulting from a mortgage foreclosure sale at which $31.41 was paid for farm property on which more than $2,000 allegedly had been previously bid.

One of those arrested was Ray Westerdale, tenant farmer at Reynolds, Ill., on whose farm the sale of live stock and implements was held Feb 4. Indictments charged that force was used to prevent competitive bidding.

Westerdale's two brothers, Harry of Altona and Claude of Galesburg, were also arrested, along with Jonathan Wehler of Viola, Harry Kell of Aledo, and Ellis Doonan of Reynolds. Bonds were fixed at $1,000 each.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE SENATE SUBMITS REPEAL.

The senate vote on the Blaine resolution submitting the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, if viewed in its historical perspective, is astonishing, but it only carries out a popular decision plainly stated in the election of last November. The senate vote was 63 to 23. That reveals the complete collapse of one of the most autocratic dictatorships which ever controlled legislation in America, the dictatorship of the prohibition bigot.

The form which the winning proposal took can be commended for its honesty and sanity. It is in line with the pledge of the Democratic party, which was notoriously more sensible than the proposal carried in the Republican platform. It is proposed that the federal government shall protect dry states from importations against their laws in interstate commerce. That power can be conceded the federal government without much wrenching of its constitutional limitations. It may be regarded a guaranty of good faith with the states which may decide to prohibit the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages. No reasonable opponent of prohibition seeks to dictate to a community which elects not to permit traffic in intoxicants. It was the moral shame of the prohibitionists that they did insist that the law of Kansas should be the law of New York. A grain of common sense would have demonstrated the unworkability of such a doctrine. There can be nothing but lawlessness and rebellion in it.

The senate proposal as it was adopted requires ratification by state conventions. There has been a preponderance of opinion, both on the wet and dry sides of the argument, that these conventions would more nearly develop the will of separate states than would be the case if ratification were by the alternative process, that is, by the legislatures. The convention method will probably require more time than the legislative alternative, but commitments were out and congress feels that it is bound to allow a settlement in specially called representative bodies.

It is predicted that the house of representatives will accept the senate form, and in that case this session of congress may be the one which sees the beginning of the end of America's most unfortunate experiment in fundamental law. There can be a hope, if not a conviction, that this will be seen later as a turning point in American history. The eighteenth amendment was the climax of the growing tendency of government to suppress the individual. It was the final act, or we may hope it was the final act, in the building up of an intolerable federal bureaucracy, too costly to be maintained, too tyrannous to be endured. It was a suppression of the desires which caused the formation of the American republic. It was contradictory to the original intent of that republic. If the tide of federal aggression reached its full in the eighteenth amendment, and if now there is to be an ebb back to the old lines along which the Union can be securely entrenched, the people of the United States can congratulate themselves upon an escape from a danger they have not fully appreciated.

THE SHANNON REPORT.

The report of the Shannon committee investigating the activities of government in business can be regarded as one of the few genuinely useful services of the present congress. The Shannon committee spent a year in studying 200 activities in which the federal government is engaged in competition with its citizens. More than 600 witnesses were examined and now a report has been published containing twenty-nine specific recommendations for restoring the government to its proper rôle in American life.

As was to have been expected, the greatest emphasis is given to the sins of the largest of the government's business enterprises, the farm board and its so-called stabilization subsidiaries. That half billion dollar lesson in the folly of price fixing has not yet been learned. The farm board is still in business despite its losses. As long as it exists congress will be tempted to appropriate more money for the board to gamble away.

The committee recommended that congress order an immediate end to the stabilization operations of the board. This recommendation will meet with no opposition from business men and practically no opposition from farmers, though the self-appointed spokesmen for farmers will howl in agony. The real opposition to the Shannon committee recommendations in this and all other matters will come from the bureaucrats who are concerned and from the other beneficiaries of the government's business operations. The payrollers will, of course, complain. They will discover that the government's activities are essential for the welfare of the country and its safety.

The only thing to do with these people is pay no attention to them. The one substantial danger which confronts the country today is the insolvency of the federal treasury. In the long run the treasury can be no more secure than the taxpayers. If the government by its operations in the realm of business loses money by the hundreds of millions and at the same time creates competition for business men which destroys their profits and therefore their ability to pay taxes, the taxpayers will go broke trying to catch up with the deficit and the treasury must shortly follow them into bankruptcy.

This story is well understood outside Washington, but it does not, as yet, seem to have penetrated the congressional mind. Perhaps the most encouraging aspect of the Shannon report is the fact that it does not come from business men but from congressmen. That seems to offer some hope that the message has been couched in terms which will be understood in the senate and the house. That is where all the extraneous activities of the government originated and that is where they will have to be liquidated.

PRICE-FIXING UNDISGUISED.

The senate's agriculture committee has reported out a domestic allotment bill which is limited in its operation to two commodities, wheat and cotton. The bill provides that the farmers raising these crops shall receive the pre-war price for the portions of the crops consumed in this country. The difference between the world price and the domestic price is to be obtained for the farmers by an excise tax on the portions of the crop used in this country. The government will collect the tax from millers and spinners and redistribute it to the farmers.

This is not as bad a bill as the one which passed the house because five other farm commodities have been stricken from the list. But it is still a bad bill, which will do far more harm than good and may be expected to aggravate the present difficulties of the wheat and cotton farmers.

The bill contains no provision for a reduction of acreage, probably because the senators realized the impossibility of enforcing such a provision; but without acreage reduction the whole scheme becomes absurd. In normal times we consume in this country about half of the cotton crop and perhaps three-fourths or four-fifths of the wheat crop. The senators propose to tax the American consumers about 55 cents a bushel on the wheat they consume and about 6 cents a pound on their cotton.

The senators fail to realize how delicate is the adjustment between prices of raw commodities. Any such increase as they propose must result in a marked substitution of rye, other cereals, and other carbohydrates for wheat and of other fibers for cotton. The result must be, then, a marked increase in the production of wheat and cotton to take advantage of the bounty and at the same time a marked decline in consumption. If there is overproduction of wheat and cotton now, there will be a much greater overproduction under the proposed arrangement. It cannot be otherwise. The marginal farmer is the author of much of our present agricultural surplus today, and this bill is designed to encourage more marginal farming on marginal lands.

To the representatives in congress of the corn belt the decision to vote against this bill should be obvious. The only benefit will come in increasing the consumption of corn and potatoes, but this gain will be more than canceled by the higher prices which corn-belt farmers will be obliged to pay for their flour, bread and clothing. And obviously, the more money Americans must spend for bread and cotton goods, the less they will have to spend for everything else.

The measure is unsound as all price-fixing measures are unsound. It will not benefit those whom it is intended to benefit and will injure every one else. It is bughouse legislation of the sort with which congress has plagued the country and blocked recovery ever since the depression set in.

RUINOUS TAX POLICY.

Edmond Taylor, TRIBUNE correspondent in France, gives a picture of the French fiscal situation which will look familiar to Americans. French public expenditure has ignored revenue resources, as has our own, and the same tax policy in general has been followed. A small proportion of the French people have been bled, while large classes able to pay a fair share toward the maintenance of the common services have been immune. The result in France, as in America, is the continuance of irresponsible expenditure up to the point of insolvency, the exhaustion of capital reserves, the fostering of bureaucratic privilege and power which now will resist, in large measure effectually perhaps, measures of justice and relief.

The core of the evil is in the adoption of a system of taxation which puts the power of spending in the hands of those who have the benefits of expenditure and none of its sacrifices. It is a system not only offensive to justice but completely certain sooner or later to ruin a nation. The political considerations which support it are reckless of eventual results. Popular government can commit no greater blunder or more surely sign its own death warrant.

Editorial of the Day

[Grand Rapids Press.]

If the state administration's economy program means either temporary or permanent closing of the state fairs there will be little protest from the taxpayers who annually shoulder the deficits incurred. If a saving of a quarter million may be made by refusing further subsidies the profit to the taxpayer will outweigh whatever loss there may be to the state through the abandonment of these expositions.

In its present location the Michigan state fair has lost its value either to agricultural or industrial interests. Perhaps that value could not be regained in any other location. But the fact remains that little actual benefit now accrues and if the expositions cannot be self-supporting, then they might better be closed. Of what benefit are they to the taxpayers who must meet the losses?

The question also is raised as to why the state should appropriate funds for the Chicago Century of Progress exposition if it cannot afford to appropriate for its own state fair. Gov. Comstock has taken an apologetic attitude on this subject, placing the responsibility on commitments by a previous legislature. But there is no necessity for such excuses, for, as Mr. Comstock probably knows, this expenditure is fully justified.

The Chicago fair has presented Michigan an opportunity for profit. The Michigan exhibit at Chicago is being designed to attract visitors to Michigan—and if no more than 10,000 are drawn to this state the appropriation will be made worth while. It is expected, however, that 100,000 or more may be influenced by the display to "cool off in Michigan." That will mean that hundreds of thousands of dollars will be left in Michigan's vacation land.

There is no comparison between the investment in the Chicago fair and the making up of deficits for a state fair. The former will return dollars to Michigan pockets and advertise Michigan industry to people from all sections of the country, while the latter is nearly a dead loss to the citizens of the state.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

IT CERTAINLY LOOKS BAD for the Sacred Eighteenth. The senate has voted for repeal and it goes to Mr. Garner and the rest of the house Monday. And some day likker and things can be bought like you buy a dozen onions or a soup bone today. Everybody that buys some bottled likker does just that much to reduce the deficit. And people that have cheerfully paid six bucks to a bootlegger for a pint of bathtub hootch are going to moan to high heaven because the government takes twenty cents, let's say, out in tax on real whisky that he can buy for a dollar and a half a pint. Humans are funny animals, say what you will.

AND WHEN we depend on the government tax on likker to lift us out of the slough of depression will a man be a hundred per cent patriotic if he takes a glass of beer and only lifts about a half cent off the deficit compared to the man who loves his country to the extent of ordering a Martini cocktail, which pays a cent and a half into the treasury of his country?

Breathes there a man with soul so dead
That will spurn a cocktail and take beer instead?

AND WITH ALL of us (except the die-in-the-last-ditch bone drys) rallying nobly to our country in its hour of need and trying to drink up that deficit, it is strangely appropriate that the national anthem is, "Oh, say, can you see?" It will be a continual reminder to the patriot that as long as that is the case he hasn't done his full duty to his country.

WORLD BUILDERS.

Give me the poet's vision,
Grant me the gift of song;
Life and the things eternal
Unto the bards belong.

They are the true world builders,
Theirs are the deathless years;
They hold the ageless scepter—
Wielders of dreams and tears.

Where is the soldier's glory?
Where is the captain's name?
Theirs is a bloody story,
Theirs is a blighted fame.

Where is the statesman's grandeur?
Where is the courtier's pride?
Lo, in the tombs they rest them,
By the wild ocean-side.

Give me the poet's vision,
Grant me the gift of song;
Life and the things eternal

THE MAKING OF A STOMACH ULCER.

THE inventors have been at work. This time the product is a new disease bearing the name depression ulcer. The reference is to ulcer of the stomach and of the duodenum, resulting principally from worry. Perhaps a better name would be worry ulcer, but the economic stress under which such a large group is suffering as a result of the depression has caused so many to develop the disease that the name given runs back to the basic cause.

The nature of these peculiar ulcers is not a matter of agreement among physicians, nor is there unanimity among them as to the cause. Dr. E. S. Judd holds that, whatever the direct cause may be, violation of the laws of hygiene is at least a contributor.

Three contributing causes that he gives are drinking alcoholic beverages, smoking too much, and worry. There are some who cure themselves of ulcer by abstaining from alcoholic beverages, by using very little tobacco, and by breaking the worry habit.

There is generally one type of person on whom it is generally worthless to operate as a means of curing ulcer. He is about 25 years old, intelligent, sensitive, and high strung. He is likely to be a Jew. He is emotional and he worries, usually about business, but almost any other subject for worry will work.

If a person of this kind has his ulcer cut away he will have a new one, generally in about the same part of the digestive tract, within a few months after the operation. In the treatment of such cases it is more important to cut out the worry than it is to operate on the ulcer. Unless the subject can train himself in equanimity and conquer his fears, he will merely trade new ulcers for old.

There is a variety of ulcer that tends to heal spontaneously, with neither medical nor surgical treatment. It is the ulcer case in which the symptoms are not very bad and have lasted less than a year. As a rule these cases are in young persons who are rather stable, self-reliant, courageous, and not given to introspection and worry.

If the symptoms have continued for several years the likelihood is that the ulcer will have a rather firm, well scarred wall and it will not readily heal.

RED NOSE.

B. N. writes: What causes the nose to be red and what is the remedy for it? I hold the nose in hot water at night before going to bed, but it does not seem to do any good. I do not drink nor smoke. I am 64 years old.

REPLY.

Washing the nose in warm water is of no special service. If you are about to develop a large, bulbous red nose you may succeed in warding this off by systematically emptying the grease glands by means of soaping, steaming, and squeezing.

The common cause of ordinary red nose is disturbance in the digestive tract. It is a red lantern hung out to warn of trouble around the curve down the track. Alcohol causes it by bringing on gastritis rather than by direct action of the drug on the nose. Treat your digestive system rather than try to take down the lantern. Do you have gall bladder trouble, acidity, dyspepsia, or constipation? Do you eat heavily, and especially of condiments?

MISS 22.

H. H. writes: The writer would like to offer a remedy to Miss 22, whose cry for help appeared recently. Let her take long walks, with a companion if possible, through the parks and interest herself in her surroundings. Even now the skeletons of the leaves are interesting and some are even beautiful. Let her feed the squirrels and the birds, visit the flower houses and interest herself in the various plants. A small book on botany will help. And then there are the animal houses, the birdhouse, and the aquarium. Thus she will have fine fresh air, light exercise, and her mind will be pleasantly occupied and she will forget herself and her unpleasant and morbid thoughts. It will cost her nothing. Let her try it for a month and see—if she wants to help herself in earnest.

M. W. writes: Recently Miss 22 wrote you of her worrying habit. I am sending some advice which might prove helpful. I think she should take hope from the fact that she blames her difficulty on herself and not on some one else. Action—wholesome, kind, unselfish actions—helps such a person and whenever disturbing thoughts occur they should be resolutely cast out of the mind and replaced with a cheerful thought. It may be necessary to memorize some happy lines. If a person can sing, a song in the heart is a never failing help.

INHERITANCE TAXES.

Hinsdale, Ill., Feb. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A parent growing old and desiring to relieve himself of the care of his property transferred from time to time certain portions to his only son. The property consisted of real estate, government bonds, federal land bank bonds, joint stock land bank bonds, etc. The last transaction was made three years ago. Previous transfers took place eight years ago and fifteen years ago. He died recently leaving a small estate to be administered by his son. What is the law with regard to the inheritance tax upon these properties? W. S. K.

Transfers made in anticipation of death are subject to the inheritance tax. In view of the time elapsing between your transactions and the death, it would be presumed that the transfers were not made in anticipation of death.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SEEMS TO BE AUTHORIZED.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—The police of a certain village, without exception, every time when summoned to investigate a violent death lose no time in having the body removed to the parlors of a certain second rate undertaking firm, generally without the knowledge, and almost always without the consent, of the family involved. Is there any law which compels, or permits, them to do this? Is there any law which guarantees to the family that they may select their own undertaker or prevent the above occurrence? When and if it can be proven in court that the undertaking firm is paying the police, either individually and/or collectively, for turning over such cases to it, what steps can be taken to insure that this practice will be permanently stopped? J. F. B.

The practice seems to be authorized by the following wording from section 10 of the coroners' act: "Every coroner, whenever, and as soon as he knows or is informed that the dead body of any person is found, or lying within his county, supposed to have come to his or her death by violence, casualty or any undue means, he shall repair to the place where the dead body is and take charge of the same and forthwith summon a jury of six good and lawful men in the neighborhood where the body is found or lying, to assemble at the place where the body is at such time as he shall direct, and upon view of the body to inquire into the cause and manner of death."

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

FEBRUARY 18, 1917.

LONDON.—The British troops replied today to the German attack in the Champagne zone with a smashing assault that resulted in the capture of enemy positions along a front of more than two miles on both sides of the Ancre river. South of the stream Gen. Haig's soldiers crashed through the German lines for more than 1,000 yards on a mile and a half front extending within a few hundred yards of Petit Miraumont and as far north as Miraumont itself. North of the Ancre what the war office announcement describes as "an important position on the upper slopes of a spur north of Baillescourt farm" was stormed on a front of 1,000 yards and consolidated in the face of violent counter attacks. Not only was the territory seized by Haig's troops much greater than that taken by the Germans in the Champagne on Feb. 15 but it was by far the most extensive sweep made on the western front since the close of the Ancre offensive last November.

OTHER WAR NEWS.—London reports that several important gains against the Turks in Mesopotamia were made. Forcing the Turks back on the Tigris river, the British captured 1,995 prisoners. Infantry fighting was resumed at several points on the Rumanian front. Berlin reports the repulse of Russian attacks at several points in Galicia.

BERLIN.—That any and all kinds of convoys caught in the barred zone will meet as short shrift as merchantmen, enemy and neutral, armed and unarmed, was announced by a high officer of the admiralty staff. This official pointed out that four different kinds of convoys are possible—enemy merchant ships by enemy warships, neutral merchantmen by enemy warships, enemy merchant ships by neutral warships, and, finally, neutral merchantmen by neutral warships. The admiralty is convinced that convoys in general and of the first category in particular will be easy plucking for the unlimited warfaring of the German submarines owing to an inherent weakness in convoys.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The house of representatives practically served notice on President Wilson that it will not grant him full powers to conduct operations against Germany as he sees fit in case his severance of diplomatic relations leads to war. Member after member voiced a protest against general participation by the United States in the European war. Man after man as he spoke asserted that the President was not to be criticized for breaking off relations with Germany, but should be criticized if in his future conduct of the relations between the United States and Germany he allows himself to be drawn into the general European war. The house clearly demonstrated it is opposed to having the President take any action without first consulting congress.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Wilson contemplates going before congress next week to ask specific authority to employ the armed forces of the nation for the protection of Americans and American ships from German submarines. The plans for such protection which the President has under advisement include the arming of American passenger liners and freighters to repel submarine attacks and the convoying of American ships through the submarine war zones with naval craft. The President, however, is represented by his advisers as being loath to direct the invocation of such protective measures without the express approval of congress.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—During the two weeks since the diplomatic break with Germany foreigners living in the United States, notably Germans and Austrians, have flocked to the courts to become American citizens in such numbers that labor department officials said the total could not even be estimated.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Apprehension over the Cuban situation was increased by receipt of dispatches from Santiago stating that the situation in that section of Cuba is critical and threatening. Business throughout that region has been paralyzed, there are no mails and trains are not operating. The insurrectionists in control of Santiago have seized two Cuban merchant vessels, the Frank Penny and the Julia, which have been heavily armed and stationed at the mouth of the harbor.

CHICAGO.—Bandits with a blasé disregard for places or persons robbed Dr. Arthur Frederick Schuettler, son of the chief of police, at Sheridan road and Sunnyside avenue. Not only was Dr. Schuettler relieved of a valuable case of surgical instruments, money, and jewelry, but the robbers concluded their mission by beating him with the butts of their revolvers.

PANTS FOR GIRLS IN WINTER.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Feb. 14.—We continually see girls walking over snow covered sidewalks while cold winds blow, wearing shoes but no stockings or only short socks. Why? Recently the newspapers reported a schoolgirl in this county walking four miles to school and then being laid up in the hospital with "her legs and thighs frozen badly." Probably she had at least thin stockings on, but the sex advertisement, the skirt, is poor protection for the legs.

In summer nowadays the girls are often seen wearing white yachting pants or other forms of trousers. This makes them appear more attractive. But it is in winter when they need cloth well wrapped around their legs that women and girls should universally wear pantaloons. Especially are pants desirable since with them the legs can be covered with warm underclothes, but with the lack of stockings in the skirt attire no underclothes are worn on either legs or thighs, as any hasty movement is liable to make plain to all observers. There is no question that pants are much more modest than the sex emphasizing skirt outfit.

When some of the Teachers' college girls here have worn various types of breeches on various occasions, on inquiring among some of the young men students I was told it made the girls look fetching and nice, not ugly at all. Certainly from the standpoint of common sense and freedom of motion and protection, it is greatly to be desired that the time will soon come when skirts with all their immodesty will be discarded for the greater modesty and convenience of breeches. Chinese and Turkish women have long worn pants as the conventional garb. Any man who howls that when women wear breeches they leave nothing to men is merely an ignoramus who does not know that pants are not a sign of sex in the east. Also any man, whose only superiority over women is that stitched into his clothes, cannot claim any superiority at all. A manikin in a show window has as much superiority. DANE S. DUNLOP.

THE HERO RETURNS.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—In today's paper is an account of the triumphal return home to Chicago of a former political boss from serving a term at Leavenworth prison. It is reported in this story that this ex-convict received a noisy welcome. It is further reported that several thousand were at the station to pay tribute to this ex-convict, and that there was another demonstration, quite equal to the one at the station, when he reached his home.

This ex-convict is evidently just now starting on the road to real glory and political fame. To give him a good send-off, a testimonial banquet is soon to be held in his honor, with tickets now offered at only $2.50 each. It will be interesting and informative to read in the newspapers a full account of this brilliant banquet and especially to note the names of those who gather about the festal board to do homage to the boss. 86, BUT CERTAINLY NOT AGED.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—May I suggest to the editorial manager of the CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE that its writers—reporters or otherwise—kindly avoid using the word "aged" in referring to me?

I do not accept that adjective as applying to my estate. It arouses a query as to my ability to speak or write intelligently or informatively. I assert that any statement made by me of any may-have-been or might-have-been, or of events that did occur and that I have recorded in my "Story of Abraham Lincoln," are amply and substantially supported either through correspondence or verbal acknowledgment.

Please let me say that although I discard the adjective "aged" I do acknowledge a rich experience covering a period of eighty-six years.

That such an abundant bounty has been mine and still continues to be mine mere words do not nor cannot express my appreciation of so blessed a privilege—long life and unimpaired intellect. ELEANOR GRIDLEY.

HOW RATES ARE MADE.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—In view of the amount of suggestions, advice, and criticism in regard to railroad freight rates, and also Scrutator's article of Feb. 12, perhaps a little information on how a freight rate is made will avoid a good deal of misunderstanding.

First, there is no scientific system or formula for determining a freight rate. Second, the following principles are used in naming a reasonable rate on a given commodity: What will the traffic bear? Value of service to shipper. The volume of traffic. Distance. The cost of service to a railroad. Terminal and handling costs. Competition among carriers. Water competition. Truck competition. Public welfare. Loss and damage claims. Value of a commodity. Market, commercial, industrial and interregional competition.

Very few rates are made without reference to other rates. If rate when made does not meet with approval, and very few do, you file complaint with the interstate commerce commission and they set up a court and then try to decide what a reasonable rate should be.

There are many demagogues in the railroad world, but I believe if the railroads were permitted to run their own business so far as income and outgo are concerned the railroad traffic executive would not have to doff his hat to any one so far as results are concerned. RICHARD W. HANSEN.

INCOMPATIBLE BELIEFS.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—The editorial position taken by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE again is vindicated by the admission credited to Prof. J. M. Yard, whose separation from the faculty of Northwestern university was announced in your Feb. 9 issue. Prof. Yard admits to being a Socialist, and, while that does not discredit him, nor is it proper to cast aspersions upon other very sincere individuals who also hold socialistic views, it is utterly impossible to reconcile Prof. Yard's claim to being a Methodist minister—a follower of Jesus Christ—and also to being an adherent of Karl Marx, who is the high priest of the socialist doctrine.

For many years there has been carried on a determined effort to make socialism appear to be something akin to Christianity. There is even a group calling themselves Christian Socialists. When the actual doctrines and purposes of socialism are clearly understood it is apparent that such a designation is not only completely misleading but a positive contradiction. When it is understood that the socialism of Karl Marx absolutely proscribes Christianity, and that socialist doctrines provide for the abolition of home, family, and other mainstays of Christianity, it must be apparent that no one can be sincerely both a socialist and a Christian minister.

It is hoped that THE TRIBUNE will continue its campaign to maintain the American doctrine of complete separation of church and state. There is an important responsibility resting upon ministers of the gospel to develop Christian spirituality, which, properly applied, will accomplish needed social reform. But the historical record of centuries supplies ample proof that neither legislation nor administrative decrees can accomplish wholesale conversion to the social point of view being urged by many ministers of the gospel who also promote the socialism of Karl Marx. W. J. PATTERSON.

FROM ALVA CHRISTENSEN.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 11.—It is impossible for me to answer all the letters, both kind and unkind, which I have received after my articles on Russia appeared in this paper. I only hope that all the people who wrote such appreciative letters will see this note and accept my sincere thanks. It is strange, but all the unfavorable letters had addresses on them and so few of the nice letters. To "The Reader," who knows what conditions exist in the soviet union today, I give my most grateful thanks. And for A. Haldeman just a very stiff bow. But we can't agree on everything all the time. Any criticism is, for a novice writer, a thing to be appreciated. And I do! ALVA CHRISTENSEN.

BEAUTY'S SUICIDE MYSTERY; STIRS UP DIPLOMATS

Takes Life by Poison; Inquest Held Secretly.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Diplomatic discretion has drawn the curtain before one of London's most sensational suicides and the reason why Mme. Zejnep Vlora, Albanian beauty of high family, drank poison in a small hotel probably will never be known outside official archives.

The public was not advised of the inquest, the press was excluded, and even the time and place of the inquiry was kept secret. The hearing actually was held in the Albanian legation, and Dr. Edwin Smith, the coroner, dismissed inquiries with the remark, "There are occasions when diplomatic reasons come into the question."

Need of money and a jealous suitor were given as the immediate reasons for her suicide by persons who knew her, but the mysterious circumstances which caused the Albanian government to intervene and suppress other facts of her life remain a mystery.

Aided Allies During War.

The red-haired beauty was born in April, 1894, and in the 38 years of her life she packed many secrets of international politics. She soon became a figure of importance in Albania, and is known to have served the allies during the war.

At the age of 13 she was married to Djemil Vlora, one of the most distinguished men in Albania. A few years later she became involved in numerous Balkan intrigues which preceded the war. She is reputed to have furnished valuable information concerning the plans of Gen. Conrad von Roetzendorff, chief of the Austro-Hungarian general staff, to the allied powers.

Leaves Italy for France.

After the war her marriage was dissolved. She had made her home in Italy for several years, but resented the increasing Italian influence in Albania, and left the country when Ahmed Zog became king of Albania. She went to Paris.

For a few years after the war Mme. Vlora lived in luxury on a handsome allowance paid by her former husband. Lately she had been out of funds. She came to London a few days before her death and inquired as to the whereabouts of a cousin who had formerly been attached to the Albanian legation. She appeared upset when informed that he was no longer in England.

SENATE TO GET EARLY OVERTON CASE REPORT

Hearings Then May Be Resumed in South.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Maj. Gen. Samuel Tilden Ansell, former judge advocate general of the United States army and special counsel for the United States senate committee investigating United States Senator Edwin Broussard's charges of fraud and corruption in the 1932 Louisiana primary and election, announced today that he would close the case temporarily. He added he had "other witnesses—hundreds of them"—who would testify to corrupt practices by the Long-Overton political machine that swept Representative John H. Overton into the United States senate.

The committee will resume the hearings later after making a preliminary report to the senate.

Senator Huey P. Long is counsel for Senator Elect Overton. Senator Robert D. Carey of Wyoming and Senator Robert B. Howell of Nebraska, chairman, attended the hearing today.

Senator Long called five or six witnesses, all of whom testified that they saw no indications of fraud in the election. Chief George Reyer of the New Orleans police said it was the quietest election in the city's history. Senator Long announced that he would make no attempt at rebuttal of charges reflecting on his own character.

That there was a "tax" of 5 per cent per month of the pay of the minor state employes with up to 75 per cent for some of the higherups, as testified before the committee, was news to Gov. O. K. Allen, he swore today. Gov. Allen admitted giving $8,000 to the Overton campaign in cash. He said he always consulted with Senator Long on state policies.

Gov. Allen denied, however, he ever had given Senator Huey P. Long an undated resignation as governor. He denied he ever told any one that he had done so.

Seymour Weiss, who handled campaign funds for the Long-Overton faction, continuously refused to answer questions. Senator Long advised him to tell of the political funds, but not of personal funds. Weiss turned to Long and said, "I regret to disagree with you, but I am not going to answer those questions."

Weiss, questioned by Gen. Ansell about deposits in banks and sums in strong boxes, flung back, "That's none of your business."

Gen. Ansell tried to learn what real and personal property Weiss owned in 1932, and the witness said:

"I don't own a nickel's worth of real estate, and that's that. The rest of it is my own affair and I refuse to answer. Now go ahead with the show."

GIRL WEDS IDLE YOUTH; FATHER HAS HER JAILED

Rachel Holmes, 21 years old, appeared before Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus obtained by her father, who swore that she should be taken to the psychopathic hospital for observation. The young woman was found by detectives in an apartment at 4332 North Ashland avenue with James Lombard, 30 years old, to whom she said she was married on Feb. 1 at Waukegan.

Her father did not appear, and Attorney Joseph B. Lynch, who acted as counsel for the couple, said he believed the writ had been obtained by the girl's father because he had opposed the marriage. "Have you a job?" Judge Trude asked Lombard. "Are you able to support this wife you have acquired?"

"No, I have never worked in my life," replied Lombard. "I haven't a cent."

A telephone call to the office of the county clerk at Waukegan brought word that no marriage license had been issued to a couple by that name in the last six months. Judge Trude ordered the woman held until this morning, when her father will be asked to appear in court. Lombard was released, but ordered to return to court today.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 55; recovered, 44; stripped, 6 [from police records for the twenty-four hour period ending at midnight Thursday].

Court cases: James Stastny, sentenced to six months in the House of Correction for stealing an auto, and Archie Quilten, held to the grand jury on a similar charge. Both cases before Judge John Gutknecht.

ROBS MESSENGER OF $187.

George White, 3037 Prairie avenue, a messenger for W. F. McLaughlin & Co., 310 North La Salle street, was robbed of $187 in cash and $8,500 in checks yesterday at La Salle street and Austin avenue. The robber escaped on foot.

PLANE CRASHES ON HOUSE ROOF; PILOT SURVIVES

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—An airplane crashed today on the roof of a semi-detached house on 53d street, Brooklyn, and caused much excitement in the neighborhood. A police emergency squad was sent to the spot with orders to get the plane off before it sank through the roof.

The plane was a Waco and, according to the police, bore the number NC275M. It was jointly owned by Leo Abrams, Sam W. Carlton, and Jerry Longobardi, who kept it, police said, at Floyd Bennett field.

At the time of the crash, police reported, Longobardi was piloting the ship and had no passengers. He was only slightly hurt, an ambulance surgeon said after an examination.

According to the police, Longobardi attempted to land the ship in a vacant lot near the house into which he crashed.

Financial Gyrations Are Described.

into Corporation Securities had been bought at the rate of $7.64 a share. Their investment stood them, therefore, $1,148,115. They took out 1,000,000 shares of Corporation Securities common and 45,436 units, worth at the opening market a total of $44,543,500, showing a profit of $43,395,484 on paper.

Halsey, Stuart had acquired part of its shares of Insull Utility Investments for "accommodating" the Insulls in acting as the intermediary by which 60,000 shares of the corporation's prior preferred stock had been transferred to the Insull selling corporation, the Utility Securities company, at par, instead of at the usual discount.

"It made it look better to the suckers who were going to buy," suggested Senator Robert R. Reynolds [Dem., N. C.], in a loud, large style that recalled his prosecuting attorney days.

Made Generous by Profits.

More Insull Utility Investments shares were given Halsey, Stuart for underwriting $6,000,000 worth of the corporation's debentures. The debentures carried warrants entitling the holder to buy the corporation's common stock at $15. Halsey, Stuart exercised their rights to buy 100,000 shares of common, which were sold through a syndicate which they entered with Utility Securities company. The sale netted a profit to Halsey, Stuart of approximately $2,000,000, virtually the only actual profit of the chain of transactions.

And they were evidently so happy over it that they made a "voluntary gift" of one-third of the two millions to Insull Utility Investments.

"What was the Insull company doing, standing on the corner with a tin cup?" Mr. Pecora wanted to know.

"That great friend of the pee-pul," said the senator in his broad North Carolina drawl.

It appeared from Mr. Stuart's testimony that Merlin H. Aylesworth had wanted a financial program for his National Broadcasting company. Halsey, Stuart agreed to finance it and hired Prof. Nelson.

"Everything was written for him, of course," said Mr. Stuart. "All he did was read it."

One of the "old counselor's" talks was put into the record, in which he told a widow how to invest $10,000 received from her late husband's insurance.

Investment Ethics.

Mr. Stuart said the money had come back into the companies, been reinvested and lost through depreciation of the securities into which it was put, many of them Insull securities.

"Some of the securities that the old counselor recommended, I presume," said Senator Norbeck.

"You want to be fair, don't you?" Mr. Stuart complained. "Only a small part of the securities we sold went bad."

"But don't you think," interposed Mr. Pecora, "that an investment house selling to the public should disclose any and all the interests it has in the securities it sells?"

Mr. Stuart admitted that was a proper rule of conduct.

"But did you do it?" asked Mr. Pecora.

"It should be done in the future," said Mr. Stuart, and later advocated the full publicity required by the English companies' act.

A letter of Feb. 26, 1931, was put into the record in which Halsey, Stuart advised a Miss Evelyn McNeil to sell her government securities and invest part of the proceeds in Corporation Securities company of Chicago, which she did, buying a $1,000 bond of the company.

"Most of It Good."

"Didn't you tell her your company had an interest in Corporation Securities company of Chicago through stock ownership?" Mr. Pecora asked.

"Evidently not," Mr. Stuart admitted, then added, "but four-fifths of the securities we sold her turned out to be good."

Another letter was introduced. This one came from one Frank J. Bunker. Aug. 12, 1932, and complained about the list of bonds which Halsey, Stuart had sold him. All, he said, were in default.

"I was always coached along to think it was all right," he complained. "When I think of the small fortune I sunk in Halsey, Stuart 'sound' bonds, it gives me a headache."

Wilkerson Hears Bankruptcy Plea.

All hope of averting the bankruptcy of the Middle West Utilities company has been abandoned, it was indicated yesterday in proceedings before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

Renewing their petition for a search for assets of the huge utility holding concern which Samuel Insull once valued at 2 billion dollars, attorneys for the creditors of Middle West had the court set their motion for a hearing on Feb. 27.

Search for assets would proceed under the federal bankruptcy act, which entails having the company adjudged bankrupt. Entry of a bankrupt judgment would wipe out the equity of Middle West common stockholders, whose holdings were carried on the company's books at $156,490,000, and preferred stockholders, whose investment was carried at $60,770,000.

Explains Purpose of Move.

Attorney Robert N. Golding of the firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, counsel for a committee representing the holders of Middle West's $40,000,000 gold note issue, explained the purpose of asking the search for assets.

"This company went into receivership last April 19," he said. "On the same day a petition was filed asking that it be adjudged bankrupt. We contend the company was insolvent at that time and contend further that any assets pledged within four months prior to the day of insolvency should be returned to the company for the benefit of all creditors."

"Assets with a current value of $8,000,000 were pledged to the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, First National bank, and Central Republic Bank and Trust company within the four months' period. This collateral was pledged in violation of the bankruptcy act and a search for assets would lay the foundation for suits to recover the collateral."

Attorney Lewis F. Jacobson, counsel for creditors who brought the original bankruptcy petition, joined Attorney Golding in the motion to conduct the search for assets. Attorneys Orville J. Taylor and Kenneth Burgess, representing preferred and common stockholders, pleaded for further time to consult their clients, but offered no denial of the charge that Middle West is bankrupt.

"Outside the collateral held by the banks, Middle West now has only some fourth rate ice houses and some bonds on which little could be realized at the present time," said Mr. Golding.

Attorneys Guy Peters and Charles Weinfeld of counsel for the Middle West receivers, Edward N. Hurley and Charles A. McCulloch, said they were neither affirming nor denying the claim of bankruptcy. They admitted, however, that latest reports of the receivers give little hope for reorganization of the company under present conditions.

Former Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson, who recently blocked the confirmation of Calvin Fentress as receiver for Insull Utility Investments, Inc., on charges that he was the nominee of Samuel Insull and his bankers, appeared in yesterday's proceedings, representing 200 Middle West stockholders.

Will Allow Arguments.

Mr. Ettelson, who says he lost $150,000 personally in the failure of Middle West, was denied permission to intervene in the receivership when the Insull cases were under jurisdiction of Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley. Judge Wilkerson indicated he would allow him to argue when the case comes up on Feb. 24.

The federal grand jury investigation of another Insull unit, the Corporation Securities company, continued yesterday with United States Attorney Dwight H. Green in charge. Among yesterday's witnesses were Harold Huling, special agent of the United States bureau of investigation; Frank A. Rancine and W. R. Irwin, former Insull officials, and Peter Burt, an Insull investor of Joliet.

James Roberts, 52 years old, was found dead yesterday in a passageway at 915 Vernon Park place. Police were not sure whether he died of exposure or heart disease.

Birthday Tragedy

Because his married daughter, Mrs. Josephine Novak, chided him for drinking yesterday, Joseph Bednarek, 54 years old, shot her and his wife in his home at 2825 North Springfield avenue, and then killed himself.

The widow, Mrs. Frances Bednarek, is shot near the heart and will probably die, it was said at the Belmont hospital. Mrs. Novak was wounded in the right forearm.

Yesterday was the 14th birthday of the Bednarek's twin children, Eugent and Chester, and Bednarek had stayed home from his work as a tailor to attend their birthday party, which was to have been yesterday afternoon. The children came home from their classes at St. Hyacinth's parochial school a short time after the shooting.

"My father drank continually and I often told him to stop," Mrs. Novak said. "He finally told me not to come to the house again. I went there this morning to visit my mother and he ordered me to leave. I refused to go. He got his revolver and started shooting."

royal palace. The old man talks assuredly and familiarly about the king and his affairs. The story is told that once he came in with a package of caviar, which he announced he had bought for Carol and was shortly to take over to the royal palace.

Across the way from the Corse café the palace looks like a town house that any banker might own, except for the soldiers in the sentry boxes. The walls are yellow and flush up against the street, with no grills or iron railings to give aloofness. The people in the street can almost look in the windows and see Carol.

"What keeps Carol in power then?" Rumanians are asked. Tradition, inertia, they reply, and the fact that with all his faults, he, or rather the monarchy, makes for political stability.

Not Ready for Republic.

The peasants, who make up 80 per cent of the Rumanian population, could not imagine a government without a king. Rumanian political institutions are not yet mature. The parties of the country cannot act together in times of stress, forgetting minor differences. The people are not yet ready for republican institutions and do not desire them, it is said.

But will Carol finally have to be thrown out? Probably not, is the reply. "But he might decide to go himself. He is a stubborn man, but also frivolous and petulant. If he gets too annoyed or bored and has enough of it he might throw up his job and live abroad again, taking with him his red headed girl."

Mme. Lupescu Still in Capital.

[Dispatches from Nice, France, said Mme. Lupescu had arrived there after fleeing from Bucharest.]

INVALID FOUND STRANGLED.

Mrs. Dorothea Hoepner, 69 years old, an invalid, was found strangled to death yesterday in her home at 225 South Cuyler avenue, Oak Park. Police learned that a rope, which had been fastened to the head of her bed to aid her in moving about, had become looped around her neck during the night.

Short Stories Seen as Key to Trade Upturn

Collections Appear Again on Book Mart.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

I WONDER if it isn't a sign that the publishing business is starting up that alluring mountain that pictures sudden up-scalings of sales, the fact that within two weeks five volumes of short stories have come from the presses of four different publishers. For years it was a recognized fact that short stories sell very much less well than novels; that, as a matter of fact, they were liable to be a precarious investment for however ardent a believer in their charms. Short stories would seem to have been destined to go uncollected in volumes while we were going through what the late Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick always insisted on calling "The Change." They were certainly conspicuously absent from publishers' lists for awhile. And now—five in two weeks, and all, in their own way, excellent! The world MUST be looking up.

D. H. LAWRENCE.

Feb. 6 was the publication date of two volumes from England—or rather one from England and one almost from the grave, for "The Lovely Lady" [Viking] speaks with the posthumous voice of D. H. Lawrence. It contains seven short stories, undated, but said by the publishers to "include the last fiction that D. H. Lawrence wrote." The stories are, as all of Lawrence's later work was, colored with the implications—if not the facts—of sex, and among those implications is the utter devouring psychologically of one human being by another. In the title story, "The Lovely Lady," that devouring was done of a son by a mother. In another, "Mother and Daughter," the almost fatal wreckage was of woman by woman. In both cases it is the subsurface, oftentimes subconscious, gnawing at one personality by another that Mr. Lawrence chronicles. I choose them out of the volume to comment upon because they seem to me to be typically their author in one of his moods, at once fascinating and disappointing.

They are fascinating because, if there is any human wilderness still awaiting the exploring novelist, it is the wilderness of man's mind, and D. H. Lawrence, however ineffectual an explorer he may seem in a century which will unquestionably come to know the human mind at least as well as it knows the human body, has been a sturdy pioneer in penetrating the fringes at least of the jungle.

The stories are disappointing because they lack—at least to me—any beauty whatever in their writing, and D. H. Lawrence wrote, when he would, as lovely as well as powerful prose as any man of his day.

The other volume published on Feb. 6 is called "The Two Thieves" [Viking], and it contains two novelettes and one long story by T. F. Powys, whose "Mr. Weston's Good Wine" is one of the literary joys of our generation. The three stories in this book have, each in its way, the qualities of that memorable volume. The title story is allegorical, a modern parable about a man who gave himself to the devil and became through choice a thief. In it the author savagely (more so than is his wont) shows how successful worldly success can be.

"In Good Earth" is also allegorical, symbolic of man's eternal search for peace and happiness, spiritual and physical, for the hero searches for the good earth in which he can sow seed which has never borne in his own patch of ground. It is a brilliant and a subtle tale. "God" has the humor, mocking and sometimes malicious, of parts of "Mr. Weston's Good Wine." It tells how a boy came to believe, logically, that God actually dwelt in his father's Sunday silk hat, and how, logically, he put that belief into practice during his life. It is fantastic, but very engaging. Mr. Powers in "The Two Thieves" proves himself a master of that most delightful of fictional forms, the long short story and the novelette.

On Wednesday of this week there came—also from England—two volumes of tales wholly different, but each in its own way intriguing. "Don Juan and the Wheelbarrow" [Knopf] contains sixteen stories from the skilled pen of L. A. G. Strong, whose "The English Captain" was just such another collection of unforgettable tales. Many of the stories in "Don Juan and the Wheelbarrow" have Mr. Strong's native Devonshire for background, and some of them have local accent as well as local color. They are episodic, incidental, fragmentary but pungent short tales.

"Mulliner Nights" [Doubleday-Doran] is another collection of yarns by the great Mulliner, creation of the inimitable P. G. Wodehouse who is, to me, the funniest man in any language, including the Scandinavian. One is either a Wodehouse fan or isn't, and when one is there is nothing more to be said than that P. G. Wodehouse has done it again.

And finally next Monday there will appear a volume of stories, "Other Women" [Farrar & Rinehart], by the author of "Night Club," which was one of the most popular groups of short tales of our generation. Katharine Brush has chosen Renwood, Ohio, the scene of her novel, "Red Headed Woman," as the background of six of the twelve tales. And it is with sureness that she wields her specially light but terribly skillful literary scalpel on six types of the genus femina sapiens, in most cases not too sapient. One of the best tales in the book, "Football Girl," is about the least brainy human being in the world, the spoiled baby who may be a flower in the buttonhole of her boy friend, but who is a pain in the side of everybody else.

"Any Spring," by Dorothy Aldis [Minton Balch]. Published yesterday.

BY MARION STROBEL.

HERE are a handful of poems—forty-five in all, but all short—as freshly disarming as a handful of violets. It is, I think, as much of a pity to pull an authentic lyric apart as it is to pull a flower. Dorothy Aldis' lyrics particularly. For they are so very much her own, so unassuming. Within their unpretentious compass, and with seeming effortlessness, they unfold with such sure, individual charm.

DOROTHY ALDIS.

The charm is that of youth. Though these are not children's poems, Mrs. Aldis' philosophy is to wave the "gayest hand she knows to everything that's young." Without sentimentality she succeeds in looking at life with delighted eyes. She gives us spring and early summer in a boy-and-girl world. Her scenes are clear as water colors. There are her "Billowing blue days," her smells of "juniper," of roses that "fall open with the heat." There is "creak on the road, a high hay rick, a driver whittling a willow stick." There are blue grapes, and "puckered sorrel," and a boy bursting through corn, and a girl snipping petunias in a blue smock. There is "Prelude":

Spring comes sharply through
The open window. Children's feet
Rushing by on roller skates
Up the electric street
Makes noises like a winter loosened river;
The little crescent moon is thin and sweet;
Girls' voices lift—
And shiver.

The simple exact word, the personal sure rhythm, the fresh approach do bring spring "sharply through the open window." For this, I think, every one must be grateful.

BRIEF REVIEWS

BY M. D.

Elinor Mordaunt, author of "Cross Winds," and under the pen name of A. Riposte, "Gin and Bitters," is the author of "Mrs. Van Kleek" [Day]. The story is laid in an obscure little island in the South Pacific far off humanity's beaten track, inhabited by a hodge podge of races.

On the island is a small English colony and one large hotel owned and run by the famous and infamous Mrs. Irene Van Kleek who has in her past supped voraciously on life's substances. She is now over sixty but still in the prime of her vitality and usefulness. Like a dictator she holds sway over her provinces. The visitors as well as the natives stand in genuine awe before her massive, purple clad figure, her sharp eyes and elaborately bewigged head.

ELINOR MORDAUNT.

Like most people with indomitable wills, Mrs. Van Kleek either accepts or rejects the men and women who come to her for various reasons, without feeling the need within herself for any sort of justification of her prejudice. When Caroline, the runaway wife, seeks a harbor from the fury of her troubles, Mrs. Van Kleek finds herself experiencing emotions she thought she had forever banished from her life.

The story progresses with increasing complications. Caroline's husband appears and turns out to be very closely attached to Mrs. Van Kleek. There is a terrible plague that causes a panic and many deaths in the island. But it all turns out for the best in the end, though it is a sort of ironic best.

The supplementary characters are etched in acid, though the main character of the dominating Mrs. Van Kleek is a full length portrait in oils of a magnificent old lady. It is a good story, well plotted and executed, ably written and one to hold your interest to the very end.

Issue Three Records Made by Lindsay of His Poems

Vachel Lindsay, before his death in 1931, read 39 of his poems for phonographic recording. The Columbia University press has just issued three of them, "Congo," "Kansas," and "John L. Sullivan, the Strong Boy of Boston." Others will be issued as soon as public interest warrants it.

Oxford Young Write Essays on Pet Hates

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—A new book of essays, which may be of greater interest as the expression of "the young idea" than many of those already published, is "Red Rags," which has as its subtitle the explanatory words, "Essays of Hate from Oxford." All the essays are the work of men recently or still undergraduates at the university, and each contributor has been asked to describe his own particular detestation and to destroy it in his own way. There is a freshness and liveliness in some of the titles that promises well.

For example, John Connell, who came down from Oxford two years ago and has since been writing for the press with uncommon vigor, deals with "Purveyors of Sex Bunk." G. B. Trevelyan, it appears, has a horror of those who dwell in "Garden Cities." (English dwellers in such colonies are bare-headed men with beards, flapping trousers, and carefully nonchalant manners who read Edward Carpenter, while the women wear floppy cretonne frocks and slap about in sandals); Lionel Hale dislikes "Literary Persons," Gilbert Highet "Motherhood," Richard Oke (already a novelist of gifts) "Morons in Uniform," and Richard Houghton "Desecrators of the Family."

The editor of the book is Richard Comyns Carr, and an epilogue is provided by Justice McCardie, the English judge whose obiter dicta receive nowadays in the press that publicity which used to be enjoyed by the witticisms of Justice Darling. A thoroughly high spirited and contradictory book is promised, for while Robert Bernays, the juvenile member of parliament, hates "diehards," who are the leaders of his political party, John Boyd Carpenter hates "People Who Hate Politicians." A feature of the book is the fact that many of the contributors bear names rendered celebrated by their immediate forbears.

The novel of the moment in London is Michael Arlen's "Man's Mortality," everywhere very enthusiastically praised as something beyond what reviewers expected of Mr. Arlen and as something beyond any of his previous works.

A romantic novel that is going to be one of the popular successes is "She Saw Them Pass By," a tale in the vein of "The Prisoner of Zenda" and "Graustark," written by N. K. Chapman.

And, as the name Chapman is mentioned, let me say that Guy Chapman's book of personal memories of the European war, entitled "A Passionate Prodigality," is attracting much attention. Mr. Chapman has had a great deal of publishing experience, at first on his own account and latterly with the London firm of Eyre & Spottiswoode. He was also at one time manager of Mr. Knopf's London business.

What then is the advantage of joining?

There are many: first, book-dividends; for every dollar its members spend on books they receive back on the average over 50% in the form of free books. Second, without a penny of expense, through the reports of the judges you are kept completely informed about all the important new books, so that you can choose among them with discrimination, instead of having to rely upon advertising and hearsay. There are several other advantages, not readily measurable in money, that cannot be outlined here for lack of space. Surely, within the next year, the distinguished judges of the Club will choose as the book-of-the-month or recommend as alternates, at least a few books that you will be very anxious to read and which you will buy anyway. Why not—by joining the Club—make sure you get these instead of missing them, which so often happens; get the really substantial advantages the Club affords (such as the book-dividends mentioned, if nothing else), and at the same time get a copy of NINE PLAYS by Eugene O'Neill, free.

Woman's Club Shows Talents of Members

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

The Chicago Woman's club celebrated its 57th birthday yesterday afternoon with a cake and candles, ice cream and cake. Several hundred members attended the party at the clubhouse at 72 East 11th street to watch their president, Mrs. Harvey Fox, blow out the flickering candles and to hear her tell the club's history since the '70s.

"That's to grow on," said Mrs. Fox as the 57th candle faded. "Of course, we are never through growing."

The tea party climaxed a day of activity. For the first time in years the club took stock of the talents within its own ranks and presented a program replete with interest from the exhibit of decorative arts in the morning to the prize poems of Mrs. Russell Dean Comfort in the afternoon.

It was Mrs. Frederic Porter's idea to have the members bring their needlework, quilting, drawings, and writing for display. As first vice president she has frequently heard them tell of their tapestries and water colors, so she decided a collection of these works would be a perfect exhibit for the club's birthday at home.

Mrs. Harlan Ward Cooley, former president, revealed herself as an artist. In one case were special pieces of the china she has painted, and on the long center table that listed the club's authors and composers was a book filled with her water colors. Then there were the sculptored bookends of Mrs. Warren Smith and the miniatures of Miss Mayda Heuermann. Close by the miniatures were the three bronze medals that Miss Hauermann won at the World's Fair of '93 and at other expositions since.

Listed among the club's authors yesterday were Lucy Fitch Perkins, Irene Jean Crandall, Katharine Knowles Robbins, Katherine Pope, Ethel M. Colson Braxleton, Miss Louella Chapin, Katherine Peabody Girling, Florence Crocker Comfort, and Helen Lee. Mrs. Hannah Solomon's "A Sheaf of Leaves" was exhibited next—a book written by her daughter, Mrs. Emile Levy. This was "Socrates to Freud."

Then there were the musical compositions of Belle L. Gorton and Una Howell Cook, both of them club members. Mrs. S. A. Phillips, it was discovered, has written the words for a number of songs and Mrs. G. R. Jenkins a biography of the Jenkins family through twelve generations.

Then there were patchwork quilts, one of them done by Mrs. Fox's mother, Mrs. Nannie McCormick Coleman, and the cathedral chair done in needlepoint by Mrs. Joseph A. Jerger. In the Tudor gallery of the clubhouse hung paintings by Jean Fox Garner-Smith, Mrs. Fox's daughter, as well as by the well known artist member of the club, Pauline Palmer.

Mrs. Fox recalled during the afternoon yesterday the beginning of the club at a meeting at the home of Mrs. Caroline M. Brown. Mrs. Brown occupied an apartment at 269 Erie street, the first among the "first class" apartments in Chicago. This group of founders agreed on four committees on the home, education, philanthropy, and reform. They figured that timid souls who "feared that women might get outside their sphere" would not object to serving in the interests of home, that mothers would take a lively interest in education, that all good church workers might lend a hand to philanthropy, and that the "unterrified" would gravitate toward reform.

Miss Hattie Summerfield in a costume of 1857 was a popular guest at the party yesterday.

Good Morning!

Big times over at the Chicago! In person—MARY GARDEN! [See Mr. Moore's column for news of that lovely lady.] AND Ed Lowry, plus other popular entertainers. On the screen—

It's always an immense satisfaction to gaze upon a human being who "comes back." So—get a good, round eyeful of Miss Nancy Carroll, who scored high for a time, hit the skids and whizzed into brief oblivion and is NOW atop the pile waving a flag.

She did a magnificent piece of work recently in 'Child of Manhattan." In "Woman Accused" she gives a repeat performance. Here is a fine emotional actress as well as a little beauty. May the gods continue kindly in the matter of handing her proper vehicles!

"Woman Accused" is adapted from a magazine serial. The script was authorized by ten writers, including Rupert Hughes, Vicki Baum, Zane Grey, Vina Delmar, Irvin S. Cobb, and Gertrude Atherton. It is a many-faceted melodrama full of suspense and alive with "love interest." It boasts a fine cast—with Cary Grant playing the male lead in a manner to start feminine pulses bounding, Louis Calhern villaining as Louis Calhern can, John Halliday cleverly depicting the latter's brainy lawyer friend, and Jack La Rue giving a most colorful and convincing picture of a gangster rat.

The action is speedy. Situations are surprising. Dialogue is crisply potent. There's a lavish, showy glamorousness about the whole thing that will cause the film to appeal to sensation lovers of all classes.

Note [you won't be able to HELP noting!] the scene in which Little Maxie gets his at the hands of the 'andsome 'ero, Mister Jeffrey Baxter. There, my hearties, is a bit that even old arena-blaze Nero would have licked his chops over!

Mary Garden Is Popular in Her New Role

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Mary Garden is now in Chicago, and engaged in what is for her a new field, that of the audiences who go to picture theaters. She has just begun a week at the Chicago theater, and the signs indicate that she is going to be as popular there as she has been through the past seasons in opera.

Certainly she is as sincere in her performance as she ever was in an operatic rôle. Condescension to audiences has never been in her scheme of things, and least of all now. She is the final figure and the climax of the show preceding the film, a show of agile dancing, other singing, orchestral and organ music, and comic quips.

Finally the curtains part and disclose Miss Garden, a glowing vision of red gown and glittering jewels. She sings, sings again, and then again. "I Love You" is one, "Comin' Thro' the Rye" is another, and never were the Garden voice and the Garden personality more persuasive. She leaves the stage, "for two minutes," as she says, while the group of dancers perform the Spanish dance of the second act of "Carmen." She returns, clad as the cigaret girl of the first act, and sings the Habanera.

That is all. It is a brief scene, but it is long enough to make the audience wish there was more of it, and by that token it is as shrewdly conceived and executed as anything she ever did. As a matter of fact, she sings the Habanera considerably better than she sometimes did in the old days at the Auditorium and the Civic Opera house. But song or operatic excerpt, she is not only a singer but an unequaled actress of song.

Capt. P. C. Delley post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, is sponsoring an operatic concert featuring some famous artists to be given at the Glenbard High school auditorium, Glen Ellyn, Saturday, March 18. Among the participants will be Jone Pane-Gasser, tenor, who has sung well here in several opera performances this season, and has also appeared with the Detroit Civic Opera company, Berlin State opera, Vienna State opera, and at Verona, Italy; Tina Paggi, coloratura soprano, just returned from singing in the Mozart festival at Salzburg, Austria; Ada Paggi, her sister, mezzo-soprano and member of the Chicago Civic and Ravinia companies, and Mario Fiorelli, baritone, of the Chicago and San Francisco companies. There will be a chorus of thirty, and the performance will be conducted by Attico Bernabini of the Chicago Civic Opera company.

Cloth Flowers Just Right for Dress Accent

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Only about one-half of a half of 1 per cent of the hurrying female shoppers really value the clever flower displays . . . imitating the blooms that are made of organdies, silks, velvets, and now the newest creations of straw and feathers. These same careful shoppers know that a suit, a simple one piece frock and even sports clothes are twice as clever when they are accented with a crisp boutonniere of white or color. And now is the dragging time of the season when money invested in unusual botanical creations is money most suitably expended.

For instance, the yellow flowers. If these first hardy harbingers of a spring day aren't the cheeriest accents you can find nothing in color ever will be. You can find full blown, lovely flowers to wear in pairs, right in the center of a black or dark blue wool ascot scarf, which is the proper smart way to keep your tie or scarf in position. Smaller buds of this luscious canary yellow shade make sunny spots of color on any dark or gray frock.

Next . . . the nosegays, prim, tight little bouquets that look like they might have dropped from some very sentimental valentine . . . they are variegated bouquets of a couple of daisies, a single pony, a lone and solitary bachelor button, a spray or two of blue bells, and just enough green to make the entire combine fool the most exacting gardener.

Clovers have arrived in all colors. Some fascinating smoke gray clover clusters are made of feathers, believe it or not, and they make a very realistic and fetching accent for an empty suits lapel. You probably never picked a pale yellow clover, but you can buy some now that will do grand things for a bit of added cheer for depressed clothes. Rosy red clovers with lots of mauve mixed with the red can be used with afternoon dresses and some of the new printed evening frocks. White violets are something else that will charm the flower fancier . . . perky, delightful bunches of these lovely white things are perfect with evening clothes as well as afternoon costumes, and if you want to be very different do try a nosegay of pale chartreuse violets against a cornflower blue suit or blouse.

For the first time you are going to see all kinds of brilliant red blooms—fragile organdy flowers, very different from any particular garden flower, but exotically spectacular, nevertheless, and a very flaming contrast for light colored sheer dance dresses.

And just as dramatic and improbable, as far as nature is concerned, are the languorous, dusky black flowers, also of organdy, that perch like huge black butterflies on chalk white gowns and costumes. Almond green flowers made of crisp cross-barred organdies, or chiffon or net, with glossy black leaves to back them in position, seem particularly practical and colorful for tweeds and plaid, but the most amusing blooms you will discover are the gingham posies, the plaid cotton buds, the pique creations, and the feathered beauties, that some sprightly indoor gardener with nimble fingers and a good elastic imagination has concocted for street clothes and sports wear.

Big fat zinnias, in all the gorgeous flaming colors that only these stunning flowers can boast about, are just what you will need for the buttonholes in the lapels of your slim, trim new spring suit. Try the burnt orange zinnia with gray, the deep mahogany shade with black and white checks, or the sulphur yellow shade with black, navy, or brown.

Charity Dance.

Critic Attacks New Exhibition at Arts Club

Calls Paintings by Masson Sloppy Work.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

A great deal of courage must be running around loose at the Arts club for it to sponsor the exhibit of paintings by André Masson, which opened yesterday. A kindergarten child would feel conscious stricken to show such deliberately sloppy concoctions to his teacher.

Not in many months has the club waved as red a rag as this in the face of Chicago. Here is the, one hopes, peak of garbled modernism. The zenith of abstraction has been reached, the culmination of those dreams to make art zero. "Than nothing," some modernist has said, "there is no greater art."

Fortunately for visitors of short temper and limited patience the exhibit is not extensive. Some fourteen pictures sum it up. But what pictures! Masson has done without pattern, design, color, sense, craftsmanship, delicacy, imagination; in fact his technique is a marvel of negations.

Where he is positive it is with such awkward, unintelligible, super-naive fumbling that out of the litter of his stuff no satisfaction emerges. The "Enlevement," a rhapsody based surely upon the fate of Humpty Dumpty is the single picture in the show where the artist has bothered even with the clarity of his paint.

The Arts club redeems its reputation, however, in the remarkable exhibition "Towards the New City and the New City Life," which is on view in the larger gallery. This exhibit was organized by the Gallery of Modern Life in Chicago. The exhibit is arranged as peepshows and murals of conditions as they exist in the city and in the country today and as they might be tomorrow.

The exhibit is a witty and poignant attack upon our slums, speakeasies, factories, poise, and, in short, all of the unsatisfactory complications which have sprung out of city living. It is a picture with two faces: one that we know, one that we may know. The ideal city has parks, green spaces, all of the circumstances idealists pray for.

That the ideals are capable of practical interpretation is demonstrated in the plan of Mariemont, an actual city near Cincinnati, where the building was developed by definite plan.

The exhibition is fascinating. It will continue to March 14 and no one should miss it. Children will be as interested as adults in the various tiny stages set with tiny paper dolls doing a myriad things.

Shubert Quits Broadway for Chicago Rialto

Will Produce a Series of Shows Here.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

J. J. Shubert, the theatrical producer with nearly thirty years of activity in his career, announced yesterday that he had transferred his headquarters from New York to Chicago. He has come here to stage a series of musical shows at the Grand Opera house, and he immediately put a company into rehearsal.

Mr. Shubert said that Broadway, the old capital of the show business in America, "is too sophisticated nowadays." Plays which go over big on Broadway get a cool reception from the rest of the country, he said.

"I decided to make a radical change and come out to Chicago to start a new series of productions," said the producer. "I intend to put on two or three musical plays before the end of the World's Fair and later I plan to produce several dramatic plays."

Mr. Shubert's first production, which will follow "The Student Prince" at the Grand two or three weeks hence, is to be a musical comedy with scenes in Chicago and Vienna. Its title has not yet been selected, but the libretto, by Harry Clarke and Kay Kenny, and the score, by Murry Rumshinsky, are ready for the stage and musical directors. J. Harry Benrimo, veteran stage director and occasional playwright, is in charge of rehearsals, under the supervision of Mr. Shubert.

The cast for this piece will be composed of principals of "The Student Prince" company and several other players who have come from New York. Allan Jones, now singing the title rôle in "The Student Prince"; George Hassell, J. Charles Gilbert, John Goldsworthy, and Lorraine Weimar of "The Student Prince" will have important rôles. Jones, now appearing in the title rôle of that operetta, will be the leading man of the new cast. Among the new recruits are Martha Lorber and Nick Long Jr., both well known on the song-and-dance stage.

Mr. Shubert announces that he has several other new pieces to follow the show now in rehearsal. Among these prospects are "Beau Brummel," a musical version of Richard Mansfield's famous vehicle, adapted by Gladys Unger, with a score by Harry Tierney, and "When the Lark Sings," an operetta by Franz Lehar, world famous as the composer of "The Merry Widow."

The Majestic theater, which has been closed for nearly two years except for occasional benefit performances, will reopen about March 15 as a cinema house. It has been leased by the Monroe-State Theater corporation, which will rehabilitate its interior and install the mechanism necessary for the exhibition of sound films. The new lessees also operate the Roxy theater of Franklin, Ind., and picture houses in Kokomo, Ind.; Peru, Ind., and Ottawa, Ill.

The Majestic was built about twenty-five years ago as a first class vaudeville theater and a strategic point on the Orpheum circuit. In recent years, since the decline of vaudeville, it has offered musical comedies, operetta revivals, and an occasional drama. Its last important dramatic offering was "Lysistrata."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stuart Given, representatives of the American tour of the Abbey Theater company from Dublin, are now in Chicago and available for addresses on the subject of the modern Irish drama and the Abbey's history. They spoke yesterday before the Executives' club in the Hotel Sherman. The Abbey Players will come to the Harris theater Feb. 26 for a two weeks' engagement in an extensive repertory of plays.

Catholic Women.

The Council of Catholic Women will hold a benefit card party this evening at the Palmer house. Proceeds will go to the support of Catholic girls' welfare work.

Crane Wedding Today Will Be Brilliant One

Bride Is Noted for Beauty and Charm.

BY JUDITH CASS.

ALTHOUGH it has been heralded as the most simple sort of wedding, with the invitations to the hundred relatives and friends who will witness the ceremony extended by telephone instead of by the usual engraved invitations, the marriage today of Miss Florence Crane and William Albert Robinson takes its place in the social history of Chicago as being one of the most important and brilliant weddings ever solemnized in the city.

The bride is the only daughter of the late Richard T. Crane Jr. and Mrs. Crane, and she is noted for her beauty and charm, and in years past she was considered one of Chicago's great heiresses. With the changes that have come about in the last few years she may not be the heiress that she once was, but nothing can change the fact that she is the daughter of one of Chicago's best known and most prominent families and that she is one of the loveliest young women ever to have grown up and "come out" socially and to have married here.

The Crane residence at 1550 Lake Shore drive, a handsome Tudor house, is more ideal for a wedding than any other house I can think of, with its Caen stone halls, its cloistered passages, its leaded glass windows, its grand stairway with exquisite carvings, and its pipe organ on the landing. It is as near an ecclesiastical setting as could be obtained outside a church.

Service Will Be in Drawing Room

The service is to be read in the paneled drawing room by the Rt. Rev. George Craig Stewart, Episcopal bishop of Chicago, and the Rev. Dudley Stark of St. Chrysostom's church. Stanley Martin, organist of St. Mark's in Evanston, and twelve vested choir boys will furnish the music.

Cornelius Crane will give his sister in marriage and she will be attended only by Miss Eleanor McCormick. George Palmer Putnam will serve as best man for Mr. Robinson. A reception will follow the ceremony, after which the couple will leave on their wedding trip, destination unannounced. They plan to be in the east, however, where Mr. Robinson will supervise the building of his new yacht and finish the new book he is writing, until they sail in August in the yacht for a trip through the Panama canal and up the west coast to Alaska.

Those who attend the wedding today will have a feeling of sadness mingled with their feeling of pleasure at Miss Crane's happiness, for they cannot help but feel that this may be the last function in the beautiful house that they ever will attend, for Mrs. Crane plans to close the house on March 1 after her son and his wife have left for Panama, where they will visit the younger Mrs. Crane's parents, Admiral and Mrs. Clark Howell Woodward at Balboa.

Practically all of those who will be at the wedding today were there at the engagement tea that Mrs. Crane gave in January of this year and at the reception in 1928 at which Miss Crane was introduced formally to society.

Country Circus at Casino Tonight

Tonight's the night the old fashioned country circus is coming to the Casino with Mary Cramer [Mrs. Ambrose C.], Elizabeth Paepcke [Mrs. Walter P.] and Ellen Stevenson [Mrs. Adlai E.] among the headliners. Every seat around the sawdust ring has been reserved for weeks, and dinner lists have been manufactured and rechecked in preparation for the "grandissimo" event.

Most of the dinner parties have been scheduled for 7 o'clock "sharp" in order that all of the guests may get over to Michigan avenue and Delaware place by 9:30 for the beginning of the circus parade. And it's a safe guess that it will be easier to recognize many of the acrobats and freaks in this line of march than when they are lined up later in stunts and side shows.

The side shows are going to open at 10 o'clock—prodigious, amazing spectacles, according to the red and yellow dodgers that have been stuffed in society's mail boxes the last week. At 11:35 will come the grand march, followed by the "big" show at midnight. Ben Fairbanks with his satchel full of magic is going to perform at 1 o'clock. Dancing and a buffet supper will wind up the evening.

Performers that guests will try to recognize include Mr. and Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr., Howard F. Gillette, Walter P. Paepcke, Adlai E. Stevenson, Alfred P. Shaw, Stephen Y. Hord, Arthur Meeker, Walter Frazier, Philip B. Maher, Miss Marjorie Goodman, Miss Louise Dewey, Miss Janet Fairbank, Stuart H. Otis, Miss Peggy Hambleton, and Mrs. Graham Aldis.

All of the hostesses giving dinner parties before the circus are speculating about the costumes in which their guests will appear. The committee managing the circus, headed by Ambrose C. Cramer, has asked that there be no white ties and black velvet trains. The committee members want their guests to come as performers or in the garb they would ordinarily wear to a country circus.

Mrs. Edward H. Bennett is entertaining at dinner at the Casino for her house guest, Mrs. Henry Howitt of Guelph, Canada, and Mr. and Mrs. Sartell P. Porter [Mrs. Porter is the former Elinor Durbin] have asked a number of guests to their first dinner party at their own home.

Other hosts and hostesses at dinner at the Casino will include Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr., Mr. and Mrs. I. Newton Perry, Russell Tyson, the Orville Taylors, the Adlai E. Stevensons, the Ellsworth Laflins, and the Arthur Meekers.

FOLLY ISLAND

By Wallace Irwin

SYNOPSIS.

Bart Burgess is marooned in a catboat on Peconic bay, fifty miles from his Long Island home in Wyattville. His companion, Ingalls Frederick Warren, spoiled child of a newsstand magnate, known as "Nosey Inky," sows to town and sends Bart help and takes home. A girl in a canoe invites Bart over to her family's island. Bart learns that she is one of the Bayleys, who have lived in seclusion on the island fifteen years. The father travels. He invites the girl, Alice, to visit him in Wyattville. Less than a week later Trevor Burgess, Bart's father, dies suddenly from a heart attack. He confesses in a letter left for Bart to being a bigamist. The Bayleys of Folly Island are his second family. They know him as Matthew Bayley. He asks Bart, for his invalid mother's sake, to guard the secret, and leaves a fortune to provide for the Bayleys. Bart calls on Mrs. Bayley, passing as a lawyer, and finds her a lovely woman, not the harridan he expected. Bart is happy to learn from her mother that Alice isn't Matthew Bayley's daughter. But to keep her from visiting his home and seeing his father's pictures is now a gentleman. When Bart realizes he loves Alice, he resolves to stay away from Folly Island. He sees a lot of Lora Sackett, a distant relative and recent divorcee, and soon finds himself unexpectedly engaged. The Bayleys visit New York and Bart has luncheon with them. Ingy Warren has been visiting the island and has invited Alice to Wyattville. Bart and Alice quarrel. He tells her of his engagement and she says she never wants to see him again. Hen Love, an eel catcher, long employed by the Bayleys, turns blackmailer when he sees their newly acquired affluence.

INSTALLMENT XXX.

THE ILLUSION OF FREEDOM.

Captain Hen Love stood a while in the sand swearing softly low clam digger oaths. Then impetuously he kicked over the eel bucket and fairly ran to his boat on the shore. As he pushed off and headed for the inlet his brain was churning like the propeller. . . . "Got the money, got a swellhead. Don't care, huh, whether I talk or not? I'll show her whether she cares or not. Lemme see. That Burgess feller won't be no good to me, because he's sore at 'em all. Guess he's through. But this here now rich feller with the yacht . . . when did I hear him say he was comin' back? Wednesday. And, by gosh, what's today? . . ."

A picture answered his question. In midchannel, safely removed from sand bars, a small white yacht lay at anchor. Sailors were letting down a motor boat. Hen Love turned his course so abruptly that The Baby shipped water and all but foundered. Then he pointed directly at the yacht and stood by within a few yards of her accommodation ladder.

Floating, he waited until a smallish young man in a smartly nautical jacket and lily white trousers came gingerly down and stood on the float.

"Hello," he called out pleasantly. "How's Capt. Hen Love today?"

"Pretty good, thank ye, and how's Mr. Warren?"

"Never better. What can I do for you, captain?"

"Well, I jest come over from Folly Island and I'd like to speak to you if it ain't puttin' you out any."

"Not in the least." Ingy Warren stood there taking in Hen Love with a speculative, almost eager stare. "Why don't you come aboard, captain? I've got loads of time."

"Thank ye kindly," said Capt. Love. Remembering his manners, he took off his broken hat as he followed the owner up on deck.

For the weeks that followed, seeing Lora Sackett off and on, when she would and when she wouldn't, Bart walked in the illusion of freedom. Freedom from himself, from circumstances. Armored against his own imagination, he refused to remember how Alice had looked that day, her defiance more pathetic than tears as she flashed scorn across a restaurant table.

Because he pretended a great deal he was able to go on with his own program. He pretended that he had never inherited Folly Island and the midsummer madness it seemed to breed. He played that all currents ran smooth, all breezes came steadily, and he had never swerved an inch from the safe deep channel. He convinced himself that he was devotedly in love with Lora Sackett, exciting enough for any man; and when that was settled his life would be settled—he would take his place biologically as another item in the Burgess ancestry.

This was real, everything else a dream. There was no realism in his father's wanderings from the marked course. The other widow, tragic and calm in her rocky garden, deserved no place in rational daylight thoughts. Neither did a girl with aquamarine eyes who spoke of ships as birds which the fair inlet held in its two hands. . . . And if he remembered her at all it was with a forced reassurance that he had struck out harshly in order that she, too, might cease to dream until she was destroyed. . . .

One morning, just before he was leaving for the office, Bart paused at the drawing room door; a voice might have been calling him, causing him to turn his head. Looking in, he saw again the full portrait of his father dominating the expensive hodgepodge of Burgess furniture. The eyes looked out with the imperturbable gaze of painted things. "I'm immortal," the picture seemed to say, "because I have neither lungs nor bowels; I'm just the idea of a man, and that never dies."

In the grip of an almost superstitious fear, Bart clapped on his hat and rolled away again to the numbing routine of the insurance business.

And as a matter of his routine he called on Lora that afternoon on his way home. His vanity stung only a little when Viola, the colored maid, announced that Mrs. Sackett was out. "And Mrs. Lind?" "She gone over to the bridge club, Mr. Burgess." Viola, being African, was a natural intermediary between the whims and intrigues of white folks. Her tea colored eyes, shallow as a hunting dog's, accepted everything and reflected a great deal that she knew. Why, they asked, was Mr. Burgess making all this fuss about Miss Lora without setting any date for the wedding? They had had a modest engagement party weeks ago, and certainly they ought to do something about getting married.

"Thank you. I can pick her up at the bridge club."

"No, suh, Mr. Burgess. She ain't gone to the bridge club, I guess. She left 'bout half an hour before Mrs. Lind did, and said maybe you'd be comin' over to the country club."

"She went in Mr. Warren's car?"

"Yes, suh. They'll be waitin' there for you, Mr. Burgess." Suavely, appeasingly she closed the door. He went back to his car and pointed it toward home.

He tried to be indignant with Ingy Warren, always standing in his way, whatever he was doing. But he had ceased to bother about Ingy or anything much any more. Bart had been dutiful to Lora, gone about with her as much as one could out of a mourning household. He had shown up with her at the country club and along the sidelines at polo and tennis matches. There had been short, snatched kisses in the dark, and her arms around him, and her nervous voice hair jeering him back to the realism which he had chosen for himself.

But Lora had to dance. She had to sit up late and drink cocktails and say snappy things to people who happened along. That was all right, too. After they were married Bart could join in this flapdoodle, and they'd be a very popular couple, the kind you can pick up at any time and start something. Bart had been very busy in town these days laying the road to his future, where he'd be settled and happy and all the things married couples were supposed to be. Social usage had kept him home nights or very quietly loafing around the little Wyattville house with Lora. She hadn't lost a parent recently, and it didn't seem fair to hold her forever in an endless tête-à-tête.

Ingy Warren was a good enough stop-gap: if it had been any one else Bart would have been thankful to him for keeping Lora entertained while the engagement hung fire. Without acknowledging it to himself—pretending not even to think about it any more—Bart was glad that Ingy's mind was off Folly Island and that his promise there had been as vain as his other promises. Lora would be a married woman pretty soon, Bart's wife. There would be a wedding some time, vaguely, next spring. The two had agreed that it would be better to wait until the year of mourning was over. There was plenty of time.

Makes Noise Like Pekinese Biting in Boudoir.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—You could take 100 guesses and never pick the person whom M-G-M assigned to make a noise like a Pekingese biting Blanche Frederici in a boudoir scene in "Man on the Nile," Novarro's current starring vehicle. The offstage woof woof was none other than Reginald Denny, and I saw him go through the scene fourteen times without a sign of boredom while the dog muffed his cues today in a shot showing Louise Closser Hale expressing distaste for Miss Frederici's snooty way of running other people's business.

For some reason interest in cowboy films seems so keen in England that RKO studio has received more than 1,000 letters in a contest to suggest a name for the actor, Tom Keene's horse. The horse is black and white, and a number of the letters from Britain suggest the name "Whisky." Keene and Betty Furness are now making a film named "Cross Fire," about a gun toting family.

An unusual lawsuit involves the disposition of a $5,000 fund set in trust here last year by Rudolf Friml, light opera composer, for support of his daughter, Lucille. City Attorney Werner of Los Angeles felt himself called on to file a friendly action against the girl, her father, her attorney, who is Miss Dorothy Garland, and the trust holder to determine disposition of unpaid balance of $2,982 of the fund which had been set with instructions to be "paid to Miss Friml in installments until coming of age." She came of age before the money was all paid out, and the city attorney wants to know who can give him a legal receipt for the rest of it.

Dinner Tonight for Miss Hasler

Miss Geraldine Swift will be a dinner hostess tonight at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift of 1551 Astor street, for Miss Constance Hasler and Jack Simpson who are to be married on March 18. The party may adjourn to the Casino after dinner or it may not, so Miss Swift said yesterday.

If there is ice, the twenty young people who will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hermon Dunlap Smith at a luncheon they will give tomorrow at their residence in Lake Forest for Miss Laura Thorne, will skate after luncheon at the Winter club but if there isn't and the weather is suitable for any sort of outdoor sport, they will play paddle tennis.

Paddle tennis? What is that? You are thinking that, no doubt, just as I did when Mrs. Smith mentioned it. Well, it is a sort of tennis played on an outdoor wooden court about half the size of a tennis court and instead of a tennis racket the player uses what looks like a huge ping-pong bat but which weighs the same as a tennis racket.

Instead of light rubber balls, one uses sponge rubber balls which are heavier than regular tennis ones. The strokes and scoring are the same as in tennis, but the game is much faster than lawn tennis, making it a perfect winter game, but not so good a summer one as regular tennis.

The Smiths put in their court last winter and they and their friends have become great devotees of the game. The only other court we know about in this vicinity is that of the Gordon Langs, who live on Private road in Winnetka and who also are enthusiastic about the game.

Paddle tennis grew out of a project to give amusement and exercise to children in the slums of New York when some of the streets were marked off for tennis. A resident of a New York suburb saw what fun the boys had on these miniature courts with their makeshift rackets and balls, and he saw the possibilities of developing a new game. So he had a wooden court built at his home and in the five or six years since then the game has become amazingly popular in the east. It is comparatively unknown out here, however, for neither the Smiths nor the Langs have heard of any courts besides theirs.

Mrs. Smith and Miss Thorne are sisters, both being daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Thorne.

May Wear Red at Symphony.

Dark red and a cheery tone of green predominated in the enthusiastic audience that gathered yesterday afternoon to hear Nathan Milstein in his third performance this week with the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed was wearing her "Cossack" hat that has been a sensation in social circles the last two weeks. Others observed during the afternoon were Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Miss Alice Rouillier, Mrs. William B. Greenlee, Mrs. Ralph H. Poole, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, Mrs. John W. Gary, Mrs. Donald P. Welles, Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr., Mrs. William L. Hodgkins, Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, Mrs. Albert H. Wetten, Mrs. George T. Langhorne, Miss Louise Brewer, Miss Dorothy Ranney, Miss Peggy Hambleton, Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, and Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr.

After the concert yesterday many of those who had enjoyed the music went up to the Arts club for tea and to see the very interesting models of housing and city planning organized by the Gallery of Modern Life and a show of André Masson's.

Bowls of gay spring flowers decorated the tea table which was laid in the drawing room instead of in the large gallery as is customary because the models were set up in there. Mrs. Eames MacVeagh acted as hostess in the absence of Mrs. Potter Palmer, social chairman.

Some of those at the tea party were Mrs. Alfred P. Shaw, Mrs. Daniel H. Burnham, Mrs. William O. Goodman, Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Mrs. John Root, Mrs. Henry G. Gale, Mrs. Henry Holsman, Mrs. William E. Parsons, Mrs. Arthur Farwell, Miss Harriet Clifford, Mrs. Orville Taylor, Mrs. Philip Maher, Mrs. Frederic C. Bartlett Jr., Mrs. Paul Schulze and her little granddaughter, Ida May Schulze.

Cards were received yesterday from the Arts club announcing a lecture next Thursday morning at 11:30 o'clock by Maurice Sachs on "The Decade of Illusion: Paris, 1918-1928." Sachs is the great-grandson of the composer of "Carmen," Bizet, and although he is only 26 years old, he is said to be carrying on the traditions of his family which for many generations has been associated with the political and artistic life of France.

Parties for Miss Sackville-West.

The Hon. Victoria Sackville-West, who was in town yesterday just for the day, was the guest at luncheon of Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, who had just a small party at her residence, 1244 State parkway, for the English novelist. Later Mr. and Mrs. William Houston Johnson gave a tea for her at their residence, 1420 Lake Shore drive, some of the guests being Mr. and Mrs. Francis Neilson, Mrs. Alden B. Swift and Miss Marcissa Swift, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, Mrs. Silas H. Strawn, Mrs. Melvin A. Traylor, Mrs. Warren C. Fairbanks, Mrs. William A. Yager, Lord and Lady Hastings, Mrs. Francis Johnson, Mrs. Francis T. A. Junkin, Miss Edna Kellogg and the Robert J. Dunhams.

Alumnae of Dana hall at Wellesley, Mass., are looking forward to the luncheon they will give next Saturday at the Woman's Athletic club for Miss Dorothy Waldo, principal of the school. Hostesses for the party will be Miss Margaret Huth, Mrs. Frank S. Sims, Miss Betty Hunt, Miss Alice Jacques, Miss Mildred Wetten and Mrs. C. A. Weaver.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Madlener left last week for Pasadena, Cal., and they will be away probably until the middle of March.

Mrs. C. Frederick Childs and her sister, Miss Madeleine J. Newell, went to New York for a short visit last Monday and they will be home again next Tuesday.

The Arthur Cables of Glencoe are due to arrive at their charming winter home near Santa Fé tomorrow. The whole family with the exception of Buddy is motoring down—Mr. and Mrs. Cable, Susan and Peter.

The vacation is a particular treat for Peter, since he is recovering from the severe injuries sustained during a recent automobile accident. As a result he was unable to return to his studies at Milton academy after the holidays, where he is enrolled and where Buddy is also studying.

The house at Santa Fé is always a delight to the family as well as guests for it is an old Mexican jail transformed into one of the most interesting and colorful abodes any one can imagine. Mr. Cable and Susan will return by train in a fortnight, but Mrs. Cable and Peter will stay on until early spring.

One of the fourteen new members added to the Harvard instrumental clubs after the mid-year try-outs is Francis D. Moore, class of '35, and son of the Phillip Wyatt Moores of Winnetka. Mr. Moore and the other new members played in a concert given at Weston, Mass., last night and later on they will compete with all the members for the privilege of going on the spring tour to Bermuda.

Mrs. Winfield Ellis left yesterday for New York to sail to Bermuda for a vacation. She will be back the first week in March.

Miss Jean Milsted, who is treasurer of the Lighthouse Volunteer Aids, left Monday for a month's visit in California. She will be on La Isla de Cuba at Monterey.

Among those who will be present tomorrow afternoon from 4 until 6 in the Browsing room of the Charles Deering Memorial library in Evanston at the annual book tea of the Associate Alumnae of Northwestern university are Mr. and Mrs. Graham Aldis [Dorothy Aldis], Miss Edna Dean Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Bradley [Mary Hastings Bradley], Miss Fanny Butcher, Dr. and Mrs. Francis Horan [Kenneth Horan], Miss Lena May McCauley, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Vincent O'Brien, Miss Eleanor Perkins, Miss Katherine Prindeville, Mr. and Mrs. Lew Sarrett and Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Warrick [La Mar Sheridan Warrick].

The divinity faculty and the divinity council of the University of Chicago are giving a luncheon for Mrs. Shailer Mathews tomorrow at the Shoreland hotel. The wives of the divinity students will be the guests. Mrs. Donald W. Riddle has arranged for a musical program which will be followed by an address by Mrs. Charles W. Gilkey. Mrs. Edgar J. Goodspeed will preside.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Life in the casinos at Cannes and Monte Carlo is gay and fashionable in the late winter months when most of the French style leaders are to be seen there. In the baccarat rooms women wear simple dinner dresses. These frocks are almost like uniforms, which each woman makes individual by details of jewels, scarfs, shawls, and so forth.

Child Suffers from Severity of Grandparent

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"Owing to bad conditions in my husband's business, he is out of work. I have taken a position which makes me keep long hours. My husband spends most of his time seeing people he thinks might help him to get something in his own or any line of work. His people asked us if we wanted to live with them about nine months ago and of course we appreciate that.

"But I have been worried over my little girl. I have noticed a great change in her. She has become sulky and nervous. Could it be their way with her?

"They impose very strict discipline. They expect her to be 100 per cent perfect. She must obey, and obey at once. She must be on the jump for every beck and call. They say 'Without fear there is no love!'

"She has a good home with plenty to eat. But they watch every move she makes, almost as if they wanted a chance to find fault. Do you think all this could be the cause of the change in her? And what can an unhappy mother do?"

This sort of thing is one of the tragedies of the depression that is a tale told often in my mail. How to advise the mother is almost beyond human power. No one is harder to change than people with the feeling about children that these grandparents have.

All we can do in this column is to say to all grandparents in this position: You are doing your part financially. It is hard for you in every way. But do not visit your resentment on the child you may have to care for. Try to be to her a real grandfather and grandmother—names which should mean love and warmth and understanding and protection. Try to be in reality a grand mother and a grand father. These are hard days for children who are touched by the depression—hard emotionally and hard physically. Let no one make them harder than they need be.

Tips on Care of Milady's Complexion

Avoid Use of Too Radical Depilatories.

An illustrated booklet of Miss Donnelly's stretching exercises may be obtained by sending a stamped, self addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I wonder sometimes if woman don't pursue the downy growth of hair on the lip too assiduously. I refer to a blonde particularly. There is reason for a brunette wanting to remove a dark shadow on the upper lip. But a certain blonde of my acquaintance, I think, has hurt her looks a bit by persisting in removing frequently the downy growth.

It was not a heavy growth at any time. But she's one of those girls who is going to do everything she is told or reads about, or die. Youngsters have that soft, downy growth on their faces—and it's a charm of theirs.

Of course, when you get into real lip shadows and real cases of superfluous hair growth, it is an entirely different matter. Whatever modern day science and cosmetology have to offer should be investigated, because it is a disfigurement that does not have to be suffered any more.

If it is only at the "shadow" stage, by which I mean the upper lip looks a little darkish, bleaching will parch and probably weaken the growth. Try the bleaching, anyway—but don't expect overnight results. It may take a month or two before a change is seen. If the skin is dry and tender dilute the peroxide and ammonia with rose water. And after treatment, when the skin is dry, use a cream to soften it.

If the growth continues, gets darker, you may use a depilatory if you do not feel up to the electrolysis treatment. The latter still remains the most satisfactory. In the hands of a real expert it is permanent and without discomfort. Any number of women use the wax depilatory, but I would warn you to be most exacting with yourself in the matter of following instructions.

The people who get out these products want you to have satisfaction in their use. They want you to use them again—and therefore they make their instructions clear and concise. Do what they advise—or don't use the product!

Try using a depilatory on the leg or arm before you use it on your face to be sure it will not irritate.

BY H. A. RIDLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his case-book covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

"No doubt you have all been following the Mathews case in the newspapers," Prof. Fordney said to his students. "I am going to read you an excerpt from this morning's account.

Further clews to the baffling murder of Lucille Mathews in the caretaker's lodge on her father's estate are in the hands of the police. A farmer reports having seen a sport roadster dash madly out of the gates shortly after the murder. Its single occupant was a woman, he states.

Drake, the chauffeur, was about to pass the lodge when he noticed a piece of cloth caught on the lower hinge of the front door and tracks in the path which looked as though feet had been dragged along it. Heel-like marks making slight ruts in the dirt seemed to confirm this. Knocking and receiving no answer, he pushed open the front door and saw Gregg, the caretaker, bending over a trap in the floor which he hurriedly closed and covered with a small rug. The police discovered that the piece of material brought in by Drake was from the dress Neva, Lucille's stepsister, had worn the night of the murder. Detectives working on the case seem to believe that these clews will lead to the solution of the mystery. They promise further disclosures later today.

"There is obviously something wrong with the account," said Prof. Fordney. "If you missed it I am afraid your powers of observation are not improving."

Boy Finds Wise Cracking Girl Poor Company

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am going with a girl I admire a good deal, but she is continually making flippant remarks and keeps up a running fire of humorous sayings. This makes it impossible for a fellow ever to get a serious word with her. She is splendid company for a time, but one does get tired of this sort of conversation. I believe it is only a mask hiding the true girl underneath.

"I know that once this assumed attitude is dropped the girl would be a far more interesting companion. Can you suggest any method of penetrating the disguise?—Joe."

You girls given to being the wit of the evening might rehearse that remark of "Joe's." There's a world of advice in it. You need to be an unusual character to take on the entertainer's rôle and carry it off to victory. We know few, few women who have conducted heart conquests on the program. Consequently, we do not recommend it for the reason "Joe" implies. It's surface stuff, and gives no cue to the girl underneath.

Often there is a swell girl underneath, too. But she's just off on the wrong foot. She's heard herself referred to as a funny one. She gets the applause appetite and she hasn't the good taste to take her bow and let the next actor share the stage. It's like a taste for drink with some folk—liable to get you if you don't choke off the habit early. It develops into flippancy, wisecracking, and cheap grade humor before you know it.

And, more to the point where young women are concerned, it does not make a hit with men. Whether it's because said young men would like to get in a word themselves doesn't matter. If you're playing for a star rôle in a man's life don't go in for flippant remarks and don't try to be funny.

We gather that word has gone around that a girl must have a "line" to get anywhere today. And a line she must have, too. But not the flippant or wisecracking line, sister! It's another line—one that makes the boy feel big and important and comfortable that goes over big with him.

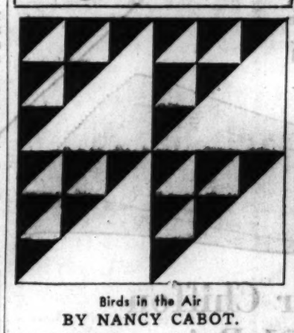
Quilt Represents Birds in Air in Flight Formation



Birds in the Air

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Birds in the Air," in flight formation, represents one of the first "bird" quilt designs as so many of the triangular patterns were termed. It is one of the most popular of the family, too. Quilters who are planning to send for a pattern and make a quilt of this design may piece it in two colors and let all the birds fly in the same direction.

For a pattern of the "Birds in the Air" design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street.

Too Hot Oven, Flour Cause of Cracked Cakes

Other Kitchen Puzzlers Are Solved Here.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a Saturday morning radio feature—will be presented weekly by Miss Meade over station W-G-N. Tune in at 9:45 today for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

Another session of the Saturday question clinic! We are glad you all wrote in. And don't forget when there are more questions or kitchen troubles at your house, let us worry about them for you. Troubles that have answers which will interest other folks we'll talk about each Saturday morning. All other questions, when accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope, will be answered by mail.

The first question comes from Mrs. M. L.: "My cakes invariably crack in the center of the top. They frequently are full of holes, too. What is the trouble?"

As a general rule both cracks and holes come from the use of too much flour and too hot an oven, especially in the first fifteen minutes of the baking. Three hundred and fifty to four hundred degrees F. is best for plain cakes. It is possible that your thermometer is registering inaccurately. Cracks may also be caused by the use of too little liquid. You see, tunnels and holes are caused by the forming of air pockets. These form in a cake wherever the batter is the weakest; that is, between the strands of gluten. Gluten, of course, is the strong protein part of flour that is developed by stirring the batter. It stretches when the expanding gases make the cake rise, and later cools and stiffens so stretched and acts as a supporting network for the cake.

If we develop this gluten by too much beating in putting the batter together the air in the batter will be held in the space between the strong gluten strands and so form tunnels. It is important, then, to keep from overdeveloping this gluten. As a rule the sugar and butter and egg should be very thoroughly creamed, then the flour and liquid added and the batter with the flour in it stirred with a circular motion for about 200 strokes.

Sometimes it seems that jarring the batter after it had been put in the pan will help to prevent tunnels. Usually a stirring motion rather than a beating one incorporates less air and keeps the strands of gluten running in a circular direction. All this works against tunnels. I am sending you my recipe for plain cake, which, I believe, should do away with your difficulties.

Next, from Mrs. A. E. V.: "How does one reheat spaghetti after having blanched it in cold water?" If you have a hot oven, cover and let it steam there. It is possible to keep it hot and moist in the top of a covered double boiler over boiling water. Direct heating over a low heat may be used if great care is taken to prevent sticking.

A stalk is really the celery grown from one root—comparable to a head of lettuce or cabbage. There are many stems to a stalk. Sometimes the word "bunch" in a grocery store may mean three or more "stalks" held together with a string.

Now a query from Mr. G. K.: "Recently I purchased a package of large, plump prunes at a grocery store and found numerous worms in the bottom of the box. We were so disgusted we took the can to the garbage can. One can hardly expect to have the grocer inspect every box, so what would you advise? Also, is it true that the so-called sugar on the outside of prunes is really worms?"

To answer that last question first. No, decidedly not. Prunes are dried in a sulphur gas in order to kill any possible insect infestations and to dry the skin so that the insides will stay moist. Sometimes when the prune is warm, a little sugar exudes through the skin. That, combined with the whitish look the sulphur gives, causes the white graininess sometimes apparent. A good water wash is all that is needed.

I'm sorry you put the prunes in the garbage can. The grocer would have thanked you, I'm sure, for taking them back, for he certainly cannot afford to be selling such merchandise. Sometimes such trouble does start, especially if the prunes get heated, but this is on the whole quite rare. I would mention the fact to your grocer, even though you cannot produce the prunes.

Ohio State's slim hold on first place in the Big Ten basketball race will be seriously jeopardized tonight when the Buckeyes face Purdue at Columbus in one of five games scheduled between conference teams.

The Buckeyes must defeat Purdue to maintain their one game lead in the race which is now heading into the final stretch. Ohio has won six straight games. Northwestern trails in second position with six victories and one defeat. Michigan is third with five victories in six games.

Buckeyes Are Extended.

In its last three games Ohio has been hard put to eke out victories, capturing two of them by one point margins and the other by two points in an overtime affair. Tonight's game with Purdue is the first of two games to be played between the teams this season.

Michigan will meet a stubborn foe in Iowa, the team which has apparently found itself after an indifferent start. The Wolverines halted the Hawkeyes in the first game of the season at Iowa City, but since that time Iowa has dropped only one game while winning six. Two of these victories were over Purdue, last year's champion.

Northwestern will be out after its seventh straight victory in tonight's clash with the hapless Maroons, who have not won a game in seven starts. In the first meeting between the two teams this year the Purple breezed through to an easy 52 to 24 victory, the highest score of the season.

Chance for Reiff.

Capt. Joe Reiff, who scored 29 points in the first game with Chicago, will have another opportunity to increase his hold on first place in the Big Ten scoring. The Wildcat star has scored only 11 points in the last two games, and needs a big night against the Maroons if he hopes to crack the Big Ten scoring mark of 254 points, made by Johnny Wooden of Purdue last year. CORBETT SUFFERS SERIOUS TURN; HIS CONDITION GRAVE

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion, who has been holding his own for days despite serious illness, was said by his doctor today to be in a "grave" condition.

"He was very low at midnight and I feel that his illness has taken a very serious turn," said Dr. G. Willard Dickie after examining the former boxer in his home at Bayside, Queens.

Mr. Corbett has suffered about a year from a heart ailment and two weeks ago it forced him to his bed. Friends of the family have been quoted as saying that he was not expected to recover as he was sinking in strength despite a courageous fight for life.

Fonseca Tells Plans for Moving White Sox Upstairs

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 17.—You can take it straight from the lips of Lew Fonseca, White Sox manager, that his 1933 edition isn't going to be constructed with the idea of having it serve as a tonic for the American league flag contenders. No pennants or any such things are floating around in the south side pilot's dreams, but he is at least convinced that before next October the team will have shown a clean pair of heels so far as the tailend position is concerned.

Fonseca himself intends to aid in this cause not only as a manager, but as a regular performer at first base. That's the post he played when he had his big season at a hitter at Cleveland in 1929.

Lew in Training Already.

The Sox chief has already passed the stage of merely thinking about the strenuous summer immediately ahead of him. His spring training has been under way for several weeks. Daily rounds in the squash courts of the Olympic club here with George Kelly and some present major leaguers, have shaken almost a dozen pounds from the frame that became a bit portly as the result of too much bench warming last year.

"It is not only a matter of choice, but of necessity," said Fonseca today in connection with his return to active service. "I'm the only first baseman on the roster, so I'll have to stick in there, whether I'm good or bad.

To Depend on Former A's.

"Last season Red Kress led the team at driving in runs. His total was in the neighborhood of sixty. Al Simmons more than doubled this mark. Jimmy Dykes and Mule Haas exceeded it by a big margin. That shows what those three ex-Athletics alone mean to our attack. If Kress has a good year, which I expect, and I hit, which I also expect, we'll have five batters in a row to cause trouble."

Although happy over the team's improvement, Fonseca still is wiring hints to Owner Lou Comiskey that it might not be a bad idea to lay hands on additional strength if possible. Fonseca's plea to headquarters is that the team now is only about two good men shy of being a pennant threat. To fill the gaps he wouldn't mind having one more outfielder of consequence and a left handed pitcher of equal status.

Critical on 2d Base.

Jack Hayes was a star at second last year, but not especially powerful with the bat. Fonseca would like to slip Kress into the place, because of the possibility that the ex-Brown will hit, but the idea may not work out through inability of Kress to develop the peculiar style of throwing essential to successful endeavor at second base.

Appling, who now has had enough experience to warrant a belief he'll produce, is being counted on for short. If he fails, the job will be turned over to Hal Rhyne. Dykes will occupy third, Simmons will be in left, Haas in center, and either Kress or the speedy Funk in right field.

Satisfied with Pitchers.

As for pitchers Fonseca is satisfied except in that little matter of a southpaw. If Lyons pitches as he did the last couple of months of the 1932 season he'll register about 15 victories. The improvement on attack will win some of the 2 to 1 and 1 to 0 losses in which Sam Jones and Milt Gaston appeared last season. Durham, who was obtained from Boston, is counted upon as a regular starter. So is Vic Frasier, who was a million dollar find in 1931 but a flop because of ill health last season. Frasier has been under a doctor's care this winter and accumulated 15 pounds after his ailment had been diagnosed as malaria.

As soon as the Sox hit camp they'll be informed that if they are good boys and stick close to their work they'll enjoy a lot of leisure time. Fonseca intends to work them once a day, the hours being 11 a. m. to 2:30 p. m.

READY TO GO

CUBS' SCHEDULE ADJUSTED; SIX STILL IN COLD

Sacramento Fills Gap in Exhibition Program.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 17.—The Chicago Cubs, whose exhibition schedule was somewhat gummed up along with the calendars of the Chicago White Sox, the New York Giants and the Pittsburgh Pirates when the hot sports of San Bernardino failed to build a grandstand and club house, will play the Sacramento Senators of the Pacific Coast league on Saturday and Sunday, March 25 and 26. It will be the first time the Cubs have gone to Sacramento in recent years.

While the Cubs are fixed up in a way better than called for in the original plan, the White Sox still are out in the cold on three important dates and the Giants and the Pirates' phase of the situation still is up in the air. The Cub change is looked upon as more desirable than the San Bernardino date for the reason that Stanley Hack and Frank Demaree still are heroes in California's capital. Hack still is basking in his accomplishments on the Senators in 1931, and Demaree is distinguished among the home folks because he knocked the only Cub homer in the late lamented world series.

Herman Draws a Fine.

While Cub representatives here were happy to get their exhibition tangle straightened out, Babe Herman, the team's new $15,000 chattel, was not so happy. He was socked $10 in police court for scorching in a 25 mile zone in Glendale. It was proved to the satisfaction of Police Judge Frank H. Lowett that Babe had hurtled through space at the rate of 38 miles an hour. The judge said the $10 assessment was giving Babe a break, but Mr. Herman held that $10 is $10 to any ball player in the winter time, even if he approaches the pleasure of earning $20,000 from the Cubs come summer time.

But getting back to that gummed up spring schedule: The Sacramento games will prolong the northern trip of the Cubs two days. They were to have closed their six day stay in San Francisco with the journey back south to San Bernardino to play the Los Angeles Angels. Under the new card they move on up to Sacramento and then come back to Los Angeles for an open date on March 27 before opening a six day stand against the Hollywood Stars and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Strive to Fix Sox Schedule.

Since the White Sox have just joined the spring citrus league out here, every effort is being made to enable them to readjust their schedule. As it stands the Sox have open Sundays on the first and last days of their original exhibition schedule and also an open Saturday on the next to final day on the coast. Some plan will be worked out for them, the committee on arrangements said today, though admitting itself pretty much up in the air as to just what could be done.

There has been a suggestion that a triangular doubleheader be played here on March 12. The Giants and Cubs are scheduled to play that day and the suggestion calls for a bargain bill with the Sox playing the winner. A similar attraction could not be arranged for April 1 and 2, the other two Sox open dates.

Cubs, Giants Due Thursday.

The Giant and Pittsburgh open dates, being midweek affairs, are not causing so much of a stew as the White Sox predicament, and even cancellation would not be looked upon as a disastrous circumstance, either financially or physically. It was said, however, that every effort will be made to fill in the dates as soon as some scheme can be conceived.

The first squads of the Cubs and Giants will arrive on the same Santa Fe special at 7:30 o'clock next Thursday morning. The Giants immediately will pitch camp behind closed gates at Wrigley field here, while the Cubs will go to Wilmington by bus and then sail for Catalina, arriving at Avalon at high noon.

SWISH—IF THAT ONE HAD LANDED!

Charles Caron swings, but Ed Walsh sees to it that his head is not in harm's way. This far south division Golden Gloves bout between novice welterweights was won by Walsh, who later in the evening was defeated by Mike Krizhas, one of the qualifiers for the novice meet in conjunction with the Tournament of Champions, which opens at the Stadium on Feb. 27. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Ice Champions Vie for New Titles Tonight

Skating stars from all parts of the United States and Canada will compete tonight in the western open indoor speed championships at the Chicago Stadium. Detroit, St. Louis, Cleveland, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis and a dozen other cities will represent the U. S. against the Canadians.

The last of the champions arrived here last night and took a brisk workout at the Stadium. Mel Johnson of Detroit, national outdoor champion, was on hand early and Mel covered four or five laps at a fast pace.

Stack Faces Stern Test.

The battle between the men and women class A stars will feature the meet. Frank Stack, captain of Canada's Olympic team and four time champion, is certain of stern opposition from Johnson, Alex Hurd, Lloyd Guenther, Eddie Stundl, Wilbur Marks and others.

Lela Brooks Potter of Toronto, the other defending titleholder and also an Olympic captain, will face a fast field, including Kitty Klein of Buffalo, national outdoor champion; Charleen Power of St. Louis; Elizabeth Du Bois of Chicago, Olympic 1,000 meter winner; Dorothy Franey of St. Paul, Olympic star, and Crystal Bruce of Milwaukee, another member of Uncle Sam's Olympic team.

Fancy Skaters in Display.

The meet will start at 8 p. m., with finals carded in all events. Preliminaries will be held this morning and afternoon.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: When the World's Fair of 1893 closed, many of the state buildings were sold and moved away, one on a barge across the lake. John J. Mitchell bought the Ceylon building—there was not a nail in it.

The German building was stripped, except for a large atlas, some 15 feet in diameter, which disappeared, while the building served as a refectory in Jackson park for many years, burning a while back. The German exhibit was wonderful. The floor consisted of large squares of ceramac tiles. Each square was of different design and the colorings gorgeous.

On the west side in those days was a saloonkeeper, August Schiller, at Morgan and Madison, with a notable place. He bought the German building floor and installed it in his saloon. It is there now, good as ever after nearly forty years.

Frank K. Skimin.

Wooly Worms and a Willow Tree.

O, I must plant a willow tree,
A weeping willow tree,
For my dear love has gone and left
Just bitter tears for me.
And I must find some wooly worms,
Some fat and ugly worms—
And in the garden I shall eat
I shall weep and then I'll die,
[I'm awfully young to die]
And none at all but my cruel love
Shall know the reason why.

Maroon Coaching Staff.

Decision to retain for another year, at least, the University of Chicago coaching staff, after the retirement of Director Stagg, who also fulfilled the duties of head football coach, is a wise move. It will give Director Nelson Metcalf and Football Coach Clark Shaughnessy time to take stock of Maroon material and requirements with less confusion. While such announcement officially is made at this time, The Wake had understood such agreement existed when Mr. Metcalf accepted his appointment.

INDIANS FORCED TO OPEN SEASON AT OWN FIELD

Cleveland, O., Feb. 17.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians may have to desert the Municipal stadium and return to their old stand at League park for the start of the 1933 baseball season.

After an inspection of the stadium diamond, Billy Evans, general manager of the Indians, said he was convinced it would not be in shape by April 12 and said he would order tickets for the old park printed for the first two weeks.

The stadium field was riddled by last fall's football games and the surface had to be plowed up for installation of a new drainage system a few weeks ago.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Thirty-two boys from the far south side of Chicago last night won qualifying positions in the Tournament of Champions and the finals of the first Golden Gloves novice tournament which begin a week from Monday at the Stadium. For three hours at the State theater the boxing fans of Roseland saw the swiftly moving action of a Golden Gloves tourney long familiar to those living in other sections of the city.

The boxing program now shifts to the north side for the final week of qualifying. Six hundred and twenty-four amateurs are eligible to compete in the three day meet starting Monday at Loyola university gymnasium. On Wednesday the three day south side tourney will get under way at White City, the opening night overlapping with the final bouts at Loyola.

Sparrow Easy Winner.

As evidence of the enthusiasm the boys south of 79th street have for amateur boxing only two of the winners Thursday night failed to show up for the final round. None of the entrants was disqualified for physical defects last night, but 12 were rejected on the first night of the Roseland trials.

Eddie Sparrow of S. S. Peter and Paul, C. Y. O., who was an alternate on the intercity Golden Gloves team last year in the bantamweight class, reached the Tournament of Champions in a fight which lasted only one minute. Eddie sailed into John H. Ruszat, an unattached boxer, and after he had hit him several times without an effective return the referee stopped the bout.

Most of the boys on the far south side competed in the novice division. The scarcity of experienced fighters, that is, those who had won more than one bout in a former Golden Gloves C. Y. O. or Central A. A. U. tournament, permitted several boys to reach the open division of the Stadium tournament without fighting. Among these was Leo Rodak, captain of the Chicago Intercity and International Golden Gloves team in 1932. In 1931 Rodak won the flyweight title. Last year he competed as bantamweight against New York and then as a 126 pounder in the bouts with Germany. He still is in this latter class.

Susnis Leading Heavyweight.

Tony Susnis of All Saints Parish alumni, a heavyweight, also qualified without competition. Susnis is one of the best amateur fighters in the city, and he expects to go a long way in the Tournament of Champions.

Doctors Find No Evidence of Schaaf Injury

New York, Feb. 17.—[Special.]—Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, announced this afternoon that microscopic examination of the brain of Ernie Schaaf, the boxer who died following a bout at Madison Square Garden Friday with Primo Carnera, has shown so far that there was no cerebral hemorrhage.

This finding tends to confirm Dr. Norris' statement, made after an initial autopsy, that the boxer's death was not the result of injuries received in the bout. The examination also has shown so far that no cyst existed within the brain.

Findings Final Monday.

The final findings of the examination, which is being made to determine what caused a pressure on the brain, will be ready on Monday or Tuesday, Dr. Norris said.

Asked if he thought Schaaf was in physical condition for the fight, Dr. Norris said he could not say. He added, however, that Schaaf's body appeared flabby and fleshy and the muscles were not as hard as Dr. Norris thought they should be for a person contemplating a boxing bout.

Cites Lack of Training.

"In my opinion," Dr. Norris said, "he was not trained down as far as he should have been."

Schaaf's failure to take off weight, he said, was probably due to his not having to meet a weight requirement. The hard training, Dr. Norris said, might have brought Schaaf's weight down much farther.

Dr. Norris said Schaaf's body showed an excess of subcutaneous fat.

HOLD FUNERAL FOR SCHAAF.

Wrentham, Mass., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—While the sporting world joined with friends and neighbors in paying tribute, the body of Ernie Schaaf was laid to rest today.

Through streets lined with admirers the flower-heaped casket of the 24 year old Boston heavyweight boxer who died after being knocked out by Primo Carnera in New York Friday night, was carried from his mother's home to St. Mary's church and from there to St. Mary's cemetery in Foxboro.

The largest of the floral tributes filling five cars was one from the giant Carnera, Ernie's last opponent. There were others from Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion, Jack Sharkey, the present titleholder, and Johnny Buckley, Schaaf's manager.

GARDINER STILL IN RUNNING FOR GOALIE TROPHY

Close Race Between Hawk Star and Roach.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Vezina trophy, a handsome specimen of hardware which annually goes to the best goalkeeper in the National Hockey league, may yet remain in Chicago for another year, depending upon the performances during the remainder of the season of Chuck Gardiner, the Blackhawk guardian, and John Ross Roach, the Detroit Red Wings' gatekeeper, who has thus far proved himself the most efficient doorman in the league.

At present Gardiner is the custodian of the trophy named for the late Georges Vezina of the Montreal Canadiens, the original Chicoutimi Cucumber, who is still regarded as the greatest puck detainer the game ever saw. Chuck won it last year by having the least number of goals in the league scored against him—101.

Roach Having Best Season.

Until the last week it appeared that the Vezina trophy would go to Detroit and the miniature replica of it would find its way to a place in Roach's home at Fort Arthur, Ont. Experts who have attempted to find out the why of the Red Wings' sensational progress in the league have not overlooked Roach. John is one of the old men of the game and after having been practically discarded by the New York Rangers is now enjoying the best season of his career, particularly at the expense of the Rangers.

Roach was doing nobly until last Tuesday night, when he was embarrassed considerably by the inspired Canadiens, who pushed the puck past him six times in sixty minutes. Gardiner, who didn't appear to have a chance, had blanked them on the preceding Sunday night, and on Thursday only Marty Barry of Boston could score on him, while the Montreal Maroons were getting two past Roach. Only one goal separates Roach and Gardiner, the former having allowed 69 to sail past him and the latter 70.

Record of Goalies.

The complete record of National league goalies to date in goals scored against them, including teams which have required the services of two gatemen, follows:

John Ross Roach, Detroit	69
Chuck Gardiner, Chicago	70
Cecil Thompson, Boston	75
Andy Aitkenhead, Rangers	78
Lorne Chabot, Toronto	78
Roy Worters, Americans	78
Flat Walsh and Dave Kerr, Maroons	83
George Hainsworth, Canadiens	83
Alex Connell and Billy Beveridge, Ottawa	97

Roach is undoubtedly the goal keeping star of the league, a height he reached after having been sold by the Rangers to Detroit last fall. Apparently through, he has come back to beat the Rangers in three out of four starts, smash their 77 game record of no shutouts, and has scored seven shutouts against all opponents. For an elderly gentleman of 33, who is playing his 12th year of professional hockey, this would seem to be a pretty fair year for John.

Meanwhile the Hawks are having an eye to any emergency that might arise should Gardiner be injured. At the Chicagoans' practice this morning Earl Thomson, Marquette university goalie, will be given a tryout.

DE PAUL BEATS ST. VIATOR WITH 2D HALF SPURT

The score was 19 all when De Paul put on its winning spurt. Weston, Minskey and Doody connected for baskets and Weston added a free throw to build up a 26 to 19 lead.

In the closing minute Kraculis sank two shots to put St. Viator within three points of a tie. Lineup:

SMITTY—THE CARD TRICK

MarmionBeats General A. at Hialeah Park

Miami, Fla., Feb. 17.—[Special.]—The winning streak of General A., 13 to 20 favorite in the Brighton purse, feature at Hialeah Park today, was snapped by the Coldstream stud's 4 year old colt, Marmion, which won by two lengths and with speed in reserve. The race was over a fast track and Marmion's time was the best of the meeting for seven furlongs. He was clocked in 1:24 3-5.

Genral A. had no trouble getting the place. Action being five lengths back in third position while Happy Scot, the only other starter, brought up the rear. Marmion carried 109 pounds and returned $6.50 for $2.

Corbett Rides the Winner.

Charlie Corbett had the leg up on the winner, which is by Pot au Feu-Bourse, and previous to the afternoon a four time starter without success. Marmion was a smart horse for the Brighton, however, and was in close attendance to the swift early pace which General A. cut out.

Noted as a speed horse, General A. stepped the first quarter in 0:23, the half in the usual time of 0.46. But he never could shake off Marmion, even though Robby Robertson urged him to his best effort.

Circle Roman Triumphs.

The first victory for Mrs. Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Fair Fields stable was scored in the curtain raiser when Circle Roman, a daughter of Sun Circle from Romagne, won by three-quarters of a length at the end of six furlongs.

Evanston High Wins 2 More Basket Games

The 1932-'33 Suburban league basketball championships apparently are going to remain along the north shore. Evanston High school, which has led the season's races in both the lightweight and heavyweight divisions, continued its way to the titles by scoring a double victory over at Oak Park last night.

The lightweights, with Griegs tossing in six field goals and four free throws, hung up their eighth consecutive victory by defeating Oak Park's lights, 38 to 23. The Evanston heavyweights, who have suffered only one league defeat, scored their seventh triumph, 32 to 27.

De Paul's lightweights triumphed over Loyola, 19 to 17, to remain tied for first place in the north section of the Chicago Catholic High school league. It was De Paul's fifth victory. St. Michael, co-leader, also triumphed, defeating Weber, 34 to 29.

Crane Tech heavyweights' victory over Tuley featured the Chicago Public High School league play. With Emblass and Possner leading the attack, Crane scored its eighth straight west section victory, 27 to 24.

DR. BUNDESEN IS PRAISED FOR CITY'S HEALTH

Medical Society Reviews Achievements.

The economy and efficiency of the Chicago board of health, directed by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, is praised in an editorial in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical association. The editorial points out that despite a reduction in expenditure the board of health reports a death rate of 9.7 per thousand population, the lowest in the history of Chicago.

"Economic necessity has created a sharp issue between the advocates of retrenchment in government at any cost and those who demand the preservation of public services that have justified their cost," the editorial said.

"Chicago has shown recently how economic necessity and health conservation can be reconciled. In 1932 Chicago had a general death rate from all causes of 9.7 per thousand population and an infant death rate of 50 per thousand living births.

"This surpasses even the splendid record of New York. It also surpasses any previous record made in Chicago, the next best year being 1927 when the death rate was 10.4 and the infant mortality rate was 53.4. The record was made in the face of budget economies totaling $500,000.

"Health officials who face necessary curtailments in budgets can, by 'cutting their coat to fit their cloth' instead of lamenting the need for reducing their budgets, produce results that are not only highly satisfactory to the taxpayers but creditable to the public health movement. Such a record may well be a source of pride to the workers who have made it possible.

"Incidentally, the employés of the health department are, like other employés of the city of Chicago, serving with their salaries many months in arrears."

J. H. MARKHAM JR. LEADER IN OIL TRADE, DIES HERE

John H. Markham Jr., 52 years old, of Tulsa, Okla., president of the Petroleum Corporation of America, died yesterday in the Mercy hospital. He was nationally known in the oil business and also was prominent as a banker, being chairman of the Exchange National bank at Tulsa.

Mr. Markham died of pneumonia. He became ill on a train and was sent to the hospital following his arrival here last Sunday. Drs. John F. Golden, Cyril J. Larkin, and Robert A. Black attended him. His wife, Maude, and children, Mrs. Dorothy Freese, Marjorie, and John, were summoned from Tulsa, and were present when he died. Mrs. Markham collapsed and is now a patient in the Mercy hospital.

The career of Mr. Markham was a business romance. At 16 he was a laborer in the oil fields of Pennsylvania. He was a native of that state. At 22 he was operating his own drilling rig. He moved from Pennsylvania to Ohio, then to Texas, Kansas, and Oklahoma. In 1906 he sold two oil leases for a reputed $3,500,000. His holdings continued to grow and for many years he served as a director of the Sinclair corporation.

Mr. Markham was a member of three of the highest orders of the Catholic church, being a knight of the orders of Malta, Holy Sepulchre, and St. Gregory. Burial will be in Tulsa.

DECLINE IN HOGS HALTED DESPITE POORER QUALITY

Light Supply Even Brings Advance in Spots.

Declines in the hog market were halted yesterday when supplies fell short. The extreme top and general average prices remained unchanged at $3.70 and $3.50, but there were spots that showed gains of 5 to 10 cents during the forenoon. Strength was confined mostly to the scant supply of choice light and light butchers.

The quality of yesterday's run was poorest of the winter. "Clean up" stock from the 1932 spring pig crop which have been accumulating all week met outlet to smaller city butchers and to a few outside buyers. Approximately 4,000 second grade 75 to 150 pound unfinished hogs sold to the "lower class" trade at $2.50 to $3.00.

The spread between these kinds and the well fattened choice grades was widest of the winter. Often hogs of equal weight sold 50 cents and more apart because of the difference in quality. Most of the strictly choice 150 to 200 pound hogs sold from $3.50 to $3.65. Bulk of the pigs going under $3.25 were off quality.

Cattle Sell Steady.

The meager supply of 2,000 cattle in the yards yesterday sold on a "catch as catch can" basis, with the bulk of the steers going at steady prices considering the plain quality of the offerings. Quality on Fridays is usually poorest of the week, and plain stock accumulated during the week is often moved that day, sometimes through price sacrificing.

A big share of the supply consisted of common to fair steers that had failed to take on a good thick layer of flesh. They sold mostly at $3.50 to $4.75. Nothing choice arrived.

Lamb Trend Reversed.

Price trends in the lamb market were reversed yesterday. A small part of the losses recorded Thursday were recovered in the early part of the day, but closing rounds were not quite up to the high point of the forenoon.

Shippers and city butchers paid $5.85 to $5.90, while packers obtained the bulk of the day's crop around $5.75. Prime 92 pound fed western lambs sold at $5.85 and 94 pound averages up to $5.75. Lambs without fleece were sold at $5.60, averaging 82 pounds. Aged sheep and yearlings brought steady prices.

Depreciation Rates Same as 1931.

The Quaker Oats company yesterday reported net earnings for 1932 of $4,281,000 before surplus adjustments, equivalent to $4.56 a share on the common stock after provision for preferred dividends. This compares with net earnings of $6,856,592, or $8.23 a share, on common in 1931.

After adjustments the surplus for the year was $5,386,000 before dividends, as compared with $5,928,000 in the preceding year. The company has a credit of $914,538 for increase in the market value of securities and foreign net current assets. In addition there was a credit of $149,237 resulting from a reduction in surplus reserves.

Pays $7 on Common.

Dividends of $3,888,000 were paid last year on the common and preferred stocks, the same as in the preceding year. Dividends of $7 a share were paid on each class of stock. The common received the regular dividend of $4 and the usual extras of $3 a share.

Directors of the company yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividends on the common and preferred stocks and an extra dividend of $1 on the junior shares. The regular dividend on each class of stock is $1 a share. The common dividends are payable April 15 to stockholders of record April and the preferred payment is to be made May 31 to stock of record May 1.

Reserve Ratio Held Same.

Reserve for depreciation last year was $1,119,000, against $1,269,000 in 1931. "We are working on the same basis of rates," President John Stuart explained, "but some of our older properties are now fully depreciated. In spite of the large amount of new construction during the last few years we believe our depreciated plant values shown in the statement are not above today's replacement costs. Obsolete and discarded equipment not fully depreciated is charged against earnings when removed."

The year-end balance sheet discloses an unusually strong current position. Of the total current assets of $30,883,000, more than $22,186,000 consists of cash, government, and municipal securities. Securities are carried at cost or market, whichever is lower. Current liabilities amounted to $4,382,000.

Lincoln Life Withdraws Bid for Illinois Co. Insurance

Twelve Other Offers Left, One of Them Approved.

The Lincoln National Life Insurance company of Fort Wayne, Ind., has withdrawn its bid for reinsurance of the 70,000 policyholders of the defunct Illinois Life Insurance company, it was learned yesterday.

J. Sidney Condit, attorney for Lincoln National, gave formal notice of the company's decision Thursday to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who has jurisdiction in the Illinois Life receivership, and to Gen. Abel Davis, receiver.

Withdrawal of Lincoln National reduces the number of bidders to twelve and leaves in the field only one bid which has the approval of Edward B. Fackler, New York consulting actuary, whom Gen. Davis retained as an expert adviser.

Offer Reorganization.

The remaining recommended bid is that of James S. Kemper & Co., insurance engineers of 4750 Sheridan road, who control five fire and casualty companies. The Kemper organization offers to reorganize Illinois Life as a stock company with $1,250,000 of new capital and surplus and to utilize the Illinois Life home office at 1212 Lake Shore drive.

Franklin B. Mead, executive vice president of Lincoln National, said the Fort Wayne company was withdrawing with reluctance and only after thorough consideration of the factors involved.

Principal among these, he said, was the long delay occurring in awarding the reinsurance contract. A tremendous shrinkage has occurred in the outstanding business of Illinois Life while the various bidders have been contending in court, he said.

Fear Further Delays.

The margin has now been shaved so thin, he added, that Lincoln National now finds it does not care to risk the reinsurance on the basis originally proposed.

Further delay may ensue even after the contract is awarded, it was pointed out. Any of the rejected bidders has the right to appeal, thus impeding final ratification of the reinsurance contract until the appeal is decided.

Meanwhile, it was said, both bidding and nonbidding companies could continue their raids on the Illinois Life, "twisting" to themselves as many policyholders as their salesmen could sign up. Another factor is that younger policyholders can drop their policies, while older ones would keep them in force, thus weighting the total insurance against the insuring company.

The time allowed bidders to file amendments to their proposals expired yesterday. It is expected that Judge Wilkerson will announce his decision early next week. It is known that at least one of the bidders is anticipating a rejection and is planning an appeal.

LIFE COMPANIES REPORT DECLINE IN POLICY LOANS

The statement of Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, that one factor indicating an improvement in the business situation is the drop in the demand for loans on insurance policies finds corroboration in reports of insurance companies on their 1932 operations.

Generally the companies note that requests for loans eased off considerably during the last half of 1932. Up to late summer the tendency had been upward for the last two or three years.

This decrease in demand is attributed by insurance officials to improvement in the financial position of holders of policyholders.

What Companies Report.

Reports of a number of companies taken at random indicate the trend. The New England Mutual Life Insurance company in its annual statement said that for the last three years the number of policy loans made was double that of normal times. However, since June a steady decrease was noted. Last November the demand on the company was the lowest in two and a half years. Policyholders repaid loans during 1932 which totaled more than $2,000,000.

The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company said that the increase in policy loans during 1932 was 9.7 per cent less than the increase which occurred in 1931. The heaviest demand in 1932 came during the first six months.

The Providence Mutual Life Insurance company stated that there was a marked letup in requests for policy loans during the last six months of 1932. The number requested totaled 62 per cent of the rate from October, 1931, to June, 1932.

Loans of One Decrease.

The National Life Insurance company of Vermont stated that the amount of policy loans outstanding on Dec. 31, 1932, showed an actual decrease from Nov. 30, 1932. This indicated that there had been repayments of loans during the month. There was a 28 per cent decline in policy loans during the last six months of 1932. However, the president believed that there would be a considerable increase in the surrender of policis during 1933.

The Mutual Life Insurance company of New York reported that the demand for policy loans during the second half of 1932 totaled $23,736,402, as compared with $34,501,195 during the first half of the year.

STOCKS FIRM UP ON OUTLOOK FOR DRY LAW REPEAL

Beverage Shares Rise; Rails Improve.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 17.—Week-end covering operations imparted a modest show of strength to the share market today, following three successive sessions of decline.

Beverage stocks responded appropriately to the improved outlook for prohibition's end following the senate's passage of the repeal resolution, and the rails were able to make a little capital out of advance estimates of an increase of some 20,000 cars in the freight loading report for the week, to be made public tomorrow.

Trading, however, was limited almost entirely to the professional element and the disposition was to be extremely cagey about getting out on a limb pending the outcome of some of the major uncertainties now overhanging the market.

Watch Michigan Situation.

The community is particularly interested in the Michigan bank situation and the steps being taken toward its solution and no very great progress on the upside of the market is anticipated until the obstacle has been removed. All advices today indicated that satisfactory progress was being made toward this end.

The gains of any consequence scored in today's trading were well scattered and pretty generally confined to issues which have been under more or less selling pressure during the reactionary movement. Few of the gains amounted to more than a point and a large proportion were confined to fractions.

A handful of issues ran counter to the trend. Gold mining stocks found themselves unable to participate in the forward march and Homestake Mining, which has been attracting no little attention by flaunting its strength in the face of a receding market, lived up to its reputation for taking the opposite side by slipping off some 2 points. McIntire eased fractionally, while Alaska Juneau and Noranda just about succeeded in holding their own.

Utilities Are Irregular.

The utilities could give nothing better than a mixed performance. The street now fears that the big power and light corporations are facing rate reductions and the prospect does not make the nearby dividend outlook any too good for some of the companies.

Coca Cola bowed to the flurry of enthusiasm over the repeal resolution, dropping some 2 points in the forenoon dealings but recovering about half its loss later. Among the so-called "repeal" issues, National Distillers, Crown Cork, Owens, and Industrial Alcohol staged mild flurries with resultant benefits in board raiding.

Oils were sluggish, on the whole. Seaboard was an expection, spurting almost 2 points.

In contrast to the general firmness of the railroad group, Central of New Jersey, rated as an inactive issue, took a tumble of 13 points on its first sale of this year. Texas Gulf Sulphur continued into new low ground.

N. Y. Bank Bill Would Protect Frozen Assets

BY HOWARD WOOD.

News from Detroit that Michigan legislators and bankers are considering legislation to make possible a clearing up of the state's banking situation focuses attention upon New York state's so-called "Broderick bill." Michigan leaders are known to be studying this bill carefully with the idea of patterning after it in a general way.

The Broderick bill gets its name from the commissioner of banking of New York. It was introduced in the assembly at Albany on Jan. 9 and passed the lower house two weeks ago. It has been favorably reported by the senate banking committee and is expected to be passed by the senate in the next few days.

This bill is regarded as something new in banking and bankers in New York, Michigan, and other states who have studied it are inclined to be enthusiastic about it. Some hail it as the solution of the dilemma that arises when a bank with good but slow assets is crowded by depositors who will not wait for orderly liquidation of assets.

Deposits May Be "Frozen."

The Broderick bill provides, in effect, that the state banking commission may step in when the occasion demands and "freeze" a certain percentage of a bank's total deposits.

If, for example, he should find upon examination that 60 per cent of a certain bank's assets were highly liquid and that the remaining 40 per cent were slow assets that could not readily be converted into cash in a short time he would be empowered, under the act, to step in and order 60 per cent of the deposits to continue to be deposits and the remaining 40 per cent to be classed as reserves.

The depositor would be privileged to withdraw any part of his deposits up to 60 per cent. For the remaining 40 per cent he would receive certificates.

Should the demands for withdrawals continue the commissioner could, at his discretion, convert the certificates into withdrawable deposits as the slower assets were converted into cash.

Halts Dividends on Stock.

The bill provides that no dividends can be paid to stockholders until all the certificates are retired. Furthermore, certificate holders would be given a voice in the management. After issuance of such certificates an election would be called to select officers and directors with the certificate holders and the stockholders both voting. Incumbent officers and directors would be eligible for reelection.

If this bill should become a law, its sponsors point out, withdrawal pressure on any bank could be instantly relieved at any time by the banking commissioner. Thereafter, either the institution could be liquidated in an orderly fashion by its own officers without the heavy expenses of receivership or it could be permitted to function normally until the gradual liquidation of slow assets put it in a position to retire all the certificates and restore its stockholders to full control.

The Broderick bill is being carefully studied in Michigan, and it is believed that whatever plan is eventually decided upon in Detroit will be patterned after it, although some variation may be invented that will obviate the necessity for securing new legislation.

Higher Income Tax Gives U.S. More to Spend

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—The first 1933 income taxes paid under the new and higher rates of the tax bill passed at the last session of congress are coming into the treasury and have caused a $3,000,000 increase in the federal government's February income tax collections.

Not actually due until March 15, enough of the new taxes had come in to the treasury by Feb. 15 to raise income tax receipts for the first two weeks of the month to $11,746,722, compared with $8,724,939 for the same period last year, the treasury announced today. Before the fiscal year is over the government hopes to get approximately $490,000,000 more from income taxes.

Small Taxpayers Pay Early.

Small income taxpayers filing their returns and making their payments in January and February are responsible for the collections now coming in, it was explained at the bureau of internal revenue. By March 15 all returns must be in and at least the first quarterly installment of the tax paid.

While income tax receipts were moving upward in the opening weeks of the month, miscellaneous internal revenue collection, including those from the new excise taxes levied last year, also began to rise. Approximately $42,618,000 had come into the treasury from this source between Feb. 1 and 15, an increase of $1,733,150 over the collections for the corresponding period in January.

Increase Follows a Slump.

The February increase in miscellaneous yields follows a slump which occurred in January. Collection of these taxes is regarded as a rough barometer of business, because they are based on sales and transfers. The February collection, which is based on January business, probably indicates some pickup in that month after a sluggishness in December.

Increasing income and miscellaneous collections during the month have, in conjunction with a decrease in expenditures, been pushing the deficit down. The excess of expenditures over receipts for the first two weeks of February was $73,063,233, compared with $113,054,784 for the same period a year ago.

FRANC ADVANCES; SLIGHT OUTFLOW OF U. S. GOLD SEEN

Deny Rumors of Foreign Raid on Dollar.

New York, Feb. 17.—(AP)—The American dollar encountered further selling in the world's leading foreign exchange markets today, but in the late afternoon dealings it showed evidences of greater resistance.

The French franc rallied in terms of the dollar to a point where it might again be profitable to ship gold from New York to Paris in settlement of commercial or other commitments, in preference to the usual transfer of funds in the international money market.

Rumors were heard of heavy organized bear selling drives against the dollar, engineered supposedly on a triangular front consisting of London, Paris and Amsterdam, but leading bankers said that these rumors were largely overdrawn.

See Slight Gold Outflow.

The international gold movement, which had been flowing in large volume to this country from Europe and recently turned slightly in favor of foreign countries, was expected by bankers to continue outward for a short time longer.

Withdrawals of metal, they said, would be restricted in the case of many countries because their dollar balances are not large. While the two day decline of dollar exchange has helped to strengthen the position of foreign currencies in the New York market, it was said that any substantial offerings of European currencies met with comparatively little buying interest here. Unless foreign currencies can be sold in volume at a profit against the dollar, it was explained, it is difficult for foreign banks to acquire substantial gold balances in that way.

Advised to Buy Dollars.

A prominent banker, who was asked by a customer if it might not be profitable for the client to purchase foreign currencies, advised his customer to buy dollars instead.

French francs opened about 1¼ points higher, due largely to Paris selling of the dollar. It reached a high point during the day of 3.94⅝ cents for cables and closed at 3.94½ cents, a net gain of 1⅛ points. The British pound sterling added ⅛ cent to its quotation, advancing to $3.44¼ for cables. The Canadian dollar, which had reacted yesterday, gaine 716 cent today.

England Buys Gold.

The Bank of England announced today that it had purchased £3,851,908 of gold, or $18,720,276 at par of exchange. Indications are this purchase was made in the American market. Today's statement showed that $9,999,700 gold had been earmarked for foreign account, presumably the Bank of England. Yesterday $10,909,800 was similarly earmarked.

Since Britain turned over $95,550,000 last Dec. 15 to this country to apply on its war debt, the Bank of England has recaptured all but $5,000,000 of the gold it then released. Most of it came from the American market.

Today's Federal Reserve bank's gold statement showed no imports and one export, $100,000 to Holland.

EDISON UTILITY CUTS HOLDINGS IN TRANSIT LINES

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The Commonwealth Edison company is gradually divesting itself of its investments in outside enterprises and in the future will restrict its business to the production and sale of electrical energy, James Simpson, chairman, revealed in the annual report issued last night.

The announcement marks a definite reversal of the policy followed by the former management under which the company made various investments in outside business enterprises for the purpose of broadening its market and stimulating the demand for electricity.

Mr. Simpson referred specifically to the investments made by the former management in the elevated lines, electrical suburban railroads, and truck manufacturing companies which he said are being gradually eliminated.

Net Income of $6.24 a Share.

The company reported net income of $10,059,486 for 1932, equivalent to $6.24 a share on the 1,611,421 shares outstanding at the close of the year. This compares with net income of $16,322,541 or $10.57 a share on 1,562,600 shares reported for 1931.

Gross revenue were $74,401,095, a decline of 7.4 per cent from $80,561,163 reported for 1931. A reduction of 10 per cent was made in operation expenses but the economies were offset by sharp increases in charges for depreciation and taxes.

At the same time the announcement was made that Samuel Insull Jr. had resigned as a director and vice chairman of the company, but remained in its employ as assistant to the chairman. His resignation follows closely a similar action on like positions with the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company. Both resignations became effective last Wednesday.

Refers to Former Policy.

Stating that the board of directors had made certain fundamental changes in policy under the new management, Mr. Simpson said:

"In the past the management of the company, largely through Commonwealth Subsidiary corporation, followed the policy of investing in outside business enterprises, as for example, in companies manufacturing trucks, conveyances and other appliances, and in electrified elevated and suburban lines, on the theory of thereby developing a greater demand for electrical energy. Investments in and advances to companies dealing in suburban real estate also had been made, with the thought of stimulating further demand for electricity.

"The board of directors has adopted the definite policy of gradually eliminating investments of this class, and of restricting the operations of the company, so far as possible, to the generation and distribution of electrical energy."

Excludes Permanent Investments.

He added that investments in companies more directly related to the business were not included.

As in the case of Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, the Edison company has also abandoned the policy of operating in its own stock through its investment subsidiary, Mr. Simpson disclosed.

The company is in a strong position as a producer and seller of electrical energy, in spite of the shrinkage in investments and the losses sustained, Mr. Simpson declared.

The income account and balance sheet included in the report are consolidated reflecting financial position and earnings results of both the parent company and its wholly owned subsidiary, the Commonwealth Subsidiary corporation. Heretofore the company has not issued a consolidated statement.

Charge High Depreciation.

Edward J. Doyle, president, said the company charged a substantially higher rate for depreciation last year. This was in accordance with the policy changes made by the new management. Depreciation charged for 1932 was $7,746,376. The 1931 report does not indicate the size of the depreciation reserve but it was substantially below last year's figure.

Mounting state and local taxes cut sharply into the company's earnings. Appropriation for state and local taxes was $6,506,178, an increse of 36.9 per cent over 1931. This was exclusive of municipal compensation which amounted to $2,238,042. These charges reduced net earnings by $1.09 a share, Mr. Doyle pointed out.

Surplus Written Down.

The consolidated surplus account for the year reflects the writeoffs made as the result of the special audit made last summer. At the close of the year the surplus balance was $6,838,161 against $53,533,250 book surplus shown by the 1931 report. The adjustments resulted in total deductions of $45,308,076, of which the principal item was the $30,000,000 investment reserve.

The report is certified by Arthur Andersen & Co., who have been retained as auditors. Formerly the company's books were audited by Arthur Young & Co.

In the letter of certification the auditors state: "We have accepted, without verification, the balance in property, depreciation reserve and surplus accounts as shown by the companies' books as of Dec. 31, 1931."

PENN R. R.'S NET INCOME FOR 1932 TOTALS $13,573,536

The Pennsylvania railroad reports net income of $13,573,536 for 1932, after charges and taxes, compared with $19,941,498 for 1931. The road had a loss of $659,425 during December compared with a loss of $327,599 in the same month of 1931.

A net loss of $6,334,978 after taxes and charges was reported by the Baltimore and Ohio for its 1932 operations compared with an income of $3,427,662 in 1931. The December loss amouted to $638,470 compared with $52,569 during the final month of 1931.

An increase in 1932 net income over that of 1931 was reported by the Reading company. Net in 1932 totaled $4,228,789 after taxes and charges compared with $3,314,928 in 1931. The earnings on the common stock in 1932 equaled $1.02 a share compared with 37 cents in 1931.

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois reported a net loss of $3,411,419 for 1932 compared with a net loss of $3,641,119 in 1931.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, Feb. 17.—Panama canal transits showed a slight increase the first 15 days of February, although the average toll per ship was less. The daily average was 13.40 ships against 13.13 and $67,845.21 daily tolls against $56,191.33 compared to the first fifteen days of January.

Commercial traffic showed an increase of four transits, or 2 per cent, with 2½ per cent increase in tolls in comparison with January and an increase of 10 transits in comparison with the first 15 days of February, 1932, or 5 per cent.

LIGGETT GIVEN TIME EXTENSION TO REDUCE RENTS

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 17.—(AP)—Judge George A. Welsh today continued hearings in a suit to enjoin Louis K. Liggett drug store chain from filing a petition in bankruptcy, giving a landlords' committee more time to arrange reductions in rentals.

Roland S. Morris, former ambassador to Japan and chairman of the committee, told the court that landlords collecting three-fourths of the rentals had agreed to 25 per cent reductions to eliminate necessity for bankruptcy.

STATE BANK PAYS OUT 85 PCT. OF ITS DEPOSITS; CLOSES

After paying out more than 85 per cent of its deposits in the last two and one half years the Cosmopolitan State bank, 801 North Clark street, yesterday closed its doors. The board of directors requested State Auditor Edward J. Barrett to take over the affairs of the institution.

The bank opened for business as usual yesterday morning but closed its doors shortly thereafter. Thor R. Thorsen, president, declared that a steady drain on deposits necessitated the closing.

When the bank closed its deposits were $1,466,000. At the end of 1930 deposits stood at $10,646,000. Capital and surplus are $1,200,000. The bank was an independent institution with no connection with other banks.

EVANSTON TO GET A NEW INDUSTRY EMPLOYING 200

Evanston is to get a new industry, employing 200 men and women. Yesterday it was announced that the Lady Esther company, manufacturer of cosmetics, now at 5710 Armitage avenue, Chicago, has leased the entire four story and basement plant of the Tinker Toy company at 2012 Ridge avenue, Evanston, and on March 15, after alterations, will occupy it. The Tinker Toy company, it is understood, will move to an adjoining plant on Ridge avenue.

The cosmetic concern will more than triple its floor area. It now has 20,000 square feet at its Chicago plant. Its new quarters have 65,000 square feet.

According to Ernest A. Teich of Naumann & Steurer, the only broker in the transaction, the Chicago firm was attracted to the toy plant by the many modern innovations it contained, such as air conditioning, auto call system, independent house telephone system, well appointed general and private offices, outdoor recreation courts on the roof for employés, and exceptional daylight space.

Alfred Cohen, secretary and treasurer of the Lady Esther company, represented it in yesterday's negotiations.

Share the Work Plan Saves 190,000 Jobs in Middle West

About 190,000 workers in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin are being carried on pay rolls as a result of the share the work movement, according to a report issued yesterday by C. W. Bergquist, vice chairman in charge of the movement for the Seventh federal reserve district.

C. W. BERGQUIST. [Acme Photo.]

"In Illinois alone 74,246 workers have been kept in employment by this method," the report states, "and Michigan, which ranks second to Illinois in successful application of the plan, has 43,390 'made jobs' to the credit of the share the work movement."

Saves, Doesn't Make, Jobs.

The report states that 32,488 jobs were maintained in Indiana, 29,939 in Wisconsin, and 8,730 in Iowa.

"This does not mean that 190,000 jobs have been created," Mr. Bergquist continued, "for the most effective work of the movement has been to curtail layoffs, and if shared work had not been applied 155,151 persons now working would have been added to the army of unemployed.

"Approximately 84,000 new jobs have been created, however, and prospects of even wider spread application of the movement, especially in such white collar industries as the mercantile, chain store, banking, and insurance groups should greatly increase the number."

Factories Lead List.

Manufacturing establishments are credited as keeping 114,071 on pay rolls. This was 73.5 per cent of the 155,000 jobs saved, although manufacturers represent only 45 per cent of the companies in the seventh district who are participating in the movement.

Alfred S. Alschuler, chairman of the movement for the Chicago district, states that companies employing 38,351 persons have been able to retain 14,671 on pay rolls under the plan. They have added 519 new employés and expect to take on 166 more shortly.

Thomas E. Wilson, chairman for Illinois, finds that 4,329 organizations are participating in the movement.

Agreement Signed to Extend German 925 Million Credit

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—A statement issued by the world's leading bankers assembled in Berlin at the time of signature of the new standstill agreement today stresses the "impressive showing on the part of Germany to meet both problems peculiar to herself and those created for her by the outside world."

The committee declares that "unless the world is freed of fears of war debts, trade destroying tariffs, and worthless currencies, Germany's efforts and sacrifices cannot lead to the desired end." The bankers, by declaring Germany an integral part of world economy, were said to have made it clear they favor abolition of war debts.

The agreement was signed by Albert H. Wiggin, Francis A. Goodhue, Frank S. Gannon for American creditors, and thirteen others for England, France, Holland, Italy, Sweden, and Switzerland.

Nearly a Billion Dollars.

The new standstill agreement provides for another extension of German external "frozen" credits totaling about 3,700,000,000 marks, or about $925,000,000. Other features of the agreement call for readjustment of credit lines, rearrangement of repayments, and lowering of interest rates.

It is provided that interest rates on cash credits of two classes shall be lowered from 5 to 4¾ per cent and from 6 to 5¾ per cent. The rates on draft credits are reduced by one-half to five-eighths of 1 per cent.

The new standstill agreement runs for another year, during which Germany will repay 5 per cent of her foreign credits, instead of the 10 per cent that was provided for in the former agreement. This reduction was made because German debtors under the 1932 agreement failed to use a substantial amount of credit at their disposal.

New Methods of Payment.

The new agreement provides different methods of liquidating the frozen credits through investment and other methods. It was formulated with such factors as settlement of international debts, tariff, and currency problems taken into consideration. It calls on German debtors to make payments in reichsmarks at stated periods and within fixed percentages.

These reichsmarks become, as registered balances, the property of creditors, as registered holders. The Reichsbank has been constituted trustee for registration and for seeing that the balances are employed in the various ways open to the registered holders.

It is expected that the use of these balances by tourists in the form of travelers' checks and letters of credit and in other ways may run to substantial amounts.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat traders were almost unanimous in their belief yesterday that if there is a letup in the mysterious selling of the May future which has developed on all upturns lately the market would probably do considerably better. Free buying of the deferred deliveries early yesterday caused a bulge of ⅝ to ¾ cent over Thursday's finish, but the upturn brought in selling of the same class which has been such a factor in checking bulges for some time and the market reacted.

Continued strength in corn, however, and reports of an active European demand for Canadian cash wheat for shipment at the opening of lake navigation prevented the local element from taking the bear side, and the finish was on a rally of around ½ cent from the inside figures. Net gains were ¼ cent, with May finishing at 47⅝ to 47⅞ cents; July, 48⅛ cents, and September, 49⅝ cents.

Rumors Lack Confirmation.

For some time the trade has been under the impression that the farm board was taking advantage of the bulges in wheat to liquidate its holdings of futures, which were recently placed as high as 35,000,000 bushels. Efforts to secure confirmation or denial of the rumors from officials of the government subsidiary were without avail yesterday. The Congressional Record several days ago quoted Chairman Jones of the house agricultural committee as saying the farm board was out of cash wheat but was still long on wheat futures.

A somewhat broader speculative interest in wheat was shown yesterday, with New York reports indicating some buying for investment purposes, in addition to which fair amounts of cotton were being taken. Selling against offers and buying against bids tended to limit fluctuations yesterday. There was spreading between the various wheat futures here and between Chicago and Winnipeg.

Corn Shows Marked Strength.

Heavy buying of corn futures, which was variously regarded as closing a spread with wheat or short covering, found offerings light and the price advanced 1 cent over Thursday's finish, with May touching 26⅝ cents, the best price in a week. Hedging against purchases to arrive and profit taking caused a reaction from the top, but the finish was at net gains of ⅛ to ¾ cent. May was 25⅞ to 26 cents; July, 27⅛ cents, and September, 29⅛ cents at the close.

Purchases of 360,000 bushels of cash corn to arrive from the country were reported by local handlers, making a total of around 1,000,000 bushels bought so far this week.

Oats firmed with corn and closed ¼ cent higher, with May at 17 cents and July at 17¼ to 17⅜ cents. Weather was more favorable in the southwest for field work. Rye was ⅜ to ⅝ cent higher for the day, with the strength in wheat the main influence. May closed at 34¾ cents and July at 34⅛ cents. Barley was nominally ¼ cent higher, with May at 28 cents.
